Case No. 2:25-cv-02137

REPLY TO RESPONSE FOR PETITION OF WRIT OF HABEAS
CORPUS AND ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Petitioner hereby submits this the following reply to Respondents' opposition to his Petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus and their response to this Court's order to show cause. Petitioner incorporates by reference the arguments in his Opposition to the State's Motion to Reconsider this Court's Order to Show Cause.

I. PETITIONER'S DETENTION IS GOVERNED BY § 1226(a).

Respondents initially rely on a mischaracterization of the holding Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281 (2018) to find solid ground for the proposition that any individual who entered without inspection and admission or parole is subjected to the mandatory detention provisions in 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). While the Supreme Court in that matter did engage in some statutory analysis in Jennings, it did not conclude that all such noncitizens are subject to a mandatory detention 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b). Jennings, 583 U.S. at 289 (“U. S. immigration law authorizes the Government to detain certain aliens seeking admission into the country under §§1225(b)(1) and (b)(2). It also authorizes the Government to detain certain aliens already in the country pending the outcome of removal proceedings under §§1226(a) and (c)”) (emphasis added). The core issue in Jennings was whether there were time limits to how long an individual could be detained under 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225(b) and 1226(c) – Jennings, 583 U.S. at 302-03, 305-06.

Post-Jennings, Respondents rely solely on Vargas Lopez v. Trump, No. 8:25-cv-00526, WL 2780351 (D. Neb. September 30, 2025) for district court authority supporting their proposition that 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) properly governs Petitioner's detention. These cases are not supportive of Respondents' position. The Vargas Lopez court pithily disposed of the issue based on the petitioner's poor development of the record.

Section 1226(c)(1)(E) does not remove such discretion for all noncitizens charged with such crimes; it only removes discretion for those who have entered the United States without inspection and admission or parole. 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1)(E)(i) (referencing aliens inadmissible under paragraph (6)(A) . . . of § 1182(a)); 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A) (aliens inadmissible as “present in the United States without being admitted or paroled”).

Under Respondent’s interpretation of the statutory scheme, all noncitizens who entered without inspection and admission or parole are subject to mandatory detention with no “discretion to release” which could be abrogated by section 1226(c)(1)(E), rendering the detention requirements specifically applied by Congress to individuals inadmissible under section 1182(a)(6)(A), in enacting the Laken Riley Act, superfluous and without meaning.

Statutes should be construed as a whole, giving effect to all of their provisions, and amendments to a statute must be read in harmony with their agency’s longstanding construction. See Vazquez v. Bostock et. al., No. 3:25-cv-05240 at *37 (W.D. Wash. September 30, 2025).

The Vargas Lopez court disposed of proceedings based upon deficiencies in the pleadings. Vargas Lopez, 2025 WL 2780351, at *1-2. The court alternatively concluded that Vargas Lopez was detained under § 1225(b)(2), but in addressing the overlapping nature of 8 U.S.C. § 1225 and 8 U.S.C. § 1226, the Court applied no canon of statutory construction in concluding that the statutes are not in conflict, writing that “[e]ven if Vargas Lopez might fall within the scope of § 1226(a), he certainly fits within the language of § 1225(b)(2) as well.” Id. Because Respondent’s interpretation of 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225 and 1226 renders the applicability of the discretionary detention statute and the exception to it in § 1226 superfluous and without effect, this Court should reject their interpretation.

Respondents’ reliance on deference to Hurtado also does not save them. As Respondents’ note, the weight owed to an agency interpretation in part depends on its “consistency with earlier and later pronouncements[.]” Skidmore v. Swife & Co., 323 U.S. 134 (1944); Dkt. 21 at *15. But the novel interpretation of 8 U.S.C. §§ 1225(a) and 1226(b) propounded by the Hurtado decision dates only to July of this year.

II. ADMINISTRATIVE EXHAUSTION IS FUTILE

Respondents claim that Petitioner has not given an Immigration Judge the opportunity to adjudicate his claim, going so far as to say that “without a bond hearing, it will not be possible to determine what the outcome of such hearing will be.” Dkt. 21 at *2. This argument is disingenuous as Respondents are aware that there is no Immigration Court that will find jurisdiction for a Bond Argument without a District Court from ordering them to do so. Dkt. 21 at *12 (“The BIA mandate is also sweeping [. . .] [it] is binding on all immigration judges in the United States.”). Binding immigration law in every district includes precedential BIA decisions, and Ninth Circuit Case law; however, decisions of the District Courts are not binding on the Immigration Court except with regard to named parties. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.1(g); Matter of K-S-, 20 I&N Dec. 715, 719 (BIA 1993) (the Board is not bound to follow the published decision of a United States district court in cases arising within the same district). Yajure Hurtado is therefore binding precedent and every single Immigration Judge in the Country is bound by law to follow it.

In fact, the Tacoma Immigration Court has continued to deny bond, citing Matter of Yajure Hurtado, despite a declaratory judgment by the Western District of Washington, barring Immigration judges at the Tacoma Immigration Court from finding they have no jurisdiction over such aliens as described in Yajure Hurtado as aliens encapsulated within 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b).¹

¹ Ellen M. Banner, Federal Court Ruling Doesn't Stop Washington State Immigration Judges' Bond Denials, The Chronicle Oct. 28, 2025, <https://www.chronline.com/stories/federal-court-ruling-doesnt-stop-washington-state-immigration-judges-bond-denials,389980>

Even the case cited by Respondents in support of their position, Vargas Lopez, have agreed that exhaustion would be futile for the reasons outlined, and concluded proceedings on the merits without addressing futility, respectively. Vargas Lopez v. Trump, No. 8:25-cv-00526, WL 2780351 at (D. Neb. September 30, 2025). There is, therefore, no court which has agreed with Respondents that exhaustion should be required in this case.

III. RELEASE IS THE APPROPRIATE REMEDY

Respondents have not stated their specific interest in detaining Petitioner, only arguing that detention is required by statute. If their interest is solely to seek Petitioner's removal, that does not require detention, and absent an indication of flight risk or danger to the community, the interest in detention is insignificant.

Many district courts faced with the same issue in this action have in recent weeks determined to order the immediate release of immigration habeas petitioners. Santiago v. Noem, No. EP-25-CV-361-KC, 2025 LX 473521, at *39 (W.D. Tex. Oct. 1, 2025) citing J.U. v. Maldonado, No. 25-cv-4836, 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191630, 2025 WL 2772765, at *10 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 29, 2025); Zumba v. Bondi, No. 25-cv-14626, 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 190052, 2025 WL 2753496, at *11 (D.N.J. Sept. 26, 2025); Sampiao v. Hyde, No. 25-cv-11981, 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 175513, 2025 WL 2607924, at *12 (D. Mass. Sept. 9, 2025); Rosado v. Figueroa, No. 25-cv-2157, 2025 WL 2337099, at *19 (D. Ariz. Aug. 11, 2025); M.S.L. v. Bostock, No. 25-cv-1204, 2025 WL 2430267, at *15 (D. Or. Aug. 21, 2025). In the majority of these cases, the Court found that the government had no or an insignificant interest in detaining the petitioner. Santiago, 2025 LX473521 at *39 citing J.U., 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 191630, 2025 WL 2772765, at *10; Zumba, 2025 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 190052, 2025 WL 2753496, at *10; Rosado, 2025 WL 2337099, at *14, 18; Sepulveda Ayala v. Bondi ("Sepulveda Ayala II"), 25-cv-1063, 2025 WL 2209708, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 4, 2025).

IV. CONCLUSION

Pursuant to the foregoing, Petitioner respectfully ask that this Court grant his requests for relief.
