PAMELA BONDI:

United States Attorney General,

BRUCE SCOTT

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA ET AL..

Respondents,

PETITIONER'S SURREPLY
TO JUDGES' ORDER DENYING TRO
WITH ATTACHED AFFIDAVITS IN SUPPORT

COMES NOW, Petitioner, Jose a. Martir-Martinez, pro-se without representation of counsel, files this response to Judge's order dated 11/05/2025 docket No. 7, denying Temporary Restraining Order.

Attached and made part of this filing are Petitioner's paternal parents both mother and fathers affidavits recorded prior in this action as proof of Petitioner's dire consequences if he dare return to his native country of El Salvador.

Petitioner reiterates that his life is in danger and will be killed if he fails to head the threats made by El Salvador's governmental body, whom in fact are the same directors of the growing violence in his country. This fact is well known to all parties and continues to be addressed in all the major American newspapers.

The Court is well positioned to issue said TRO, pending additional proof and adjudication in this matter as mandated under Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 65. This is a basic tenet of the liberty protection and guarantee of the United States Constitutional protections and a basic foundation of human rights, well guarded in the United States and world wide.

In addition, Petitioner's request in no way constitute harm nor prejudice to any of the parties in this action and is of any real consequence if the Court were to issue said TRO.

For all the above stated reasons, Petitioner has met his burden of proof and cause for irreparable harm and injury and request in the best interest of justice and human dignity, that if the court allows and grants Petition the opportunity to develop fully his claim, to do so, Petitioner will more than likely (1) to succeed on the merits, (2) more than likely suffer irreparable harm, in the absence of issue of the TRO, (3) the balance of equity tips in Petitioner's favor and (4) issue of TRO is in the best of the public interest.

Petitioner in support of this reply submit his parents Declaration already recorded in this action.
Certified true and correct (28 U.S.C. § 1746).
