

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY
NORTHERN DIVISION AT COVINGTON
CASE NO. 2:25-CV-00150-SCM

JEIMY HERNANDEZ-GOMEZ

PETITIONER

RESPONDENTS

RESPONDENT JAMES DALEY'S RESPONSE TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

Respondent, James Daley, in his official capacity as Campbell County Jailer, ("Daley"), by and through counsel, respectfully submits his Response to Petitioner's Petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus. (Doc. 1)

I. FACTS

The Campbell County Detention Center ("Jail") is a county jail overseen and operated by the elected Jailer, James Daley. The Jail has the capacity to house 689 maximum, medium, and minimum security inmates at the main jail. Though it primarily serves local law enforcement needs, the Jail also contracts with various agencies to house state and federal inmates and detainees. Through its contract with the U.S. Marshall's Office, the Jail houses Immigration and Customs Enforcement ("ICE") detainees.

Pursuant to its contract, the Jail houses Petitioner, Jeimy Hernandez-Gomez ("Petitioner"). Petitioner is being detained by the federal government. (Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, Doc. 1 at PageID 1) Petitioner claims that Defendant Russell Hott as the ICE Field Office Director is charged with the detention and removal of aliens which fall under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Field Office. (Id. at PageID 3-4) Petitioner alleges that there is no statutory basis for her detention. (See generally Doc. 1) For this reason, Petitioner requests that she be released from custody. Id. Petitioner does not challenge any of the conditions of her confinement at the CCDC, nor make any specific allegations about the Jail. Id.

II. LEGAL STANDARD

Writs of habeas corpus “may be granted by the Supreme Court, any justice thereof, the district courts and any circuit judge within their respective jurisdictions.” 28 U.S.C. §2241(a). Section 2241 “is an affirmative grant of power to federal courts to issue writs of habeas corpus to prisoners being held ‘in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.’” Rice v. White, 660 F.3d 242, 249 (6th Cir. 2011) (quoting Section 2241(c)).

III. DALEY IS NOT PETITIONER’S CUSTODIAN

The United States Supreme Court has declared that “the federal habeas statute straightforwardly provides that the proper respondent to a habeas petition is ‘the person who has custody over the petitioner.’” Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426, 434 (2004). This “immediate custodian rule” to a habeas petition is a long held “default rule” that the proper respondent to a habeas petition challenging present physical confinement “is the warden of the facility where [a] prisoner is being held, not the Attorney General or some other remote supervisory official. Id. at 435-39. However, in Padilla, the Supreme Court refused to decide who the proper respondent is in the immigration detention context. Moreover, the Supreme Court did not address the proper respondent when a detainee is confined in a facility run by an entity other than the federal government. Id. at 436 n.8.

Padilla does not apply to the case at bar because the Campbell County Detention Center is not a facility operated by the federal government. Indeed, “[h]istorically, the question of who is ‘the custodian,’ and therefore the appropriate respondent in a habeas suit, depends primarily on who has power over the petitioner and ... on the convenience of the parties and the court." Roman v. Ashcroft, 340 F.3d 314, 319 (6th Cir. 2003) (citing Henderson v. INS, 157 F.3d 106, 122 (2d Cir. 1998)). In Roman, the Sixth Circuit held that for habeas petitions in immigration contexts, "the INS District Director for the district where a detention facility is located 'has power over' alien habeas corpus petitioners." Id. at 320. In finding that the Attorney General was not a proper respondent for a noncitizen's habeas claim and that a habeas claim could have only one respondent, the court reiterated 28 U.S.C. § 2243's requirement that a writ of habeas corpus "shall be directed to the person having custody of the person detained." Id. at 321.

Kentucky is included in the Chicago ICE Enforcement and Removal Operations ("ERO") District. See Enforcement and Removal Operations Field Offices, <https://www.ice.gov/contact/ero>. Accordingly, the Chicago Field Office Director is the only proper Respondent for Petitioner's request for a writ of habeas corpus. See e.g., Malam v. Adducci, 452 F. Supp. 3d 643, 653-654 (E.D. Mich. 2020) (noting that only ICE District Director was appropriately named as a party for an ICE detainee at a state facility).

Because Daley does not have the power to release Petitioner, he is not a proper party to the Petition and any Writ issued against Daley would be meaningless. The Petition as to Daley must, therefore, be denied.

IV. PETITIONER HAS FAILED TO DEMONSTRATE THAT DALEY HAS INFRINGED ON HER CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution forbids the government from depriving a person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. The protection applies to "all 'persons' within the United States, including [noncitizens], whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent." Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 693 (2001). As it pertains to Petitioner, because Daley does not have power over the release of habeas petitioners in an immigration context, the only remaining claim Petitioner could bring against him is through the Due Process Clause, which prohibits the government from imposing torture or cruel and unusual confinement conditions on non-convicted detainees. See Bell v. Wolfish, 441 U.S. 520, 535 (1979) (“[U]nder the Due Process Clause, a detainee may not be punished prior to an adjudication of guilt.”). This type of Fifth Amendment claim is analyzed under the same “deliberate indifference standard” as Eighth Amendment claims brought by prisoners. See Villegas v. Metropolitan Government of Nashville, 709 F.3d 563, 568 (6th Cir. 2013) (“Pretrial detainee claims, though they sound in the Due Process Clause...rather than the Eighth Amendment, are analyzed under the same rubric as Eighth Amendment claims brought by prisoners.”); Richmond v. Huq, 885 F.3d 928, 937 (6th Cir. 2018) (citing Villegas) (“This Court has historically analyzed Fourteenth Amendment pretrial detainee claims and Eighth Amendment prisoner claims ‘under the same rubric,’ that a constitutional right is violated when prison officials “are deliberately indifferent to the prisoner’s serious medical needs.”)

The Eighth Amendment's deliberate indifference framework includes both an objective and subjective prong. Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 834 (1994); Helling v. McKinney, 509 U.S. 25, 35-37 (1993). To satisfy the objective prong, an inmate must show “that he is incarcerated under conditions posing a substantial risk of serious harm.” Farmer, 511 U.S. at 834.

In her Petition, Petitioner makes no allegations that she is incarcerated at the Campbell County Detention Center under conditions posing a substantial risk of serious harm to her. Instead, she avers generally that the continued detention has separated her from her family and prohibits her from being able to financially provide for her family. (Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, Doc. 1 at PageID 1)

V. CONCLUSION

For these reasons, Campbell County Jailer James Daley respectfully requests that the Court deny the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus as to him, and that he be dismissed as a Respondent.

Respectfully submitted,
