CASE NO. 3:25-cv-06320-TLT

PETITIONER'S REPLY TO RESPONDENTS' RESPONSE AND OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

INTRODUCTION

Respondents do not contest that Petitioner Jorge Willy Valera Chuquillanqui's re-detention was not based on any individualized determination that he posed a flight risk or a danger to the community. Respondents do not even attempt to distinguish the decisions of numerous courts in recent weeks that have issued preliminary relief to noncitizens detained in nearly identical circumstances. Instead, Respondents take the dangerous position that Mr. Valera has no due process rights to challenge his detention because of how he entered the United States. Putting aside the worrisome implications of this assertion, a district court in this circuit has already squarely rejected this argument in the last few days in a case with nearly identical facts. See Hernandez v. Wofford, No. 1:25-cv-00986, 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 162801, at *7–8 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 21, 2025).

If the Court reaches the question of the statute of detention, it should reject the government's radical new position that Mr. Valera and millions of people in his position are subject to mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). First, it is uncontested that Mr. Valera remains in regular removal proceedings, not expedited removal. Second, Respondents' documents reflect that, as recently as July 30, 2025, Department of Homeland Security ("DHS") officials determined that Mr. Valera is subject to discretionary detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). There is also no evidence that Respondents ever attempted to characterize Mr. Valera as subject to § 1225(b) before this litigation, amounting to a post hoc rationalization. Individuals subject to § 1225(b) can also only be released under parole, and Mr. Valera was released on his own recognizance, further casting doubt on Respondents' re-characterization of Mr. Valera's detention authority. In addition, as the Supreme Court explained in Jennings v. Rodriguez, discretionary detention governs the cases of those, like Mr. Valera, who are "already in the country" and are detained "pending the outcome of removal proceedings." 583 U.S. 281, 289 (2018). As a growing

1 number of courts have found, the text and structure of the detention statutes, as well as decades of
2 agency practice, also refute the government's position that individuals such as Mr. Valera are 3 subject to mandatory detention under § 1225(b).

4 ARGUMENT

5 I. The Due Process Clause Protects Mr. Valera's Liberty Interests.

6 The Due Process Clause applies to noncitizens regardless of whether they are "seeking
7 admission" or are "admitted" under immigration law. Wong v. United States, 373 F.3d 952, 973 (9th
8 Cir. 2004), abrogated on other grounds by Wilkie v. Robbins, 551 U.S. 537 (2007). Respondents do
9 not allege that Mr. Valera's re-detention resulted from an assessment of either danger or flight risk,
10 the sole lawful bases for immigration detention. See Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 690 (2001).
11 Rather, Respondents claim that "noncitizens subject to expedited removal cannot assert a protected
12 property or liberty interest in additional procedures not provided by the statute." Opp. at 9 (citing
13 Dep't of Homeland Sec. v. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. 103, 140 (2020)). First, as the government
14 acknowledges, Mr. Valera is not currently in expedited removal proceedings. Opp. at 6 ("Petitioner
15 is currently subject to mandatory detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)"). Thus Thuraissigiam,
16 which involves the rights of a noncitizen in expedited removal proceedings, does not apply to Mr.
17 Valera, who is in regular removal proceedings. In addition, even if Mr. Valera were subject to 18 expedited removal, numerous courts have rejected attempts to extend Thuraissigiam's holding—19 which addressed a due process challenge admission procedures—to extinguish challenges to 20 detention. See, e.g., Padilla v. U.S. Immigr. & Customs Enf't, 704 F. Supp. 3d 1163, 1170 (W.D.
21 Wash. 2023), ("The Court stands unconvinced that the Supreme Court's decision in Thuraissigiam
22 requires dismissal of Plaintiffs' due process claim."); Jatta v. Clark, No. 19-cv-2086, 2020 WL
23 7138006, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Dec. 5, 2020) (finding Thuraissigiam "inapposite" to due process
24 challenge to detention); Leke v. Hott, 521 F. Supp. 3d 597, 604 (E.D. Va. 2021) ("Quite clearly,

1 Thuraissigiam does not govern here, as the Supreme Court there addressed the singular issue of
2 judicial review of credible fear determinations and did not decide the issue of an Immigration
3 Judge’s review of prolonged and indefinite detention.”); Mbalivoto v. Holt, 527 F. Supp. 3d 838,
4 844–48 (E.D. Va. 2020) (similar); see also, e.g., Lopez v. Sessions, No. 18-cv-4189, 2018 WL
5 2932726, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. June 12, 2018) (ordering release of “arriving” noncitizen who was 6 unlawfully redetained); Mata Velasquez v. Kurzdorfer, No. 25-cv-493, 2025 WL 1953796, at *11
7 (W.D.N.Y. July 16, 2025) (same). Most recently, a district court in this circuit considered
8 Thuraissigiam in the context of an immigration court re-detention case and also found it did not
9 apply. See Hernandez, 2025 WL 2084921, at *7–8.

11 Moreover, Respondents claim that the multi-factor “balancing test” of Mathews v. Eldridge,
12 424 U.S. 319, 335 (1976), does not apply here. But the very cases Respondents cite, Opp. at 9, did
13 apply Mathews. See Rodriguez Diaz v. Garland, 53 F.4th 1189, 1206-8 (9th Cir. 2022) (applying 14 Mathews to § 1226(a) and explaining “it remains a flexible test”); accord Pinchi v. Noem, No. 5:25-
15 cv-05632-PCP, F. Supp. 3d, 2025 WL 2084921, at *3 n.2 (N.D. Cal. July 24, 2025) (discussing
16 Rodriguez-Diaz); Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 34–35 (1982) (applying Mathews to due
17 process challenge to immigration hearing procedures). And aside from this erroneous contention,
18 Respondents offer no principled reason why Mathews should not apply here. The Court should thus 19 reject Respondents’ unsupported claim and, consistent with recent decisions in factually similar 20 cases, grant the preliminary injunction. See Pinchi v. Noem, 2025 WL 2084921, at *7; Singh v.
21 Andrews, 2025 WL 1918679, *8-10 (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2025); Castellon v. Kaiser, No. 1:2-cv-
22 00968, 2025 WL 2373425, at *24 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 14, 2025).

23 II. Mr. Valera is Not Subject to Mandatory Detention.

24
25 Even though it is not necessary to reach Mr. Valera’s due process claims, the Court should 26 reject Respondents’ position Mr. Valera is subject to mandatory detention. First, as mentioned
27

1 above, Respondents acknowledge that Mr. Valera is not currently in expedited removal
2 proceedings.¹ In addition, it is too late for DHS to initiate expedited removal against Mr. Valera in
3 the future because he has been physically present in the United States for more than two years. 8
4 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(i), (b)(1)(A)(iii)(II).

5 Mr. Valera is also currently subject to discretionary detention under § 1226(a) and not §
6 1225(b), as Respondents now claim. Section 1225(b) applies to noncitizens arriving at the border,
7 and Mr. Valera has been living in United States since 2022, has a pending asylum application, and
8 has obtained work authorization. Jennings, 583 U.S. at 288–89. Further, the documents DHS
9 issued to Mr. Valera when he was apprehended at the border in 2022 and, again, when he was 10 arrested at immigration court in 2025, all state his detention authority as Section 236 of the 11 Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”), which is codified at 8 U.S.C. § 1226. Exs. 1–3. As 12 such, they reflect DHS’s determination that, as recently as July 30, 2025, Mr. Valera is subject to 13 § 1226(a). Exs. 1–2. A district judge in New York recently examined the same documents in 14 substance in another case and found that they “unequivocally establish that [the petitioner] was 15 detained pursuant to Respondents’ discretionary authority under § 1226(a).” Lopez Benitez v.
16 Francis, No. 25-cv-5937, 2025 WL 2371588, at *11–12 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 13, 2025). Mr. Valera
17 was also charged with removability pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i), which is a statute
18 applicable to noncitizens who are already present in the U.S., not to noncitizens who are 19 considered “arriving.” See Ortega-Cervantes v. Gonzales, 501 F.3d 1111, 1116 (9th Cir. 2007);
20 Opp., Ex. 1. ¶ 5. Mr. Valera’s Order of Release on Recognizance itself also shows he is subject to 21 § 1226(a) because § 1225(b) only authorizes release on parole. Martinez v. Hyde, No. 25-cv-
22 11613, 2025 WL 2084238, at *4 (D. Mass. July 24, 2025). To the extent that Respondents argue
23
26

27 ¹ Petitioner reserves all rights and arguments to challenge any future assertion by Respondents of such authority.

1 Mr. Valera's detention authority has since shifted to § 1225(b), the Court in Benitez found this to
 2 be an impermissible post hoc rationalization that was raised for the first time in litigation. Id. at 3 *13–14.

4 Further, in claiming that Mr. Valera is “currently subject to mandatory detention pursuant
 5 to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b),” Respondents rely on a dramatic and implausible reinterpretation of the 6 statutes governing immigration detention as applied to noncitizens who remain in regular removal
 7 proceedings. This new position has been thoroughly refuted by several district courts in recent 8 weeks, and Petitioner respectfully refers the Court to the following extensive explanations, rooted
 9 primarily in the text and structure of the statute: Lopez Benitez, No. 25-cv-5937, 2025 WL
 10 2371588, at *5–9; Martinez, 2025 WL 2084238, at *2-8; Gomes v. Hyde, No. 25-cv-11571 (JEK),
 11 2025 WL 1869299, at *5-9 (D. Mass. July 7, 2025)); Rodriguez v. Bostock, No. 3:25-cv-5240-
 12 TMC, 2025 WL 1193850, at *14 (W.D. Wash. Apr. 24, 2025).

15 III. The Balance of the Equities and the Public Interest Weigh Strongly in Petitioner's 16 Favor.

17 Respondents do not rebut Petitioner's showing that the remaining factors weigh in Mr.
 18 Valera's favor. He faces irreparable injury in the form of constitutional harm of the highest order if 19 the preliminary injunction is not granted. See Pinchi, 2025 WL 2084921, at *7 (collecting cases).
 20 The public interest likewise weighs strongly in Mr. Valera's favor. Id. See Pinchi, 2025 WL
 21 2084921, at *7.

22 CONCLUSION

23 For the foregoing reasons, this Court should grant the preliminary injunction
