Attorneys for Respondents

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

IVAN SALAZAR ARROYO,

Petitioner,

v.

CHRISTOPHER J. LAROSE, et al.,

Respondents.

Case No.: 25-cv-02190 LL MMP

RESPONSE IN OPPOSITION TO FIRST AMENDED PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

I. Introduction

Petitioner is detained in Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) custody and is subject to mandatory detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2). Petitioner's habeas petition requests that this Court order his immediate release. Through multiple provisions of 8 U.S.C. § 1252, Congress has stripped federal courts of jurisdiction over challenges to the commencement of removal proceedings, including the consequent detention during those proceedings. Moreover, Petitioner's detention is mandated by statute. The Court should deny Petitioner's requested relief and dismiss the petition.

II. Factual and Procedural Background

Petitioner is a citizen and national of Mexico. ECF No. 4 at ¶ 18. In 2004, he entered the United States without being admitted or paroled. Id. On June 19, 2025, Petitioner was apprehended by ICE agents, charged with inadmissibility under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i), and placed in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. Id. at ¶ 20. In connection with those proceedings, an immigration judge granted Petitioner a $7,500 bond. Id. at ¶ 21. On July 21, 2025, ICE filed a Form EOIR-43, Notice of Intent to Appeal the Custody Redetermination, and indicated that it was invoking the automatic stay provision of 8 C.F.R. § 1003.19(i)(2). Id., Ex. A. On July 28, 2025, ICE filed a Form EOIR-26, Notice of Appeal from a Decision of an Immigration Judge, and that appeal remains pending. Id. In the interim, Petitioner remains detained at the Otay Mesa Detention Facility pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2). Id. at ¶ 20.

III. Statutory Background

A. Individuals Seeking Admission to the United States

For more than a century, the immigration laws of the United States have authorized immigration officials to charge noncitizens as removable from the country, arrest those subject to removal, and detain them during removal proceedings. See Abel v. United States, 362 U.S. 217, 232–37 (1960). "The rule has been clear for decades: '[d]etention during deportation proceedings [i]s ... constitutionally valid.'" Banyee v. Garland, 115 F.4th 928 (8th Cir. 2024) (quoting Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510, 523 (2003)), rehearing by panel and en banc denied, Banyee v. Bondi, No. 22-2252, 2025 WL 837914 (8th Cir. Mar. 18, 2025). Over time, Congress has enacted a multi-layered statutory scheme for the civil detention of aliens pending a decision on removal, during the administrative and judicial review of removal orders, and in preparation for removal. See generally 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225, 1226, 1231. It is the interplay between these statutes that is at issue here.

B. Detention Under 8 U.S.C. § 1225

"To implement its immigration policy, the Government must be able to decide (1) who may enter the country and (2) who may stay here after entering." Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 286 (2018). Section 1225 governs inspection, the initial step in this process, id., stating that all "applicants for admission . . . shall be inspected by immigration officers." 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(3). The statute – in a provision entitled "ALIENS TREATED AS APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION" – dictates who shall be deemed "an applicant for admission," defining that term to encompass both an alien "present in the United States who has not been admitted or [one] who arrives in the United States . . . ." Id. § 1225(a)(1) (emphasis added). Section 1225(b) governs the inspection procedures applicable to all applicants for admission. They "fall into one of two categories, those covered by § 1225(b)(1) and those covered by § 1225(b)(2)." Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287.

Section 1225(b)(1) applies to arriving aliens and "certain other" aliens "initially determined to be inadmissible due to fraud, misrepresentation, or lack of valid documentation." Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287. These aliens are generally subject to expedited removal proceedings. See 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(i). But if the alien "indicates an intention to apply for asylum . . . or a fear of persecution," immigration officers will refer the alien for a credible fear interview. Id. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(ii). An alien "with a credible fear of persecution" is "detained for further consideration of the application for asylum." Id. § 1225(b)(1)(B)(ii). If the alien does not indicate an intent to apply for asylum, express a fear of persecution, or is "found not to have such a fear," they are detained until removed from the United States. Id. §§ 1225(b)(1)(A)(i), (B)(iii)(IV).

Section 1225(b)(2) is "broader" and "serves as a catchall provision." Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287. It "applies to all applicants for admission not covered by § 1225(b)(1)." Id. Under § 1225(b)(2), an alien "who is an applicant for admission" shall be detained for a removal proceeding "if the examining immigration officer determines that [the] alien seeking admission is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted." 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A); see also Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216, 220 (BIA 2025) ("[A]liens who are present in the United States without admission are applicants for admission as defined under section 235(b)(2)(A) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), and must be detained for the duration of their removal proceedings."); Matter of Q. Li, 29 I. & N. Dec. 66, 68 (BIA 2025) ("for aliens arriving in and seeking admission into the United States who are placed directly in full removal proceedings, section 235(b)(2)(A) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), mandates detention 'until removal proceedings have concluded.'") (citing Jennings, 583 U.S. at 299).

C. Detention Under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a)

Section 1226 provides for arrest and detention "pending a decision on whether the alien is to be removed from the United States." 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). Under § 1226(a), the government may detain an alien during his removal proceedings, release him on bond, or release him on conditional parole. By regulation, immigration officers can release an alien who demonstrates that he "would not pose a danger to property or persons" and "is likely to appear for any future proceeding." 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8). An alien can also request a custody redetermination (i.e., a bond hearing) by an IJ at any time before a final order of removal is issued. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a).

Notably, Section 1226(a) does not grant "any right to release on bond." Matter of D-J-, 23 I. & N. Dec. at 575 (citing Carlson v. Landon, 342 U.S. 524, 534 (1952)). Nor does it address the applicable burden of proof or factors that must be considered. See generally 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). Rather, it grants DHS and the Attorney General broad discretionary authority to determine, after arrest, whether to detain or release an alien during his removal proceedings. See id. If, after the bond hearing, either party disagrees with the decision of the IJ, that party may appeal the decision to the BIA. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1(d)(3), 1003.19(f), 1003.38, 1236.1(d)(3). The regulations also include a provision that allows DHS to invoke an automatic stay of any decision by an IJ to release an individual on bond when DHS files an appeal of the custody redetermination. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.19(i)(2).

D. Review Before the Board of Immigration Appeals

The BIA is an appellate body within the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) that possesses delegated authority from the Attorney General. 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.1(a)(1), (d)(1). The BIA is "charged with the review of those administrative adjudications under the [INA] that the Attorney General may by regulation assign to it," including IJ custody determinations. 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.1(d)(1), 236.1, 1236.1. The BIA is also directed to, "through precedent decisions, [] provide clear and uniform guidance to DHS, the immigration judges, and the general public on the proper interpretation and administration of the [INA] and its implementing regulations." Id. § 1003.1(d)(1). Decisions rendered by the BIA are final, except for those reviewed by the Attorney General. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.1(d)(7).

If an automatic stay of a custody decision is invoked by DHS, regulations require the BIA to track the progress of the custody appeal "to avoid unnecessary delays in completing the record for decision." 8 C.F.R. § 1003.6(c)(3). The stay lapses in 90 days, unless the detainee seeks an extension of time to brief the custody appeal, 8 C.F.R. § 1003.6(c)(4), or unless DHS seeks, and the BIA grants, a discretionary stay. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.6(c)(5). If the BIA denies DHS's custody appeal, the automatic stay remains in effect for five business days. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.6(d). DHS may, during that five-day period, refer the case to the Attorney General under 8 C.F.R. § 1003.1(h)(1) for consideration. Id. Upon referral to the Attorney General, the release is stayed for 15 business days while the case is considered. Id.

IV. Argument

A. Petitioner's Requests are Barred by 8 U.S.C. § 1252

Petitioner bears the burden of establishing that this Court has subject matter jurisdiction over his claims. See Ass'n of Am. Med. Coll. v. United States, 217 F.3d 770, 778-79 (9th Cir. 2000); Finley v. United States, 490 U.S. 545, 547-48 (1989). As a threshold matter, Petitioner's claims are jurisdictionally barred under 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g) and 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b)(9). See S.Q.D.C. v. Bondi, No. CV 25-3348 (PAM/DLM), 2025 WL 2617973 (D. Minn. Sept. 9, 2025) (finding no jurisdiction pursuant to § 1252 and dismissing similar habeas petition).

Courts lack jurisdiction over any claim or cause of action arising from any decision to commence or adjudicate removal proceedings or execute removal orders. See 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g) ("[N]o court shall have jurisdiction to hear any cause or claim by or on behalf of any alien arising from the decision or action by the Attorney General to commence proceedings, adjudicate cases, or execute removal orders.") (emphasis added). In other words, § 1252(g) removes district court jurisdiction over "three discrete actions that the Attorney may take: [his] 'decision or action' to 'commence proceedings, adjudicate cases, or execute removal orders.'" Reno v. Am.-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 482 (1999) (emphasis removed). Petitioner's claims necessarily arise "from the decision or action by the Attorney General to commence proceedings [and] adjudicate cases," over which Congress has explicitly foreclosed district court jurisdiction. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g).

Section 1252(g) also bars district courts from hearing challenges to the method by which the government chooses to commence removal proceedings, including the decision to detain an alien pending removal. See Alvarez v. ICE, 818 F.3d 1194, 1203 (11th Cir. 2016) ("By its plain terms, [§ 1252(g)] bars us from questioning ICE's discretionary decisions to commence removal" and bars review of "ICE's decision to take [plaintiff] into custody and to detain him during his removal proceedings"); Valecia-Meja v. United States, No. 08-2943 CAS (PJWz), 2008 WL 4286979, at *4

(C.D. Cal. Sept. 15, 2008) ("The decision to detain plaintiff until his hearing before the Immigration Judge arose from this decision to commence proceedings."); Tazu v. Att'y Gen. U.S., 975 F.3d 292, 298–99 (3d Cir. 2020) (holding that 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g) and (b)(9) deprive the district court of jurisdiction to review a removal order).

"For the purposes of § 1252, the Attorney General commences proceedings against an alien when the alien is issued a Notice to Appear before an immigration court." Herrera-Correra v. United States, No. 08-2941 DSF (JCx), 2008 WL 11336833, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 11, 2008). "The Attorney General may arrest the alien against whom proceedings are commenced and detain that individual until the conclusion of those proceedings." Id. at *3. "Thus, an alien's detention throughout this process arises from the Attorney General's decision to commence proceedings" and review of claims arising from such detention is barred under § 1252(g). Id. (citing Sissoko v. Rocha, 509 F.3d 947, 949 (9th Cir. 2007)); 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g). As such, judicial review of the claim that Petitioner is entitled to bond is barred by § 1252(g). See S.Q.D.C. v. Bondi, 2025 WL 2617973 at *2 (noting that § 1252(g)'s exception for "pure questions of law" is "narrow" and does not apply to such claims); but see Vasquez Garcia v. Noem, No. 25-cv-02180-DMS-MMP, 2025 WL 2549431, at *4 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 3, 2025).

Moreover, under 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b)(9), "[j]udicial review of all questions of law and fact . . . arising from any action taken or proceeding brought to remove an alien from the United States under this subchapter shall be available only in judicial review of a final order under this section." And judicial review is available only through "a petition for review filed with an appropriate court of appeals." 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(5). The Supreme Court has made it clear that § 1252(b)(9) is "the unmistakable 'zipper' clause," channeling "judicial review of all" "decisions and actions leading up to or consequent upon final orders of deportation," including "non-final order[s]," into proceedings before a court of appeals. Reno, 525 U.S. at 483, 485; see J.E.F.M. v. Lynch, 837 F.3d 1026, 1031 (9th Cir. 2016) (noting § 1252(b)(9) is "breathtaking in scope and vise-like in grip and therefore swallows up virtually all claims that are tied to removal proceedings"). "Taken together, § 1252(a)(5) and § 1252(b)(9) mean that any issue – whether legal or factual –arising from any removal-related activity can be reviewed only through the [petition for review] PFR process." J.E.F.M., 837 F.3d at 1031.

Critically, "1252(b)(9) is a judicial channeling provision, not a claim-barring one." Aguilar v. ICE, 510 F.3d 1, 11 (1st Cir. 2007). Indeed, 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(D) provides that "[n]othing . . . in any other provision of this chapter . . . shall be construed as precluding review of constitutional claims or questions of law raised upon a petition for review filed with an appropriate court of appeals in accordance with this section." The petition-for-review process before the court of appeals ensures that noncitizens have a forum for claims arising from their immigration proceedings and "receive their day in court." J.E.F.M., 837 F.3d at 1031-32 (internal quotations omitted). That said, these provisions also divest district courts of jurisdiction to review both direct and indirect challenges to removal orders, including decisions to detain for purposes of removal or for proceedings. See Jennings, 583 U.S. at 294-95. Accordingly, this Court should deny Plaintiff's petition for lack of jurisdiction.

D. Petitioner is Subject to Mandatory Detention

The Court should reject Petitioner's argument that 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) governs his detention instead of 8 U.S.C. § 1225. When there is "an irreconcilable conflict in two legal provisions," then "the specific governs over the general." Karczewski v. DCH Mission Valley LLC, 862 F.3d 1006, 1015 (9th Cir. 2017). Section 1226(a) applies to those "arrested and detained pending a decision" on removal. In contrast, section 1225 is narrower. It applies only to "applicants for admission"; that is, as relevant here, aliens present in the United States who have not be admitted. See Florida v. United States, 660 F. Supp. 3d 1239, 1275 (N.D. Fla. 2023). Because Petitioner falls within that category, the specific detention authority under § 1225 governs over the general authority found at § 1226(a).

Under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a), an "applicant for admission" is defined as an "alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or who arrives in the United States." Applicants for admission "fall into one of two categories, those covered by § 1225(b)(1) and those covered by § 1225(b)(2)." Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287. Section 1225(b)(2) – the provision relevant here – is the "broader" of the two. Id. It "serves as a catchall provision that applies to all applicants for admission not covered by § 1225(b)(1)" and mandates detention. Id. at 297; see also Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 218-19 (for "those aliens who are seeking admission and who an immigration officer has determined are 'not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted' . . . the INA explicitly requires that this third 'catchall' category of applicants for admission be mandatorily detained for the duration of their immigration proceedings"); Matter of Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. at 69 ("[A]n applicant for admission who is arrested and . . . subsequently placed in removal proceedings is detained under section 235(b) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b), and is ineligible for any subsequent release on bond under section 236(a) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a)."). Section 1225(b) applies to Petitioner because he is present in the United States without being admitted. See Matter of Lemus-Losa, 25 I&N Dec. 734, 743 (BIA 2012) ("many people who are not actually requesting permission to enter the United States in the ordinary sense are nevertheless deemed to be 'seeking admission' under the immigration laws"); Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 221 (noting "no legal authority for the proposition that after some undefined period of time residing in the interior of the United States without lawful status, the INA provides that an applicant for admission is no longer 'seeking admission,' and has somehow converted to a status that renders him or her eligible for a bond hearing under section 236(a) of the INA").

Statutory language "is known by the company it keeps." Marquez-Reyes v. Garland, 36 F.4th 1195, 1202 (9th Cir. 2022) (quoting McDonnell v. United States, 579 U.S. 550, 569 (2016)). The phrase "seeking admission" in § 1225(b)(2)(A) must be read in the context of the definition of "applicant for admission" in § 1225(a)(1). Applicants for admission are both those individuals present without admission and those who arrive in the United States. See 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1). Both are understood to be "seeking admission" under §1225(a)(1). See Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 221; Lemus-Losa, 25 I&N Dec. at 743. Congress made that clear in § 1225(a)(3), which requires all aliens "who are applicants for admission or otherwise seeking admission" to be inspected by immigration officers. 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(3). The word "or" here "introduce[s] an appositive – a word or phrase that is synonymous with what precedes it ('Vienna or Wien,' 'Batman or the Caped Crusader')." United States v. Woods, 571 U.S. 31, 45 (2013). If Congress did not want § 1225(b)(2)(A) to apply to "applicants for admission," then it would not have included the phrase "applicants for admission" in the subsection. See 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A); see also Corley, 556 U.S. at 314.

When the plain text of a statute is clear, "that meaning is controlling" and courts "need not examine legislative history." Washington v. Chimei Innolux Corp., 659 F.3d 842, 848 (9th Cir. 2011). Indeed, "in interpreting a statute a court should always turn first to one, cardinal canon before all others." Conn. Nat'l Bank v. Germain, 503 U.S. 249, 253-54 (1992). The Supreme Court has "stated time and again that courts must presume that a legislature says in a statute what it means and means in a statute what it says there." Id. (citations omitted). Thus, "[w]hen the words of a statute are unambiguous, then, this first canon is also the last: 'judicial inquiry is complete.'" Id. (citing Rubin v. United States, 449 U.S. 424 at 430 (1981)).

But to the extent legislative history is relevant here, nothing "refutes the plain language" of § 1225. Suzlon Energy Ltd. v. Microsoft Corp., 671 F.3d 726, 730 (9th Cir. 2011). Congress passed IIRIRA to correct "an anomaly whereby immigrants who were attempting to lawfully enter the United States were in a worse position than persons who had crossed the border unlawfully." Torres v. Barr, 976 F.3d 918, 928 (9th Cir. 2020) (en banc). It "intended to replace certain aspects of the [then] current 'entry doctrine,' under which illegal aliens who have entered the United States without inspection gain equities and privileges in immigration proceedings that are not available to aliens who present themselves for inspection at a port of entry." Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 234 (quoting H.R. Rep. 104-469, pt. 1, at 225). Petitioner's position requires an interpretation that would put aliens who "crossed the border unlawfully" in a better position than those "who present themselves for inspection at a port of entry." Id. Such interpretation would allow aliens who presented at a port of entry to be subject to mandatory detention under § 1225, but those who crossed illegally eligible for a bond under § 1226(a). See Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 225 ("The House Judiciary Committee Report makes clear that Congress intended to eliminate the prior statutory scheme that provided aliens who entered the United States without inspection more procedural and substantive rights that those who presented themselves to authorities for inspection.").

On September 5, 2025, after the immigration judge granted Petitioner bond, the BIA decided Matter of Yahure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025). This decision, which is binding on IJs, clearly directs: "Based on the plain language of section 235(b)(2)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) (2018), Immigration Judges lack authority to hear bond requests or to grant bond to aliens who are present in the United States without admission." Because Petitioner is properly detained under § 1225, he cannot show entitlement to relief and his petition should be denied. This was the conclusion reached by another court in this district just weeks ago on nearly identical facts. See Chavez v. Noem, No. 3:25-CV-02325-CAB-SBC, 2025 WL 2730228 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 24, 2025) (finding that "[b]y the plain language of § 1225(a)(1)," immigration detainees are "'applicants for admission' and thus subject to the mandatory detention provisions of 'applicants for admission' under § 1225(b)(2)").

V. CONCLUSION

The Court should deny Petitioner's petition and dismiss this case.
