

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

JAIME ALFONSO VELASQUEZ VASQUEZ,

Petitioner,

v.

25-CV-06666-MAV

JOSEPH FREDEN, in his official capacity as Deputy Field
Office Director, Buffalo Field Office, U.S. Immigration &
Customs Enforcement, et al.

Respondents.

RESPONSE TO ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE (ECF NO. 2)

The legal issues presented in this Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus concern the statutory authority for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's ("ICE") detention of Petitioner Jaime Alfonso Velasquez Vasquez, and whether he is entitled to a bond. While reserving all rights, including the right to appeal, Respondents submit this response to the order to show cause (ECF No. 2) in lieu of an exhaustive responsive memorandum as has been previously filed, in order to preserve the legal issues and to conserve judicial and party resources.

Respondents acknowledge that this Court's prior rulings concerning similar challenges to the government policy or practice at issue in this case, and the common question of law between this case and those rulings, would control the result in this case should the Court adhere to its legal reasoning in those prior decisions. See, e.g., Da Cunha v. Freden, 25-CV-06532-MAV, ECF No. 25 (W.D.N.Y. Oct. 20, 2025). While Respondents respectfully disagree with those decisions, in the interest of judicial economy, and to expedite the Court's consideration of this matter, Respondents hereby rely upon and incorporate by reference the legal arguments it presented in Da Cunha and submit that the Court can decide this matter without further briefing and without oral argument. Should the Court decide that Petitioner is subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226, the appropriate remedy is to order a bond hearing with the burden of proof on Vasquez, and not to immediately release him.

Should the Court prefer to receive a more exhaustive and fulsome opposition brief, Respondents respectfully request leave to file such a brief and will do so upon the Court's request.

BACKGROUND FACTS¹

Vasquez is a citizen of El Salvador who unlawfully entered the United States without admission or inspection and parole as an infant in 2006. ECF No. 2-1 at ¶ 1.

In 2025, Vasquez received Special Immigrant Juvenile ("SIJ") classification, which provides no immigration benefit or status but allows an alien to begin the process to apply for lawful permanent resident status. He was also granted deferred action on removal. Deferred action is "an act of administrative convenience to the government which gives some cases lower priority for removal from the United States for a specified period of time." Ramos v. Att'y Gen. United States, No. 25-2946, 2025 WL 2950133, at *2 (3d Cir. Oct. 17, 2025).

On or about November 4, 2025, Vasquez was arrested by immigration officials. ECF No. 2-1 at ¶ 1.

There is no indication in the Petition that Vasquez has applied for a bond or custody redetermination hearing before an immigration judge.

¹ Given the expedited briefing schedule for this matter, the facts here are taken from the Petition and the truth of such facts is not admitted.

ARGUMENT

In his Prayer for Relief, Vasquez seeks an order for his immediate release or else a bond hearing. ECF No. 3-1 at pgs. 19-20. Vasquez argues that his detention is governed by 8 U.S.C. § 1226, that he is being unlawfully detained and deprived of a bond hearing, and that his detention violates the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 8 U.S.C. § 1226.

As an initial matter, Respondents re-raise any and all jurisdictional defenses to this Petition, including that the Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”) strips this Court of jurisdiction over the claims raised, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252.

Substantively, Respondents contend that Vasquez’s detention is governed by 8 U.S.C. § 1225, because as an alien who entered without inspection and parole was and remains an applicant for admission. As such, he is subject to mandatory detention and not entitled to a bond hearing.

Respondents further rely upon In re Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (B.I.A. 2025). There, the Board of Immigration Appeals (“BIA”) examined the plain language of § 1225, the statutory scheme, Supreme Court and BIA precedent, the legislative history of the INA and the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (“IIRIRA”), Pub L. No. 104-208, and DHS’s prior practices. After doing so, the BIA held that “under a plain language reading of section 235(b)(2)(A) of the INA, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A), immigration judges lack authority to hear bond requests or to grant bond to aliens, like the respondent, who are present in the United States without admission.” 29 I&N Dec. at 225. This Court should rule the same.

Respondents acknowledge that questions of law in this case, and the challenges to the government’s policy and practice, substantially overlap with those at issue in Da Cunha.

Accordingly, while preserving all rights, Respondents incorporate by reference the legal arguments presented in that case. Should the Court apply the same reasoning it did in that case to this one, the legal principles espoused in that case would likely warrant the same conclusion here. Because of this, Respondents submit that further briefing and/or oral argument on the legal issues addressed in Da Cunha would not be a good use of judicial or party resources. In its current posture, the Court can decide this matter without delay. If, however, the Court prefers to receive a formal and exhaustive opposition brief in this matter, Respondents will provide such a brief upon the Court's request.

Further, Respondents contend that should this Court determine that Vasquez's detention is subject to 8 U.S.C. § 1226, the only appropriate remedy is a bond hearing before an immigration judge, during which an immigration judge can properly determine in the first instance whether Vasquez is a flight risk or danger to the community, as was the remedy in Da Cunha. At any bond hearing, Vasquez should bear the burden of proof to show that he is neither a flight risk or a danger to the community for many reasons. First, the Attorney General is granted broad discretion over bond decisions. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a)(1)-(2) (Attorney General "may continue to detain the arrested alien" and "may release" the alien on bond); Reno v. Flores, 507 U.S. 292, 294-95 (1993) ("Congress has given the Attorney General broad discretion to determine whether, and on what terms, an alien arrested on suspicion of being deportable should be released pending the deportation hearing."). Second, the Supreme Court's recent decision in Jennings rejects any argument that § 1226(a) should be read to require the government to carry the burden of proof in a bond hearing under that section. In Jennings, the Court rejected the position that § 1226(a) required the Government to provide "periodic bond hearings every six months in which the Attorney General must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the alien's continued detention is necessary." 138

S. Ct. at 847. In rejecting that reading, the Court held: “Nothing in § 1226(a)’s text—which says only that the Attorney General ‘may release’ the alien ‘on . . . bond’—even remotely supports the imposition of either of those requirements.” Id. While the precise question presented in Jennings was not identical to the one here, the Jennings Court held that it is “clearly contrary” to § 1226(a) to require the government to bear the burden of proof to justify prolonged detention, 138 S. Ct. at 848, it follows that § 1226(a) (and due process) should not require more robust procedures here. Lastly, in Velasco Lopez v. Decker, the Second Circuit required the burden to be shifted at a bond hearing only after a finding that detention had become prolonged. 978 F.3d 842, 854 (2d Cir. 2020) (“We believe that individuals subject to prolonged detention under § 1226(a) must be afforded process in addition to that provided by the ordinary bail hearing . . .”). Thus, there is no basis to require such additional protection here, and Vasquez should bear the burden of proof at any bond hearing this Court orders.

CONCLUSION

Respondents thank the Court for its consideration of this abbreviated submission and respectfully request that the Court to deny this Petition.

Respectfully submitted,
