INTRODUCTION

Petitioner Eliud Luviano seeks the grant of a petition for writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241, challenging the lawfulness of his detention by Immigration and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”) and seeking his immediate release from custody or a bond hearing.¹ See Dkt. No. 1. The Court must deny the petition as Petitioner has failed to exhaust administrative remedies. Significantly, Petitioner has not requested a custody redetermination hearing before an Immigration Judge (“IJ”). Dkt. No. 1 at ¶26. Additionally, Petitioner is currently detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and is therefore ineligible for release under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a). Petitioner seeks to circumvent the detention statute under which he is rightfully detained to secure a custody redetermination hearing that he is not entitled to. Petitioner argues that, contrary to the plain language of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), the authority for his detention is better understood to arise under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), a detention statute that allows for release on bond or conditional parole. That argument fails to square with the fact that Petitioner falls within the statutory definition of aliens subject to detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

On July 18, 2025, Petitioner, a citizen and national of Mexico, was arrested by the Rockwall Police Department and charged with Driving While Intoxicated. USA Bates 014-016.² On September 11, 2025, Petitioner pled guilty to Driving While Intoxicated with a Blood alcohol content greater than 0.15. USA Bates 027-029. The Court sentenced Petitioner to confinement in the Rockwall County Jail for a term of 55 days with 55 days credit. Id. On September 14, 2025, Petitioner was transferred into the custody of DHS. USA Bates 014-016. Petitioner freely stated that he is a citizen and national of Mexico who last entered the United States at or near unknown location and at an unknown time. Id. Petitioner did not present himself for inspection or admission by an immigration officer at a prescribed port of entry. Id. Petitioner did not possess any immigration document that would allow him to reside or work legally in the United States. Id. Accordingly, on the same day, Petitioner was served with a Notice to Appear (“NTA”), commencing removal proceedings on the grounds that Petitioner is an alien present in the United States without being admitted or paroled, or who arrived in the United States at any time or place other than as designated by the Attorney General in violation of INA Section 212(a)(6)(A)(i), 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i). USA Bates 001-004. The NTA also charged Petitioner with 212(a)(7)(A)(i)(I) as an alien who at the time of application of admission, is not in possession of a valid entry document. Id. Petitioner is presently detained at Laredo Detention Center. Dkt. No. 1 ¶9. To date, Petitioner has not filed a Custody Redetermination request with the immigration court and as a result, there has been no bond hearing for Petitioner before an IJ. See generally Dkt. No. 1. On October 22, 2025, Petitioner filed a Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus. Dkt. No. 1. On October 22, 2025, Petitioner filed a Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and/or Preliminary Injunction. Dkt. No. 2. The Court must deny the Habeas petition and Motion as Petitioner has failed to exhaust administrative remedies and because he is properly detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

¹Petitioner is currently detained at the Laredo Detention Center which operates under the direction of the Federal Government; as such, it is the Federal Respondents, not the named warden in this case, who makes the custodial decisions regarding aliens detained in immigration custody under Title 8 of the United States Code. Therefore, the Federal Respondents are the real party in interest and respond herein.

² Petitioner’s A-file is filed under Seal with the Court (USA Bates 001-037) and a copy has been provided to Petitioner’s counsel via email.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

Temporary Restraining Order/Preliminary Injunction

A petitioner seeking a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction typically must establish that he is likely to succeed on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest. Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008). The Fifth Circuit has “cautioned repeatedly that a preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy which should not be granted unless the party seeking it has clearly carried the burden of persuasion on all four requirements.” Bluefield Water Ass’n, Inc. v. City of Starkville, 577 F.3d 250, 253 (5th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks omitted).

ARGUMENT

I. PETITIONER FAILED TO EXHAUST ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.

A. The agency decision is not administratively final.

Prior to addressing the merits, the Government acknowledges that this Court has previously rejected its arguments concerning the applicability of § 1225(b)(2). However, the Government, with this motion, requests a reconsideration of that prior ruling. See Camreta v. Greene, 563 U.S. 692, 701 n. 7 (2011) (“A decision of a federal district court judge is not binding precedent in either a different judicial district, the same judicial district, or even upon the same judge in a different case.”). For the reasons discussed below, including recent decisions from other courts in the Fifth Circuit, this Court should reconsider its interpretation of § 1225(b)(2) and find that Petitioner is subject to mandatory detention.

The Court should dismiss the petition for writ of habeas corpus because Petitioner has failed to exhaust administrative remedies. It is well settled that before a prisoner can bring a habeas petition under 28 U.S.C. § 2241, administrative remedies must be exhausted. See Fuller v. Rich, 11 F.3d 61, 62 (5th Cir. 1994). The exhaustion requirement “aims to provide the agency with a chance to correct its own errors, ‘protect[] the authority of administrative agencies,’ and otherwise conserve judicial resources by ‘limiting interference in agency affairs, developing the factual record to make judicial review more efficient, and resolving issues to render judicial review unnecessary.” Beharry v. Ashcroft, 329 F.3d 51, 62 (2d Cir. 2003) (Sotomayor, J.); See, e.g., Gallegos-Hernandez v. United States, 688 F.3d 190, 194 (5th Cir. 2012) (holding that a federal prisoner seeking habeas relief under § 2241 must first exhaust all available administrative remedies); Hinojosa v. Horn, 896 F.3d 305, 314 (5th Cir. 2018) (same); United States v. Cleto, 956 F.2d 83, 84 (5th Cir. 1992) (same). Here, Petitioner has not availed himself of the administrative remedies available to him since he has not requested a custody redetermination hearing before an immigration judge. See generally Dkt No. 1. Petitioner argues that requesting a custody redetermination hearing would be futile in light of Matter of Hurtado, 29 I. & N. Dec. 216 (BIA 2025). The Fifth Circuit has recognized exceptions to the exhaustion requirement and noted that they “apply only in extraordinary circumstances,” including when exhaustion would be “patently futile.” Fuller v. Rich, 11 F.3d 61, 62 (5th Cir. 1994) (internal quotation marks omitted). Fuller itself is illustrative, where the petitioner argued that administrative appeal was futile because the time for filing an appeal has already elapsed. See id. The Fifth Circuit disagreed, holding that “until he actually appeals and that appeal is acted on, we do not know what the appeals board will do with [petitioner]’s claim, and until the appeals board has been given an opportunity to act, [petitioner] has not exhausted his administrative remedies.” Id.

Here, just because the administrative body is unlikely to find the law in the petitioner’s favor does not mean that the “extraordinary circumstances” apply where exhaustion is futile. Petitioner must seek a bond from the IJ, and if denied, he must appeal to (and receive a decision from) the BIA for the matter to be administratively exhausted. It is of little moment whether Petitioner would be able to successfully convince the BIA that Matter of Hurtado, 29 I. & N. Dec. 216 (BIA 2025) was wrongly decided or that her circumstances are factually distinguishable from Hurtado; the point is that Petitioner cannot eschew the process altogether. See Abdoulaye Ba v.

Director of Detroit Field Office, ICE, No. 4:25-CV-02208, 2025 WL 2977712, at *2 (N.D. Ohio Oct. 22, 2025) (dismissing for failure to exhaust where petitioner sought “review of the application and interpretation of Matter of Yajure Hurtado” but had yet to appeal to the BIA). Since Petitioner has not even requested a custody redetermination hearing with the IJ, Petitioner does not have a final administrative bond order and therefore, he has not exhausted his administrative remedies, and his Habeas petition should be dismissed.

II. THE COURT SHOULD DISMISS THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AS PETITIONER IS PROPERLY DETAINED UNDER 8 U.S.C. § 1225.

A. Applicants for admission are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225.

“As with any question of statutory interpretation, [the] analysis begins with the plain language of the statute.” Jimenez v. Quarterman, 555 U.S. 113, 118 (2009) (citing Lamie v. U.S. Tr., 540 U.S. 526, 534 (2004)). Section 1225(a)(1) defines an “applicant for admission” as an “alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or who arrives in the United States (whether or not at a designated port of arrival . . .)” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1); see Matter of Velasquez-Cruz, 26 I&N Dec. 458, 463 n.5 (BIA 2014) (“[R]egardless of whether an alien who illegally enters the United States is caught at the border or inside the country, he or she will still be required to prove eligibility for admission.”). Accordingly, by its very definition, the term “applicant for admission” includes two categories of aliens: (1) arriving aliens, and (2) aliens present without admission. See Dep’t of Homeland Sec. v. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. 103, 140 (2020) (explaining that “an alien who tries to enter the country illegally is treated as an ‘applicant for admission’” (citing 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1)); Matter of Lemus, 25 I&N Dec. 734, 743 (BIA 2012) (“Congress has defined the concept of an ‘applicant for admission’ in an unconventional sense, to include not just those who are expressly seeking permission to enter, but also those who are present in this country without having formally requested or received such permission”); Matter of E-R-M-

& L-R-M-, 25 I&N Dec. 520, 523 (BIA 2011) (stating that “the broad category of applicants for admission . . . includes, inter alia, any alien present in the United States who has not been admitted” (citing 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1))). An arriving alien is defined, in pertinent part, as “an applicant for admission coming or attempting to come into the United States at a port-of-entry [(“POE”)] . . .” 8 C.F.R. §§ 1.2, 1001.1(q).

All aliens who are applicants for admission “shall be inspected by immigration officers.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(3); see also 8 C.F.R. § 235.1(a) (“Application to lawfully enter the United States shall be made in person to an immigration officer at a U.S. [POE] when the port is open for inspection . . .”). An applicant for admission seeking admission at a United States POE “must present whatever documents are required and must establish to the satisfaction of the inspecting officer that the alien is not subject to removal . . . and is entitled, under all of the applicable provisions of the immigration laws . . . to enter the United States.” 8 C.F.R. § 235.1(f)(1); see 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(2)(A) (describing the related burden of an applicant for admission in removal proceedings). “An alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or paroled or an alien who seeks entry at other than an open, designated [POE] . . . is subject to the provisions of [8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)] and to removal under [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)] or [8 U.S.C. § 1229a].” 8 C.F.R. § 235.1(f)(2).

Both arriving aliens and aliens present without admission, as applicants for admission, may be removed from the United States by, inter alia, expedited removal procedures under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)³ or removal proceedings before an IJ under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225(b)(1),

³ Section 1225(b)(1) authorizes immigration officers to remove certain inadmissible aliens “from the United States without further hearing or review” if the immigration officer finds that the alien, “who is arriving in the United States or is described in [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(iii)] is inadmissible under [8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(C) or (a)(7)].” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)(A)(i); see 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(b)(2)(i). If the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) wishes to pursue inadmissibility charges other than 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(C) or (a)(7), DHS must place the alien in removal proceedings

(b)(2)(A), 1229a; Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 287 (2018) (describing how “applicants for admission fall into one of two categories, those covered by § 1225(b)(1) and those covered by § 1225(b)(2)”). Immigration officers have discretion to apply expedited removal under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) or to initiate removal proceedings before an IJ under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. E-R-M- & L-R-M-, 25 I&N Dec. at 524; see also Matter of Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. 66, 68 (BIA 2025) (“DHS may place aliens arriving in the United States in either expedited removal proceedings under [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)], or full removal proceedings under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a]” (citations omitted)).

B. Applicants for Admission in Expedited Removal Proceedings Are Detained Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1).

Applicants for admission whom DHS places into expedited removal under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1); such aliens (including those referred for 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings after establishing a credible fear of persecution or torture) are ineligible for a custody redetermination hearing before an IJ. Petitioner, an applicant for admission, has never been subject to expedited removal proceedings and is therefore not subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1). However, as discussed below, Petitioner is an applicant for admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings and is therefore subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(b)(3). Additionally, an alien who was not inspected and admitted or paroled, but “who establishes that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States for the 2-year period immediately prior to the date of determination of inadmissibility shall be detained in accordance with [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)] for a proceeding under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a].” Id. § 235.3(b)(1)(ii); id. § 1235.6(a)(1)(i) (providing that an immigration officer will issue and serve an NTA to an alien “[i]f, in accordance with the provisions of [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A)], the examining immigration officer detains an alien for a proceeding before an immigration judge under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a]”).

C. Applicants for Admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a Removal Proceedings Are Detained Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

Applicants for admission whom DHS places in § 1229a removal proceedings are similarly subject to detention and ineligible for a custody redetermination hearing before an IJ. Specifically, aliens present without admission placed in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings are both applicants for admission as defined in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1) and aliens “seeking admission,” as contemplated in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A). Such aliens are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and thus ineligible for a bond redetermination hearing before the IJ.

Applicants for admission whom DHS places in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and ineligible for a custody redetermination hearing before an IJ. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) “serves as a catchall provision that applies to all applicants for admission not covered by § 1225(b)(1).” Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287; see 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), (B). Under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), “an alien who is an applicant for admission” “shall be detained for a proceeding under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a]” “if the examining immigration officer determines that [the] alien seeking admission is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) (emphasis added); 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(b)(3) (providing that an alien placed into 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings in lieu of expedited removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 “shall be detained” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)); 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(c) (providing that “any arriving alien . . . placed in removal proceedings pursuant to [8 U.S.C. § 1229a] shall be detained in accordance with [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)]” unless paroled pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)).

Thus, according to the plain language of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), applicants for admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings “shall be detained.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) (emphasis added). “The ‘strong presumption’ that the plain language of the statute expresses congressional intent is rebutted only in ‘rare and exceptional circumstances,’” Ardestani v. INS, 502 U.S. 129, 135–36 (1991) (quoting Rubin v. United States, 449 U.S. 424, 430 (1981)); see Lamie, 540 U.S. at 534 (“It is well established that when the statute’s language is plain, the sole function of the courts—at least where the disposition required by the text is not absurd—is to enforce it according to its terms.” (quotation marks omitted)). As the Supreme Court observed in Jennings, nothing in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) “says anything whatsoever about bond hearings.” 583 U.S. at 297. Further, there is no textual basis for arguing that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) applies only to arriving aliens. The distinction the Attorney General drew in the 1997 Interim Rule (addressed in detail below) between “arriving aliens,” see 8 C.F.R. §§ 1.2, 1001.1(q), and “aliens who are present without being admitted or paroled,” Inspection and Expedited Removal of Aliens; Detention and Removal of Aliens; Conduct of Removal Proceedings; Asylum Procedures, 62 Fed. Reg. 10,312, 10,323 (Mar. 6, 1997),⁴ finds no purchase in the statutory text. No provision within 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) refers to “arriving aliens,” or limits that paragraph to arriving aliens, as Congress intended for it to apply generally “in the case of an alien who is an applicant for admission.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A). Where Congress means for a rule to apply only to “arriving aliens,” it uses that specific term of art or similar phrasing. See, e.g., id. §§ 1182(a)(9)(A)(i), 1225(c)(1).

On September 5, 2025, the BIA issued a published decision in Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025). In its decision, the BIA affirmed “the Immigration Judge’s determination that he did not have authority over [a] bond request because aliens who are present in the United States without admission are applicants for admission as defined under section 235(b)(2)(A) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), and must be detained for the duration of their removal proceedings.” Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 220.⁵ The BIA concluded that aliens “who surreptitiously cross into the United States remain applicants for admission until and unless they are lawfully inspected and admitted by an immigration officer. Id. Remaining in the United States for a lengthy period of time following entry without inspection, by itself, does not constitute an ‘admission.’” Id. at 228. To hold otherwise would lead to an “incongruous result” that rewards aliens who unlawfully enter the United States without inspection and subsequently evade apprehension for number of years. Id.

⁴ As discussed more below, the preamble language of the 1997 Interim Rule states that “[d]espite being applicants for admission, aliens who are present without having been admitted or paroled (formerly referred to as aliens who entered without inspection) will be eligible for bond and bond redetermination.” 62 Fed. Reg. at 10,323. However, preambular language is not binding and “should not be considered unless the regulation itself is ambiguous.” El Comité Para El Bienestar de Earlimart v. Warmerdam, 539 F.3d 1062, 1070 (9th Cir. 2008); see also Wards Cove Packing Corp. v. Nat’l Marine Fisheries Serv., 307 F.3d 1214, 1219 (9th Cir. 2002) (“[T]he plain meaning of a regulation governs and deference to an agency’s interpretation of its regulation is warranted only when the regulation’s language is ambiguous.” (citing Christensen v. Harris County, 529 U.S. 576, 588 (2000))).

In so concluding, the BIA rejected the alien’s argument that “because he has been residing in the interior of the United States for almost 3 years . . . he cannot be considered as ‘seeking admission.’” Id. at 221. The BIA determined that this argument “is not supported by the plain language of the INA” and creates a “legal conundrum.” Id. If the alien “is not admitted to the United States (as he admits) but he is not ‘seeking admission’ (as he contends), then what is his legal status?” Id. (parentheticals in original). The BIA’s decision in Matter of Yajure Hurtado is consistent not only with the plain language of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2), but also with the Supreme Court’s 2018 decision in Jennings and other caselaw issued subsequent to Jennings. Specifically, in Jennings, the Supreme Court explained that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) applies to all applicants for admission, noting that the language of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) is “quite clear” and “unequivocally mandate[s]” detention. 583 U.S. at 300, 303 (explaining that “the word ‘shall’ usually connotes a requirement” (quoting Kingdomware Technologies, Inc. v. United States, 579 U.S. 162, 171 (2016))).

Similarly, relying on Jennings and the plain language of 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225 and 1226(a), the Attorney General, in Matter of M-S-, 27 I&N Dec. 509 (A.G. 2019), unequivocally recognized that 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225 and 1226(a) do not overlap but describe “different classes of aliens.” 27 I&N Dec. at 516. The Attorney General also held—in an analogous context—that aliens present without admission and placed into expedited removal proceedings are detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 even if later placed in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings. 27 I&N Dec. at 518-19. In Matter of Q. Li, the BIA held that an alien who illegally crossed into the United States between POEs and was apprehended without a warrant while arriving is detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). 29 I&N Dec. at 71. This ongoing evolution of the law makes clear that all applicants for admission are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). Cf. Niz-Chavez v. Garland, 593 U.S. 155, 171 (2021) (providing that “no amount of policy-talk can overcome a plain statutory command”); see generally Florida v. United States, 660 F. Supp. 3d 1239, 1275 (N.D. Fla. 2023) (explaining that “the 1996 expansion of § 1225(b) to include illegal border crossers would make little sense if DHS retained discretion to apply § 1226(a) and release illegal border crossers whenever the agency saw fit”).⁶ Florida’s conclusion “that § 1225(b)’s ‘shall be detained’ means what it says and . . . is a mandatory requirement . . . flows directly from Jennings.” Florida, 660 F. Supp. 3d at 1273.

⁶ Though not binding, Camreta v. Greene, 563 U.S. 692, 709 n.7 (2011) (quoting 18 J. Moore et al., Moore’s Federal Practice § 134.02[1] [d], p. 134–26 (3d ed.2011)) (providing that “[a] decision of a federal district court judge is not binding precedent in either a different judicial district, the same judicial district, or even upon the same judge in a different case”); Evans v. Skolnik, 997 F.3d 1060, 1067 (9th Cir. 2021) (same), the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Florida’s decision is instructive here. Florida held that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) mandates detention of applicants for admission throughout removal proceedings, rejecting the assertion that DHS has discretion to choose to detain an applicant for admission under either 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225(b) or 1226(a). 660 F. Supp. 3d at 1275. The court held that such discretion “would render mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) meaningless.” Id.

Given 8 U.S.C. § 1225 is the applicable detention authority for all applicants for admission—both arriving aliens and aliens present without admission alike, regardless of whether the alien was initially processed for expedited removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) or placed directly into removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a—and “[b]oth [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1) and (b)(2)] mandate detention ... throughout the completion of applicable proceedings,” Jennings, 583 U.S. at 301–03, IJs do not have authority to redetermine the custody status of an alien present without admission.

Here, Petitioner is an applicant for admission (specifically, an alien present without admission), placed directly into removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. Petitioner is therefore subject to detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and ineligible for a custody redetermination hearing before an IJ. “It is well established . . . that the Immigration Judges only have the authority to consider matters that are delegated to them by the Attorney General and the [INA].” Matter of A-W-, 25 I&N Dec. 45, 46 (BIA 2009). “In the context of custody proceedings, an Immigration Judge’s authority to redetermine conditions of custody is set forth in 8 C.F.R. § 1236.1(d)” Id. at 46. The regulation clearly states that “the [IJ] is authorized to exercise the authority in [8 U.S.C. § 1226].” 8 C.F.R. § 1236.1(d); see id. § 1003.19(a) (authorizing IJs to review “[c]ustody and bond determinations made by [DHS] pursuant to 8 C.F.R. part 1236”); see id. § 1003.19(h)(2)(i)(B) (“[A]n IJ may not redetermine conditions of custody imposed by [DHS] with respect to . . . [a]rriving aliens in removal proceedings, including aliens paroled after arrival pursuant to [8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5).]”). “An [IJ] is without authority to disregard the regulations, which have the force and effect of law.” Matter of L-M-P-, 27 I&N Dec. 265, 267 (BIA 2018).

Aliens present without admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings are both applicants for admission under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1) and aliens seeking admission under 8 U.S.C.

§ 1225(b)(2)(A). As discussed above, such aliens placed in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a are applicants for admission as defined in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1), subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), and thus ineligible for a bond redetermination hearing before the IJ. Such aliens are also considered “seeking admission,” as contemplated in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A). To be sure, “many people who are not actually requesting permission to enter the United States in the ordinary sense are nevertheless deemed to be ‘seeking admission’ under the immigration laws.” Lemus, 25 I&N Dec. at 743; see Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 221; Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. at 68 n.3; see also Matter of Valenzuela-Felix, 26 I&N Dec. 53, 56 (BIA 2012) (explaining that “an application for admission [i]s a continuing one”).

In analyzing 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), the Supreme Court in Jennings equated “applicants for admission” with aliens “seeking admission.” See Jennings, 583 U.S. at 289. As noted above, the Supreme Court stated that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) “serves as a catchall provision that applies to all applicants for admission not covered by § 1225(b)(1).” Id. at 287. In doing so, it specifically cited 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A)—and thus did not appear to consider aliens “seeking admission” to be a subcategory of applicants for admission. Id. The Supreme Court also stated that “[a]liens who are instead covered by § 1225(b)(2) are detained pursuant to a different process . . . [and] ‘shall be detained for a [removal] proceeding’” Id. at 288 (quoting 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A)). The Supreme Court considered all aliens covered by 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) to be subject to detention under subparagraph (A)—not just a subset of such aliens. Moreover, Jennings found that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) “applies primarily to aliens seeking entry into the United States (‘applicants for admission’ in the language of the statute).” Id. at 297 (emphases added). The Court therefore considered aliens seeking admission and applicants for admission to be virtually indistinguishable; it did not consider them to be merely a subcategory of applicants for admission.

Indeed, the Supreme Court explicitly stated that aliens seeking admission are subject to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) detention: “In sum, U.S. immigration law authorizes the Government to detain certain aliens seeking admission into the country under §§ 1225(b)(1) and (b)(2).” Id. at 289. This was recently reiterated by the BIA in Matter of Q. Li, which held that for aliens “seeking admission into the United States who are placed directly in full removal proceedings, [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A)] . . . mandates detention ‘until removal proceedings have concluded.’” 29 I&N Dec. At 68 (quoting Jennings, 583 U.S. at 299).

The structure of the statutory scheme prior to the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRIRA). Pub. L. No. 104-208, div. C, 110 Stat. 3009-546 (1996) bolsters the understanding that under the current statutory scheme, all applicants for admission are subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). The broad definition of applicants for admission was added to the INA in 1996. Before 1996, the INA only contemplated inspection of aliens arriving at POEs. See 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a) (1995) (discussing “aliens arriving at ports of the United States”); id. § 1225(b) (1995) (discussing “the examining immigration officer at the port of arrival”). Relatedly, any alien who was “in the United States” and within certain listed classes of deportable aliens was deportable. Id. § 1231(a) (1995). One such class of deportable aliens included those “who entered the United States without inspection or at any time or place other than as designated by the Attorney General.” Id. § 1231(a)(1)(B) (1995) (former deportation ground relating to entry without inspection). Aliens were excludable if they were “seeking admission” at a POE or had been paroled into the United States. See id. §§ 1182(a), 1225(a) (1995). Deportation proceedings (conducted pursuant to former 8 U.S.C. § 1252(b) (1995)) and exclusion proceedings (conducted pursuant to former 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) (1995)) differed and began with different charging documents. See Sale v. Haitian Ctrs. Council, Inc., 509 U.S. 155, 175 (1993)

(explaining the “important distinction” between deportation and exclusion); Matter of Casillas, 22 I&N Dec. 154, 156 n.2 (BIA 1998) (noting the various forms commencing deportation, exclusion, or removal proceedings). The placement of an alien in exclusion or deportation proceedings depended on whether the alien had made an “entry” within the meaning of the INA. See 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(13) (1995) (defining “entry” as “any coming of an alien into the United States, from a foreign port or place or from an outlying possession”); see also Rosenberg v. Fleuti, 374 U.S. 449, 462 (1963) (concluding that whether a lawful permanent resident has made an “entry” into the United States depends on whether, pursuant to the statutory definition, he or she has intended to make a “meaningfully interruptive” departure).

Former 8 U.S.C. § 1225 provided that aliens “seeking admission” at a POE who could not demonstrate entitlement to be admitted (“excludable” aliens) were subject to mandatory detention, with potential release solely by means of parole under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5) (1995). 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)-(b) (1995). “Seeking admission” in former 8 U.S.C. § 1225 appears to have been understood to refer to aliens arriving at a POE.⁷ See id. The legacy Immigration and Naturalization Service (“INS”) regulations implementing former 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) provided that such aliens arriving at a POE had to be detained without parole if they had “no documentation or false documentation,” 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(b) (1995), but could be paroled if they had valid documentation but were otherwise excludable, id. § 235.3(c) (1995). With regard to aliens who entered without inspection and were deportable under former 8 U.S.C. § 1231, such aliens were taken into custody under the authority of an arrest warrant, and like other deportable aliens, could request bond. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1231(a)(1)(B), 1252(a)(1) (1995); 8 C.F.R. § 242.2(c)(1) (1995).

⁷ Given Congress’s overhaul of the INA, including wholesale revision of the definition of which aliens are considered applying for or seeking admission, Congress clearly did not intend for the former understanding of “seeking admission” to be retained in the new removal scheme. Generally, “[w]hen administrative and judicial interpretations have settled the meaning of an existing statutory provision, repetition of the same language in a new statute indicates . . . the intent to incorporate its administrative and judicial interpretations as well.” Bragdon v. Abbott, 524 U.S. 624, 645 (1998). However, the prior construction canon of statutory interpretation “is of little assistance here because, . . . this is not a case in which ‘Congress re-enact[ed] a statute without change.’” Public Citizen Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Health and Human Servs., 332 F.3d 654, 668 (D.C. Cir. 2003) (quoting Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. v. Curran, 456 U.S. 353, 382 n.66 (1982)). Rather, the presumption “of congressional ratification” of a prior statutory interpretation “applies only when Congress reenacts a statute without relevant change.” Holder v. Martinez Gutierrez, 566 U.S. 583, 593 (2012) (citing Jama v. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, 543 U.S. 335, 349 (2005)).

As a result, “[aliens] who had entered without inspection could take advantage of the greater procedural and substantive rights afforded in deportation proceedings,’ while [aliens] who actually presented themselves to authorities for inspection were restrained by ‘more summary exclusion proceedings.’” Martinez v. Att’y Gen., 693 F.3d 408, 413 n.5 (3d Cir. 2012) (quoting Hing Sum v. Holder, 602 F.3d 1092, 1100 (9th Cir. 2010)). “To remedy this unintended and undesirable consequence, the IIRIRA substituted ‘admission’ for ‘entry,’ and replaced deportation and exclusion proceedings with the more general ‘removal’ proceeding.” Id. Consistent with this dichotomy, the INA, as amended by IIRIRA, defines all those who have not been admitted to the United States as “applicants for admission.” IIRIRA § 302.

Moreover, Congress’s use of the present participle—seeking—in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) should not be ignored. United States v. Wilson, 503 U.S. 329, 333 (1992) (“Congress’ use of a verb tense is significant in construing statutes.”). By using the present participle “seeking,” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) “signal[s] present and continuing action.” Westchester Gen. Hosp., Inc. v. Evanston Ins. Co., 48 F.4th 1298, 1307 (11th Cir. 2022). The phrase “seeking admission” “does not include something in the past that has ended or something yet to come.” Shell v. Burlington N. Santa Fe Ry. Co., 941 F.3d 331, 336 (7th Cir. 2019) (concluding that “having” is a present participle, which is “used to form a progressive tense” that “means presently and continuously” (citing Bryan A. Garner, Garner’s Modern American Usage 1020 (4th ed. 2016))). The present participle “expresses present action in relation to the time expressed by the finite verb in its clause,” Present Participle, MerriamWebster, <http://www.merriamwebster.com/dictionary/present%20participle> (last visited Nov. 5, 2025), with the finite verb in the same clause of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) being “determines.” Thus, when pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) an “examining immigration officer determines” that an alien “is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted” the officer does so contemporaneously with the alien’s present and ongoing action of seeking admission. Interpreting the present participle “seeking” as denoting an ongoing process is consistent with its ordinary usage. See, e.g., Samayoa v. Bondi, 146 F.4th 128, 134 (1st Cir. 2025) (alien inadmissible under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i) but “seeking to remain in the country lawfully” applied for relief in removal proceedings); Garcia v. USCIS, 146 F.4th 743, 746 (9th Cir. 2025) (“USCIS requires all U visa holders seeking permanent resident status under 8 U.S.C. § 1255(m) to undergo a medical examination . . .”). Accordingly, just as the alien in Samayoa is not only an alien present without admission but also seeking to remain in the United States, Petitioner in this case is not only an alien present without admission, and therefore an applicant for admission as defined in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1), but also an alien seeking admission under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

Lastly, Congress’s significant amendments to the immigration laws in IIRIRA support DHS’s position that such aliens are properly detained pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)—specifically, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A). Congress, for example, eliminated certain anomalous provisions that favored aliens who illegally entered without inspection over aliens arriving at POEs. A rule that treated an alien who enters the country illegally, such as Petitioner, more favorably than an alien detained after arriving at a POE would “create a perverse incentive to enter at an unlawful rather than a lawful location.” United States v. Gambino-Ruiz, 91 F.4th 990 (9th Cir. 2024) (quoting Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. at 140) (rejecting such a rule as propounded by the defendant). Such a rule reflects “the precise situation that Congress intended to do away with by enacting” IIRIRA. Id. “Congress intended to eliminate the anomaly ‘under which illegal aliens who have entered the United States without inspection gain equities and privileges in immigration proceedings that are not available to aliens who present themselves for inspection at a [POE]’” by enacting IIRIRA. Ortega-Lopez v. Barr, 978 F.3d 680, 682 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Torres, 976 F.3d at 928); see also H.R. Rep. No. 104-469, pt. 1, at 225–29 (1996).

As discussed by the BIA in Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 222-24, during IIRIRA’s legislative drafting process, Congress asserted the importance of controlling illegal immigration and securing the land borders of the United States. See H.R. Rep. 104-469, pt. 1, at 107 (noting a “crisis at the land border” allowing aliens to illegally enter the United States). As alluded to above, one goal of IIRIRA was to “reform the legal immigration system and facilitate legal entries into the United States” H.R. Rep. No. 104-828, at 1 (1996). Nevertheless, after the enactment of IIRIRA, the DOJ took the position—consistent with pre-IIRIRA law—that “despite being applicants for admission, aliens who are present without being admitted or paroled . . . will be eligible for bond and bond redetermination.” 62 Fed. Reg. at 10,323. Affording aliens present without admission, who have evaded immigration authorities and illegally entered the United States bond hearings before an IJ, but not affording such hearings to arriving aliens, who are attempting to comply with U.S. immigration law, is anomalous with and runs counter to that goal. Cf. H.R. Rep. No. 104-469, pt. 1, at 225 (noting that IIRIRA replaced the concept of “entry” with “admission,” as aliens who illegally enter the United States “gain equities and privileges in immigration proceedings that are not available to aliens who present themselves for inspection at a [POE]”).

While the Government acknowledges that there are district court decisions that hold to the contrary,⁸ including cases identified by Petitioner (see Dkt. No. 1), it bears mention that (1) none of these decisions are binding, and (2) Hurtado carries far more weight considering the BIA's subject-matter expertise on the matter and the thoroughness of its analysis, and thus contrary district court rulings have comparatively miniscule persuasive weight. Moreover, multiple district courts—including at least two in the Fifth Circuit—have adopted the Federal Respondents' and the BIA's interpretation, and more are likely to follow in the wake of Hurtado. See, e.g., Sandoval v. Acuna, No. 6:25-CV-01467, 2025 WL 3048926 (W.D. La. Oct. 31, 2025); Garibay-Robledo v. Noem, 1:25-CV-00177, ECF No. 9 (N.D. Tex. Oct. 24, 2025)⁹; Vargas Lopez v. Trump, No. 8:25-CV-00526, 2025 WL 2780351 (D. Neb. Sept. 30, 2025); Chavez v. Noem, No. 3:25-CV-02325, 2025 WL 2730228 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 24, 2025). For instance, in Garibay-Robledo, 1:25-CV-00177, ECF No. 9, Judge Hendrix in the Northern District of Texas observed that “the plain language of the mandatory-detention provision weighs heavily against the petitioner’s assertion that he is subject only to discretionary detention,” and that the argument to the contrary “flatly contradicts the statute’s plain language and the history of legislative changes enacted by Congress.” Exhibit 2 at 1, 5 (emphasis added).

In addition, a district court in the Western District of Louisiana also recently agreed with the BIA's reading of the INA. See Sandoval v. Acuna, No. 6:25-CV-01467, 2025 WL 3048926 (W.D. La. Oct. 31, 2025). In denying the habeas petition, the court held that “[b]ecause Petitioner crossed the United States-Mexico border without being inspected by an immigration officer, ⁸ This includes decisions from courts in the Southern District of Texas. See, e.g., Buenrostro-Mendez v. Bondi, No. CV H-25-3726, 2025 WL 2886346 (S.D. Tex. Oct. 7, 2025) (on appeal); Fuentes v. Lyons, 5:25-cv-153 (S.D. Tex. October 16, 2025); Ortiz v. Bondi, 5:25-cv-132 (S.D. Tex. October 15, 2025); Baltazar v. Vasquez, 25-cv-175 (S.D. Tex. October 14, 2025); Covarrubias v. Vergara, 5:25-cv-112 (S.D. Texas October 8, 2025).

[Petitioner was] therefore also appropriately categorized as an inadmissible alien . . . [and thus concluded] that § 1225(b)(2)’s plain language and the ‘all applicants for admission language’ of Jennings permits [DHS] to detain Petitioner under § 1225(b)(2).” (citations omitted). Id. The court reasoned that “to conclude that an alien who has unlawfully entered the United States and managed to remain in the country for a sufficient period of time is entitled to a bond hearing, while those who seek lawful entry and submit themselves for inspection are not, not only conflicts with the unambiguous language of the governing statutes, but would also seemingly undermine the intent of Congress in enacting the IIRIRA.” Id. at *6. The Government urges the Court to rely on these decisions, which assessed the statutory question, and adopt their well-reasoned and textually faithful analysis. Accordingly, for the reasons discussed above, Petitioner, as an alien present without admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a removal proceedings, is an applicant for admission and an alien seeking admission and is therefore subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and ineligible for a bond redetermination hearing before an IJ.

D. Applicants for Admission May Only Be Released from Detention on an 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5) Parole.

Importantly, applicants for admission may only be released from detention if DHS invokes its discretionary parole authority under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5). DHS has the exclusive authority to temporarily release on parole “any alien applying for admission to the United States” on a “case-by-case basis for urgent humanitarian reasons or significant public benefit.” 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5); see 8 C.F.R. § 212.5(b). In Jennings, the Supreme Court placed significance on the fact that 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5) is the specific provision that authorizes release from detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b), at DHS’s discretion. Jennings, 583 U.S. at 300. Thus, neither the BIA nor IJs have authority to parole an alien into the United States under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5). Castillo-Padilla, 25 I&N Dec. at 261; see also Matter of Arrabally and Yerrabelly, 25 I&N Dec. 771, 777 n.5 (BIA 2002) (indicating that “parole authority [under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)] is now exercised exclusively by the DHS” and “reference to the Attorney General in [8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)] is thus deemed to refer to the Secretary of Homeland Security”). Importantly, parole does not constitute a lawful admission or a determination of admissibility, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1101(a)(13)(B), 1182(d)(5)(A), and an alien granted parole remains an applicant for admission, id. § 1182(d)(5)(A); see 8 C.F.R. §§ 1.2 (providing that “[a]n arriving alien remains an arriving alien even if paroled pursuant to [8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)], and even after any such parole is terminated or revoked”), 1001.1(q) (same).

E. Section 1226 Does Not Impact the Detention Authority for Applicants for Admission.

Section 1226(a) is the applicable detention authority for aliens who have been admitted and are deportable who are subject to removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a, 8 U.S.C. §§ 1226, 1227(a), and 1229a, and does not impact the directive in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) that “if the examining immigration officer determines that an alien seeking admission is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted, the alien shall be detained for a proceedings under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a],” id. § 1225(b)(2)(A).¹⁰ As the Supreme Court explained, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) “applies to aliens already present in the United States” and “creates a default rule for those aliens by permitting—but not requiring—the [Secretary] to issue warrants for their arrest and detention pending removal proceedings.” Jennings, 583 U.S. at 289, 303; Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. at 70; see also

M-S-, 27 I&N Dec. at 516 (describing 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) as a “permissive” detention authority separate from the “mandatory” detention authority under 8 U.S.C. § 1225).¹¹

Generally, such aliens may be released on bond or their own recognizance, also known as “conditional parole.” 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a); Jennings, 583 U.S. at 303, 306. Section 1226(a) does not, however, confer the right to release on bond; rather, both DHS and IJs have broad discretion in determining whether to release an alien on bond as long as the alien establishes that he or she is not a flight risk or a danger to the community. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1(c)(8), 1236.1(c)(8); Matter of Guerra, 24 I&N Dec. 37, 39 (BIA 2006); Matter of Adeniji, 22 I&N Dec. 1102 (BIA 1999). Further, ICE must detain certain aliens due to their criminal history or national security concerns under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c). See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1), (c)(2); 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1(c)(1)(i), 1236.1(c)(1)(i); see also id. § 1003.19(h)(2)(i)(D). Release of such aliens is permitted only in very specific circumstances. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(2).

Notably, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c) references certain grounds of inadmissibility, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1)(A), (D)-(E), and the Supreme Court in Barton v. Barr—after issuing its decision in Jennings—recognized the possibility that aliens charged with certain grounds of inadmissibility could be detained pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1226. 590 U.S. 222, 235 (2020); see also Nielsen v. Preap, 586 U.S. 392, 416-19 (2019) (recognizing that aliens who are inadmissible for engaging in terrorist activity are subject to 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)). However, in interpreting provisions of the INA, the Board does not view the language of statutory provisions in isolation but instead “interpret[s] the statute as a symmetrical and coherent regulatory scheme and fit[s], if possible, all parts into an harmonious whole.” Matter of C-T-L-, 25 I&N Dec. 341, 345 (BIA 2010) (internal quotation marks omitted) (quoting FDA v. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., 529 U.S. 120, 133 (2000)). As the Supreme Court in Barton also noted, “redundancies are common in statutory drafting—sometimes in a congressional effort to be doubly sure, sometimes because of congressional inadvertence or lack of foresight, or sometimes simply because of the shortcomings of human communication.” Barton, 590 U.S. at 239. “Redundancy in one portion of a statute is not a license to rewrite or eviscerate another portion of the statute contrary to its text” Id.; see also Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. at 222 (“Interpreting the provisions of section [1226(c)] as rendering null and void the provisions of section 1225(2)(A) (or even the provisions of section... 1225(b)(1)), would be in contravention of the ‘cardinal principle of statutory construction,’ which is that courts are to give effect, if possible, to every clause and word of a statute, rather than to emasculate an entire section.”) (quoting United States v. Menasche, 348 U.S. 528, 538–39 (1955)). The statutory language of 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)—including the most recent amendment pursuant to the Laken Riley Act, see 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1)(E), merely reflects a “congressional effort to be doubly sure” that certain aliens are detained, Barton, 590 U.S. at 239.

¹¹ Importantly, a warrant of arrest is not required in all cases. See 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a). For example, an immigration officer has the authority “to arrest any alien who in his presence or view is entering or attempting to enter the United States in violation of any law or regulation” or “to arrest any alien in the United States, if he has reason to believe that the alien so arrested is in the United States in violation of any such law or regulation and is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for his arrest” Id. § 1357(a)(2); 8 C.F.R. § 287.3(a), (b) (recognizing the availability of warrantless arrests); see Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. at 70 n.5. Moreover, DHS may issue a warrant of arrest within 48 hours (or an “additional reasonable period of time” given any emergency or other extraordinary circumstances), 8 C.F.R. § 287.3(d); doing so does not constitute “post-hoc issuance of a warrant,” Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. at 69 n.4. While the presence of an arrest warrant is a threshold consideration in determining whether an alien is subject to 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) detention authority under a plain reading of 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), there is nothing in Jennings that stands for the assertion that aliens processed for arrest under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 cannot have been arrested pursuant to a warrant. See Jennings, 583 U.S. at 302.

To reiterate, to interpret 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) as not applying to all applicants for admission would render it meaningless. As explained above, Congress expanded 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) in 1996 to apply to a broader category of aliens, including those aliens who crossed the border illegally. IIRIRA § 302. There would have been no need for Congress to make such a change if 8 U.S.C. § 1226 was meant to apply to aliens present without admission. Thus, 8 U.S.C. § 1226 does not have any controlling impact on the directive in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) that “if the examining immigration officer determines that an alien seeking admission is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted, the alien shall be detained for a proceeding under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a].” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

F. 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) on its face, and as applied to Petitioner, comports with Due Process.

Lastly, 8 U.S.C. § 1225 does not provide for a bond hearing or release from custody on bond, regardless of whether the applicant for admission is placed into full removal proceedings. The Supreme Court upheld the facial constitutionality of § 1225(b) in Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. at 140 (finding that applicants for admission are entitled only to the protections set forth by statute and that “the Due Process Clause provides nothing more”). An “expectation of receiving process is not, without more, a liberty interest protected by the Due Process Clause.” Olim v. Wakinekona, 461 U.S. 238, 250 n.12 (1983). Mandatory detention of an applicant for admission during “full” removal proceedings does not violate due process, because the constitutional protections are built into those proceedings, regardless of whether the alien is detained. 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. The alien is served with a charging document (NTA) outlining the factual allegations and the charge(s) of removability against him. Id. § 1229a(a)(2). Petitioner has an opportunity to be heard by an immigration judge and represented by counsel of his choosing at no expense to the government. Id. § 1229a(b)(1), (b)(4)(A). Petitioner can seek reasonable continuances to prepare any applications for relief from removal, or he can waive that right and seek immediate removal or voluntary departure. Id. § 1229a(b)(4)(B), (c)(4). Should Petitioner receive any adverse decision, he has the right to seek judicial review of the complete record and that decision not only administratively, but also in the circuit court of appeals. Id. § 1229a(b)(4)(C), (c)(5). Petitioner has yet to exercise his right to request a custody redetermination hearing in his ongoing removal proceedings before an Immigration Judge. As applied here to Petitioner, § 1225(b)(2)(A) does not violate due process.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny Petitioner's Habeas Petition (Dkt. No. 1) and Motion for Temporary Restraining Order/Preliminary Injunction (Dkt. No. 2) in its entirety.
