

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN

JOSE LUIS VELAZQUEZ
VELAZQUEZ,

Petitioner,

v.

KEVIN RAYCRAFT, in his official capacity as Acting Field Office Director of Enforcement and Removal Operations, Detroit Field Office, Immigration and Customs Enforcement; Kristi NOEM, in her official capacity as Secretary, U.S. Department of Homeland Security; U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY; Pamela BONDI, in her official capacity as U.S. Attorney General; EXECUTIVE OFFICE FOR IMMIGRATION REVIEW, Respondents.

Case No. 25-cv-13675

Hon. Robert J. White
(presiding)

Hon. Patricia T. Morris
(referral)

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES	iii
ISSUES PRESENTED	vi
CONTROLLING OR MOST APPROPRIATE AUTHORITY	vii
INTRODUCTION.....	0
BACKGROUND.....	0
ARGUMENT	2
I. The Structure, Text and Legislative History of the INA Make Clear that §1225 Applies Only to the Inspection of Recent Arrivals, while §1226 Governs the Detention of Residents Like Petitioner.....	3
II. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Also Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not an “Applicant for Admission” Who Is “Seeking Admission” Before an “Immigration Officer.”	8
a. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not an “Applicant for Admission.”.....	9
b. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not “Seeking Admission” to the United States.	11
c. Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not Being “Examined” by an “Immigration Officer.”	13
d. The BIA’s Recent Decision Upholding the Respondents’ Practice is Unavailing.	15
III. ICE’s Deviation from its own Policy is ‘Arbitrary and Capricious.’	17
IV. Due Process Entitles Petitioner to a Bond Hearing.....	18
V. This Court Should Waive Any Prudential Exhaustion Requirement.	20

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Abramski v. United States, 573 U.S. 169 (2014). 12

Addington v. Texas, 441 U.S. 418 (1979)..... 20

Bangura v. Hansen, 434 F.3d 487 (6th Cir. 2006). 24

Beltran Barrera v. Tindall, No. 25-CV-541, 2025 WL 2690565 (W.D. Ky. Sept. 19, 2025)..... 18

Biden v. Texas, 597 U.S. 785 (2022). 6

Cabrera v. Walton, No. 10-CV-13654, 2010 WL 4974040 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 1, 2010). 25

Chogllo Chafra v. Scott, No. 25-CV-00437, 2025 WL 2688541 (D. Me. Sept. 21, 2025)..... 18

Cooper v. Zych, No. 09-CV-11620, 2009 WL 2711957 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 25, 2009). 23, 25

Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391 (1963). 25

Foucha v. Louisiana, 504 U.S. 71 (1992)..... 20

Gomes v. Hyde, No. 25-CV-11571, 2025 WL 1869299 (D. Mass. July 7, 2025) 10

Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, 542 U.S. 507 (2004). 21

Hechavarria v. Whitaker, 358 F. Supp. 3d 227 (W.D.N.Y. 2019). 23

Holloway v. Eichenlaub, No. 08-CV-11347, 2009 WL 416325, (E.D. Mich. Feb. 18, 2009). 25

Kansas v. Hendricks, 521 U.S. 346 (1997)..... 20

Kentucky v. Biden, 23 F.4th 585 (6th Cir. 2022) 12

Leng May Ma v. Barber, 357 U.S. 185 (1958). 20

Loper Bright Enters. v. Raimondo, 603 U.S. 369 (2024) 18, 19, 24

Lopez-Campos v. Raycraft, --- F.Supp.3d. ---, 2025 WL 2496379 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 29, 2025)..... passim

Martinez v. Hyde, --- F. Supp. 3d. ---, 2025 WL 2084238 (D. Mass. July 24, 2025). 5, 14

Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319 (1976)..... 21

Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I.&N. Dec. 216 (BIA 2025)..... 17, 18, 23

McCarthy v. Madigan, 503 U.S. 140 (1992). 23

McGee v. United States, 402 U.S. 479 (1971)..... 24

Merit Mgmt. Grp., LP v. FIT Consulting, Inc., 583 U.S. 366 (2018)..... 7

Monsalvo v. Bondi, 145 S. Ct. 1232 (2025)..... 10

Morales-Martinez v. Raycraft, 2025 WL 3124695.....25

Pizarro Reyes v. Raycraft, No. 25-CV-12546, 2025 WL 2609425 (E.D. Mich. Sept. 9, 2025) passim

Pulsifer v. United States, 601 U.S. 124 (2024)..... 12

Romero v. Hyde, --- F. Supp. 3d. ---, 2025 WL 2403827 (D. Mass. Aug. 19, 2025)..... 19

Salcedo Aceros v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-06924, 2025 WL 2637503 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2025)..... 15

Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs., P.A. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 559 U.S. 393 (2010)..... 9

Shalala v. Illinois Council on Long Term Care, 529 U.S. 1 (2000)..... 23

Shearson v. Holder, 725 F.3d 588 (6th Cir. 2013) 22

Shweika v. DHS, No. 09-CV-11781, 2015 WL 6541689 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 29, 2015). 25

Skidmore v. Swift & Co., 323 U.S. 134 (1944)..... 19

Star Athletica, L.L.C. v. Varsity Brands, Inc., 580 U.S. 405 (2017) 12

Sterkaj v. Gonzales, 439 F.3d 273 (6th Cir. 2006) 24

Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386 (1995) 10

TRW Inc. v. Andrews, 534 U.S. 19 (2001)..... 12

United Sav. Ass’n of Tex. v. Timbers of Inwood Forest Assocs., Ltd., 484 U.S. 365 (1988)..... 6

United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739 (1987)..... 20

United States, ex rel. Polansky v. Exec. Health Res., Inc., 599 U.S. 419
 (2023)..... 11

Valencia Zapata v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-07492, 2025 WL 2741654 (N.D. Cal.
 Sept. 26, 2025)..... 18

Williams v. Zych, No. 09-CV-12173, 2010 WL 200847 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 15, 2010). 25

Yates v. United States, 574 U.S. 528 (2015)..... 13

Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678 (2001). 19, 20, 21

Statutes

28 U.S.C. §2243..... 25

8 U.S.C. §1101 14

8 U.S.C. §1182 10

8 U.S.C. §1226..... 7, 9, 17

Pub L. No. 119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025)..... 10

Other Authorities

62 Fed. Reg. 10,312 (Mar. 6, 1997)..... 8

H.R. Rep. No. 104-469 (1996)..... 8

Kyle Cheney & Myah Ward, Trump’s new detention policy targets millions of immigrants. Judges keep saying it’s illegal, Politico (Sept. 20, 2025)..... 2

ISSUES PRESENTED

1. Are Respondents unlawfully detaining Petitioner without a bond hearing under 8 U.S.C. §1225(b)(2)(A), which applies only to the inspection and detention of recent arrivals at or near the border?
2. Is Petitioner entitled to a bond hearing under 8 U.S.C. §1226(a), which virtually every court to consider the question has found applies to noncitizens who, like Petitioner, were residing in the United States when they were apprehended and charged with inadmissibility?
3. Should this Court declare that the deviation of policy by the agency is arbitrary and capricious under 5 U.S.C. §706(2)(A), entitling the Petitioner to a bond hearing under 8 U.S.C. §1226(a)?
4. Have Respondents violated the Due Process Clause by detaining Petitioner, who is a long-time resident of the United States, without any individualized determination that Petitioner is a flight risk or danger such that their civil detention is necessary to facilitate removal?
5. Should this Court, like all others that have considered such claims, exercise its discretion to waive prudential exhaustion requirements and proceed to the merits of Petitioner's habeas corpus petition, which raises urgent statutory and constitutional claims regarding Petitioner's ongoing unlawful detention?

CONTROLLING OR MOST APPROPRIATE AUTHORITY

28 U.S.C. § 2241

8 U.S.C. § 1226

U.S. Const. amend. V

Other Cases Raising the Same Merits and Exhaustion Issues

For a non-exhaustive list of cases raising identical issues, see Petition, ¶ 49.

Caselaw Pertaining to Statutory Claim

Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281 (2018)

King v. Burwell, 576 U.S. 473 (2015)

United Sav. Ass'n of Tex. v. Timbers of Inwood Forest Assoc., 484 U.S. 365 (1988)

Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs., P.A. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 559 U.S. 393 (2010)

Abramski v. United States, 573 U.S. 169 (2014)

Caselaw Pertaining to Due Process Claim

Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678 (2001)

United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739 (1987)

Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319 (1976)

Caselaw Pertaining to Arbitrary and Capricious Claim

Judulang v. Holder, 565 U.S. 42 (2011)

Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass'n v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29 (1983)

Caselaw Pertaining to Prudential Exhaustion

Shearson v. Holder, 725 F.3d 588 (6th Cir. 2013).

Shalala v. Illinois Council on Long Term Care, 529 U.S. 1 (2000)

McCarthy v. Madigan, 503 U.S. 140 (1992)

Bangura v. Hansen, 434 F.3d 487 (6th Cir. 2006)

McGee v. United States, 402 U.S. 479 (1971)

INTRODUCTION

Petitioner Jose Luis Velazquez Velazquez has lived in the United States continuously since 2003 and, with his wife, are the parents of three U.S. citizen children. On October 25, 2025, he was taken into ICE custody. Had he been arrested before July 2025, he would have received a bond hearing or been granted bond. However, due to recent BIA decisions and a new government policy reversing long-standing statutory interpretation, he is now being detained indefinitely while his case remains pending – separated from his family and community. This abrupt policy shift violates his statutory and constitutional rights, and he urgently seeks a writ of habeas corpus for his release.

BACKGROUND

This habeas action challenges the federal government's July 8, 2025 policy requiring mandatory detention without bond under 8 U.S.C. §1225(b)(2)(A) for noncitizens apprehended in the interior, regardless of their years in the United States. See Pet. ¶7. The Policy abruptly overturned decades of established law and practice recognizing eligibility for bond hearings under 8 U.S.C. §1226(a). Id. ¶¶6–8. If left standing, it could impact millions. See Kyle Cheney & Myah Ward, Trump's new detention policy targets millions of immigrants. Judges keep saying it's illegal, Politico (Sept. 20, 2025).¹

¹ <https://www.politico.com/news/2025/09/20/ice-detention-immigration-policy-00573850>.

Additionally, in Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025), the Board of Immigration Appeals found that any noncitizen who is present in the United States without having been inspected and admitted is subject to detention under INA §235(b)(2), not INA §236(a), stripping Immigration Judges of jurisdiction over custody redetermination. This decision is based on the new Policy and is already being widely rejected by federal courts.

Respondents' sudden decision to detain noncitizens without bond under §1225(b)(2)(A) was quickly met with a tsunami of habeas litigation across the country. And in virtually every single case that directly addresses the question, federal courts nationwide, including this Honorable Court, have flatly rejected the government's attempt to apply §1225(b)(2)(A) to longtime residents who were apprehended in the interior of the country and charged with inadmissibility. See Pet. at ¶ 46 (citing non-exhaustive list of federal district court decisions granting habeas relief to petitioners in identical habeas corpus actions).

Respondents continue to unlawfully detain thousands of noncitizens, like Petitioner, apprehended in the interior of the country without any possibility of bond. The details of Petitioner's apprehension and detention are included in the underlying Petition. Petitioner allegedly entered the U.S. without inspection. Petitioner has resided in this country for 22 years. Petitioner does not have any crimes on his record that would result in mandatory detention under 8 U.S.C. §1226(c).

After apprehending Petitioner, Respondents detained Petitioner at North Lake

Correctional Facility in Baldwin, Michigan, which is under the jurisdiction of the ICE Detroit Field Office. Id. at ¶ 29. ICE either decided to continue detention under the Policy or did not conduct a custody determination at all. Id. at ¶ 30. Petitioner was advised by his immigration counsel that seeking a bond hearing would be futile. Id. at ¶ 34.

Petitioner then filed this habeas corpus petition alleging (1) that Petitioner’s continued detention without a bond hearing violates the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), which clearly provides that Petitioner’s detention should be governed by §1226(a)’s discretionary detention scheme; and (2) that Petitioner’s detention violates his due process rights because Petitioner is being detained without any individualized determination of flight risk or danger such that his civil detention is necessary to facilitate removal.

ARGUMENT

The structure, text, and legislative history of the INA make clear that §1225 applies only to the inspection of recent arrivals at or near the U.S. border and was never meant to encompass people like Petitioner who have been residing in the interior of the country for years. Instead, §1226 was intended to provide the proper process for detaining those latter individuals. Additionally, parsing the specific text of §1225(b)(2)(A) further demonstrates that the provision clearly does not apply to Petitioner, since he is not an “applicant for admission” who is “seeking admission” before an “examining immigration officer.”

The Structure, Text and Legislative History of the INA Make Clear that §1225 Applies Only to the Inspection of Recent Arrivals, while §1226 Governs the Detention of Residents Like Petitioner.

The text, structure, and purpose of the INA all support Petitioner’s argument that §1226(a) governs their detention, and not §1225(b)(2)(A). As Petitioner explained in the petition, §1226(a) and §1225(b)(2)(A) work in tandem to cover different categories of noncitizens: §1226 provides a discretionary detention scheme for individuals who are arrested while “already in the country” and detained “pending the outcome of removal proceedings,” Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 289 (2018), while §1225 (including its subsection (b)(2)(A)) is a processing and inspection scheme that applies to those “at the Nation’s borders and ports of entry, where the Government must determine whether a[] [noncitizen] seeking to enter the country is admissible,” Id. at 287. Indeed, there is a “line historically drawn between these two sections” and the categories of noncitizens they respectively cover. Martinez v. Hyde, --- F. Supp. 3d. ---, 2025 WL 2084238, at *8 (D. Mass. July 24, 2025).

This understanding situates each detention provision “in their context and with a view to their place in the overall statutory scheme.” King v. Burwell, 576 U.S. 473, 486 (2015) (citation omitted). See also Biden v. Texas, 597 U.S. 785, 799-800 (2022) (looking to statutory structure to inform interpretation of INA provision). Placing a provision in its larger context is especially important where the provision “may seem ambiguous in isolation” but can be “clarified by the remainder of the statutory scheme . . . because only one of the permissible meanings produces a substantive effect that is compatible with the rest of the law.” United Sav. Ass’n of Tex. v. Timbers of Inwood Forest Assocs., Ltd., 484 U.S. 365, 371 (1988). And the one meaning which permits a logical and compatible effect here is that §1225 and §1226 each cover different categories of noncitizens.

Section 1225’s plain text shows that it is focused on inspecting people who are arriving or have just entered the United States. See generally 8 U.S.C. §1225(a)–(b), (d). That section sets out procedures for “inspection[s]” of people “arriving in the United States,” 8 U.S.C. §1225(a)(3), (b)(1), (b)(2), (d); repeatedly refers to “examining immigration officer[s],” id. §1225(b)(2)(A), (b)(4); and discusses “stowaways, “crewmen,” and noncitizens “arriving from contiguous territory.” Id. § 1225(a)(2), (b)(2)(B), (b)(2)(C). Even the title of §1225 refers to the “inspection” of “inadmissible arriving” noncitizens (emphasis added), and the title of subsection 1225(b)(2) likewise refers to “inspection.” See Dubin v. United States, 599 U.S. 110, 120–21 (2023) (“This Court has long considered that the title of a statute and the heading of a section are tools available for the resolution of a doubt about the meaning of a statute . . . especially . . . [where] it reinforces what the text’s nouns and verbs independently suggest.”) (cleaned up); Merit Mgmt. Grp., LP v. FIT Consulting, Inc., 583 U.S. 366, 380 (2018) (similar). Thus, by its own text, §1225, read as a whole, makes clear that it is intended to apply to recent arrivals at or near the U.S. border, which is not Petitioner’s case.

On the other hand, §1226(a) is a separate detention authority that applies broadly to any noncitizen arrested “on a warrant . . . pending a decision on whether [they are] to be removed from the United States.” 8 U.S.C. §1226(a). Section 1226(a) thus applies to those “already in the country” who are detained “pending the outcome of removal proceedings.” Jennings, 583 U.S. at 289. On its face, the provision plainly applies to Petitioner, who was arrested while already in the U.S. and is now detained “pending a decision on” his removal. Id. Thus, §1226(a), and not §1225(b)(2)(A), is the proper detention authority for Petitioner.

The legislative history and implementing regulations likewise make clear that §1226(a) was always intended to apply to people who entered without inspection and are residing in the United States. See H.R. Rep. No. 104-469, pt. 1, at 229 (1996) (noting Congress’s intent for §1226(a) to simply “restate” its predecessor statute, which provided “the authority of the Attorney General to arrest, detain, and release on bond a[] [noncitizen] who is not lawfully in the United States”) (emphasis added); Inspection and Expedited Removal of Aliens; Detention and Removal of Aliens; Conduct of Removal Proceedings; Asylum Procedures, 62 Fed. Reg. 10,312, 10,323 (Mar. 6, 1997) (explaining that “[noncitizens] who are present without having been admitted or paroled (formerly referred to as aliens who entered without inspection) will be eligible for bond and bond redetermination[,]” and “[I]nadmissible [noncitizens], except for arriving [noncitizens], have available to them bond redetermination hearings before an immigration judge This procedure maintains the status quo.”).

This been Respondents’ own understanding of these provisions since they were first enacted thirty years ago—a view they held until suddenly reversing course in July. Indeed, Respondents’ own understanding of §1226(a) as covering people in the interior was so uncontroversial for so long that it is now deeply entrenched in DHS’s operations. For example, the Notice to Appear form used to initiate removal proceedings against Petitioner distinguishes between noncitizens “arriving” into the United States and those already “present in the United States.” (Here, DHS deliberately chose not to select the “arriving” option, instead only designating that Petitioner was “present in the United States.”

But now, Respondents suddenly contend that §1226(a) does not apply to people like Petitioner who are charged with inadmissibility but have long resided in the United States, thus denying bond hearings to Petitioner and thousands like him. Respondents’ new reading defies the plain text of §1226, which expressly applies to “inadmissible” noncitizens. Section 1226(a) states that noncitizens detained via a warrant while facing removal proceedings may be released on bond or parole “[e]xcept as provided in subsection (c).” 8 U.S.C. §1226(a). Subsection (c), in turn, exempts certain “inadmissible” noncitizens from §1226(a)’s discretionary detention scheme. These “statutory exceptions would be unnecessary” if Congress did not intend for §1226(a) to cover noncitizens alleged to be inadmissible, like Petitioner here. Shady Grove Orthopedic Assocs., P.A. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 559 U.S. 393, 400 (2010). See also Rodriguez v. Bostock, 779 F. Supp. 3d 1239, 1256–57 (W.D. Wash. 2025) (discussing §1226 and explaining that “when Congress creates ‘specific exceptions’ to a statute’s applicability, it ‘proves’ that absent those exceptions, the statute generally applies.” (quoting Shady Grove, 559 U.S. at 400)).

Moreover, Congress added one of these references to inadmissibility just this year. In the Laken Riley Act, Congress added subsection §1226(c)(1)(E), which mandates detention for noncitizens who have been arrested for, charged with, or convicted of certain crimes and who are also inadmissible under various provisions of the INA, including §1182(a)(6)(A)—the statute under which Petitioner here is charged, and which applies to “aliens present in the United States without being admitted or paroled.” See Pub L. No. 119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025). By classifying these inadmissible noncitizens as ineligible for bond under §1226(c) if they satisfy additional conditions regarding their criminal history, Congress reaffirmed that § 1226 encompasses the detention of inadmissible noncitizens. Indeed, “when Congress acts to amend a statute, we presume it intends its amendment to have real and substantial effect.” Stone v. INS, 514 U.S. 386, 397 (1995). See also Monsalvo v. Bondi, 145 S. Ct. 1232, 1242 (2025) (“[w]hen Congress adopts a new law against the backdrop of a longstanding administrative construction,” courts “generally presume[] the new provision should be understood to work in harmony with what has come before.”) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Respondents’ preferred reading of the INA, which categorically places noncitizens charged with inadmissibility under §1225(b)(2)(A), “‘would largely nullify a statute Congress enacted this very year, [and] must be rejected.’” Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *5 (quoting Gomes v. Hyde, No. 25-CV-11571, 2025 WL 1869299, at *7 (D. Mass. July 7, 2025)). See also Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *8 (“Respondents’ interpretation of the statutes would render this recently amended section superfluous.”). That, again, is so because, if every noncitizen who entered without inspection was already subject to mandatory detention under §1225(b)(2)(A), there would be no need for a separate provision (i.e., § 1226(c)) mandating detention if they also satisfied additional conditions.

In sum, the only reading of §1226 that gives meaning to all of its parts is that it encompasses people like Petitioner who were apprehended in the interior and are charged with being inadmissible because they entered the country without inspection. Thus, because § 1226(a) clearly governs Petitioner’s detention, granting his habeas petition would uphold the INA’s text, structure, and intent.

Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Also Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not an “Applicant for Admission” Who Is “Seeking Admission” Before an “Immigration Officer.”

Respondents’ attempt to subject Petitioner to mandatory detention under §1225(b)(2)(A) defies the plain text of that provision. Congress made clear that to fall under Section §1225(b)(2)(A), noncitizens must satisfy three criteria: that they be (1) an “applicant for admission” who is (2) “seeking admission” to the United States (3) before an “immigration officer.” By using these three unique terms in the same provision, Congress meant for each of them to introduce distinct requirements that must all be satisfied before the provision applies. See United States, ex rel. Polansky v. Exec. Health Res., Inc., 599 U.S. 419, 432 (2023) (“[E]very clause and word of a statute should have meaning.” (internal quotations omitted)); TRW Inc. v. Andrews, 534 U.S. 19, 31 (2001) (similar); Pulsifer v. United States, 601 U.S. 124, 141 (2024) (similar). Petitioner does not satisfy any of these three criteria, let alone all of them. Thus, §1225(b)(2)(A) cannot govern Petitioner’s detention.

Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not an “Applicant for Admission.”

At the outset, it is questionable whether Petitioner is an “applicant for admission” as that term is used in §1225(b)(2)(A). Section 1225(a)(1) defines an “applicant for admission” as a person who is

. . . present in the United States who has not been admitted or who arrives in the United States (whether or not at a designated port of arrival and including an alien who is brought to the United States after having been interdicted in international or United States waters).

In a vacuum, the first clause of this definition might appear to encompass Petitioner. But it is an axiomatic principle of statutory interpretation that “we must (as usual) interpret the relevant words not in a vacuum, but with reference to the statutory context, structure, history, and purpose.” Abramski v. United States, 573 U.S. 169, 179 (2014) (citation modified). See also King, 576 U.S. at 486 (statutory terms must be understood “in their context and with a view to their place in the overall statutory scheme”) (citation omitted); Kentucky v. Biden, 23 F.4th 585, 603 (6th Cir. 2022) (each word must be given “its ordinary, contemporary, common meaning, while keeping in mind that statutory language has meaning only in context.”) (cleaned up). This is the case even when a statutory term seems unambiguous, such as when it is defined in the statute. See Yates v. United States, 574 U.S. 528, 537 (2015).

Under any reasonable and context-sensitive understanding of these terms, Petitioner is not an “applicant for admission.” When viewed in its statutory context, this term cannot be understood without acknowledging Congress’s choice to deploy the term within § 1225’s border inspection scheme. See Section I. That context underscores that the definition in (a)(1) is limited by other aspects of the statute to those who undergo an initial inspection at or near the border shortly after arrival. See Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *5 (“The Court finds that the overall context of §1225 limits the scope of the terms ‘applicant for admission’ and ‘seeking admission.’”). Moreover, the term “applicant for admission” appears nowhere in §1226, the “default” detention statute applying to those “already” in the country. Jennings, 583 U.S. at 288, 301. This comparative context further clarifies that the term refers to a specific category of “arriving” noncitizens being “inspected” at or near the border. See 8 U.S.C. §1225. And Petitioner, of course, is not at the border applying for admission. Thus, Petitioner cannot be detained under §1225(b)(2)(A).

Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not “Seeking Admission” to the United States.

But whether or not Petitioner is an “applicant for admission,” §1225(b)(2)(A) also requires an independent and separate showing that Petitioner is “seeking admission” to the United States—which Petitioner very clearly is not. The term “seeking admission” is not defined anywhere in the INA,² making the structure and context of §1225 even more instructive. Interpreting the INA properly shows that “seeking admission” describes a narrow class of recent arrivals who are presenting themselves for admission at or near the border. Petitioner clearly does not fall within that class.

Again, the structure, text, and legislative history of §1225 clearly show that it deals with inspections of recent arrivals at or near the border. See Section I. By deploying “seeking admission” within §1225’s border inspection scheme—and not §1226—Congress intended to limit this term to covering just the detention of noncitizens seeking admission at or near the border. See Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425 at *5; Martinez, 2025 WL 2084238, at *8. That is why the statute’s implementing regulations, which were “promulgated mere months after passage of the statute and have remained consistent over time,” Lopez Benitez v. Francis, --- F. Supp. 3d. ---, 2025 WL 2371588, at *7 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 13, 2025) (cleaned up), describe those seeking admission as “arriving aliens,” 8 C.F.R. §235.3(c)(1), who are “coming or attempting to come into the United States,” 8 C.F.R. §1.2 (emphasis added). See Martinez, 2025 WL 2084238 at *6 (the regulations’ use of “arriving alien” is “roughly interchangeable with an ‘applicant . . . seeking admission’” as used in §1225(b)(2)(A)). See also Salcedo Aceros v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-06924, 2025 WL 2637503, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2025) (same). Thus, only those who take affirmative steps to seek admission while “coming or attempting to come into the United States” can reasonably be said to be “seeking admission” under § 1225(b)(2)(A). See Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379 at *7 (“seeking admission” refers to “when people are being inspected, which usually occurs at the border, when they are seeking lawful entry into this country”).

² At most, the INA provides a definition only for the word “admission”: “the lawful entry of the [noncitizen] into the United States after inspection and authorization by an immigration officer.” 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(13)(A). But this partial definition does not help clarify what the affirmative act of “seeking admission” entails in the context of § 1225(b)(2)(A). And in any event, it does not describe what Petitioner is doing here: Petitioner is not before an “immigration officer.” See Section II.c., infra.

Petitioner is not presenting himself for admission at the border; he arrived at the border years ago and has been residing in the United States since. Petitioner simply wishes to remain in the country he has long called home—not to enter it. Thus, Petitioner cannot be considered to be “seeking admission” in any reasonable way, rendering § 1225(b)(2)(A) wholly inapplicable to Petitioner’s detention.

Section 1225(b)(2)(A) Cannot Apply to Petitioner Because Petitioner Is Not Being “Examined” by an “Immigration Officer.”

Third, even if Petitioner was somehow found to be an “applicant for admission” who is “seeking admission,” §1225(b)(2)(A) would only authorize Petitioner’s mandatory detention if an “immigration officer” “examin[ed]” Petitioner and “determine[d]” that he was clearly inadmissible. Petitioner is currently in removal proceedings before an immigration judge, with the opportunity for further review by the BIA and the federal courts, who are tasked with determining whether Petitioner is inadmissible and subject to removal, or whether Petitioner is entitled to any relief from removal. But immigration judges are not immigration officers as that term is used in the statute. Nor are federal judges.

The term “immigration officer” is defined in the statute’s implementing regulations as “the following employees of the Department of Homeland Security,” such as asylum officers, deportation officers, and Border Patrol agents. 8 C.F.R. §1.2 (emphasis added). Notably, the definition does not encompass immigration judges and appellate immigration judges, who are employees of the Department of Justice (the parent agency for the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR), Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA), and immigration courts) and are covered under a separate definition for “immigration judge.” See 8 C.F.R. §1.2. Thus, even if Petitioner was somehow an “applicant for admission” who is also “seeking admission” into the United States, Petitioner still would not fall within §1225(b)(2)(A) because his removal proceedings are before an immigration judge, not an immigration officer.

Section 1225(b)(2)(A)'s use of the term "examining immigration officer" gives further weight to the structural argument that §1225 obviously sets out a scheme for inspections at or near the border, where arriving noncitizens will typically be examined by an "immigration officer"—such as when they are apprehended by a Border Patrol agent or interviewed by an asylum officer. Petitioner, however, is not being examined by immigration officers at or near the border. Instead, Petitioner is charged by a warrant with having entered the country without authorization and has now been placed in removal proceedings before an immigration judge, where he is seeking various forms of relief from removal. This is clearly not the circumstance contemplated by §1225(b)(2)(A). Instead, it is the circumstance contemplated by §1226 (covering people who are "pending a decision [by the immigration courts] on whether [they are] to be removed from the U.S.>").

In sum, under any reasonable interpretation of §1225, Petitioner is not an "applicant for admission" who is "seeking admission" before an "examining immigration officer." The simple reality is that Petitioner is not trying to enter the United States; he is already here. Thus, §1225(b)(2)(A) has no role in Petitioner's ability to be detained pending a decision on their removal.

The BIA's Recent Decision Upholding the Respondents' Practice is Unavailing.

Finally, the fact that the BIA recently affirmed Respondents' practice does not change this conclusion. In Matter of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025), the BIA ruled that people who "surreptitiously cross into the United States" qualify as "applicants for admission" under §1225(b)(2)(A), and thus Immigration Judges "have no authority to redetermine the custody conditions of a [noncitizen] who crossed the border unlawfully without inspection," even if that noncitizen has lived in the United States for years. Id. at 228. Not only is the BIA's misguided reasoning in Yajure Hurtado out of step with virtually every federal court to treat the same issue, but this Court is not bound by the BIA's interpretation of federal statutes.

First, a multitude of federal courts—including in decisions issued after Yajure Hurtado—have addressed the exact same question and explicitly rejected the reasoning underlying the BIA's ruling as unpersuasive and at odds with INA's text and structure. See, e.g., Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *6–7; Beltran Barrera v. Tindall, No. 25-CV-541, 2025 WL 2690565, at *5 (W.D. Ky. Sept. 19, 2025); Chogllo Chafra v. Scott, No. 25-CV-00437, 2025 WL 2688541, at *7–8 (D. Me. Sept. 21, 2025). As the Northern District of California explained, the BIA's "strained interpretation" "treats the phrases 'applicant for admission' and 'seeking admission' as synonymous, which renders the phrase 'seeking admission' in section 1225(b)(2) superfluous." Valencia Zapata v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-07492, 2025 WL 2741654, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2025). See also Beltran Barrera, 2025 WL 2690565, at *5 (“it [is] difficult to find that an individual is ‘seeking admission’ when that noncitizen never attempted to do so.”).

Second, federal courts are “not bound by the BIA’s interpretation” of the INA. Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425 at *6. To the contrary, federal courts “must exercise independent judgment in determining the meaning of statutory provisions.” Loper Bright Enters. v. Raimondo, 603 U.S. 369, 394, 412 (2024). A court’s decision of whether to find an agency interpretation persuasive depends on “the thoroughness evident in its consideration, the validity of its reasoning, its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control.” Skidmore v. Swift & Co., 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944). And here, the BIA’s reasoning in Yajure Hurtado fails to explain why or how dozens of federal courts have gotten the answer wrong. And it fails to explain why the agency itself held the contrary position for decades. “Realistically speaking, if Congress’s intention was so clear, why did it take thirty years to notice?” Romero v. Hyde, 2025 WL 2403827, at *12 (D. Mass. Aug. 19, 2025).

Thus, like every federal court to consider the persuasiveness of Yajure Hurtado, this Court should decline to follow the superficial reasoning of the BIA and instead exercise its “independent judgment in determining the meaning of statutory provisions.” Loper Bright, 603 U.S. at 394.

ICE's Deviation from its own Policy is "Arbitrary and Capricious"

Petitioner's ongoing detention by ICE is arbitrary and capricious. An agency's action is arbitrary and capricious when the agency strays from its policy and fails to consider all relevant factors, fails to provide an adequate explanation for its decision, or the agency has departed from prior policies and procedures without justification. Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass'n v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29 (1983). An agency's action is not arbitrary and capricious when there exists a discernable relationship between policy and legislative intent. Judulang v. Holder, 565 U.S. 42 (2011). As reiterated from Section I above, the legislative intent of 8 U.S.C. sec. 1226(a) is a discretionary detention scheme for noncitizens who are "already in the country" and detained "pending the outcome of removal proceedings," Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 289 (2018).

The Mayorkas Memorandum highlights with specificity the noncitizens that are a priority for removal and detention. Mayorkas, Alejandro N., "Guidelines for the Enforcement of Civil Immigration Law," Memorandum, U.S. Dept. Of Homeland Security, Sept. 30, 2021, <http://www.ice.gov/doclib/news/guidelines-civilimmigrationlaw.pdf>. ICE's recent detention of Petitioner, who was previously released on bond—declared not to be a flight risk—and now has been detained again without explanation pursuant to a new policy violates the APA. ICE's reliance on mandatory detention pursuant to 8 USC §1225 has strayed away from existing standards in both case law, legislative intent, and its own internal policies. The agency's action's have no discernable relationship with the legislative intent of 8 USC §1226(a) and without the agency being able to show why Petitioner is an exception not listed within the language of the INA, even after the Petitioner has been previously authorized bond by the agency itself, is arbitrary and capricious. Judulang v. Holder at 64.

Due Process Entitles Petitioner to a Bond Hearing.

Petitioner's ongoing detention without bond also violates his due process rights.³ At the "heart" of the Fifth Amendment's due process clause is "the freedom from imprisonment—government custody, detention, and other forms of physical restraint." Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 690 (2001). Depriving a person of their liberty is only permissible as punishment for crimes, or in "certain special and narrow nonpunitive [i.e. civil] circumstances." Id. (quotation omitted). That due process guarantee extends to noncitizens regardless of "whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent." Id. at 693.⁴

³ Interpretations of the detention provisions of the INA that raise serious constitutional doubts must be rejected whenever it is "fairly possible" to do so, such as when reasonable statutory interpretation resolves a question about the applicability of a statute. Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 689 (2001).

⁴ While the government may argue that due process protections are diminished for some people who are apprehended while crossing the border, see DHS v. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. 103, 139 (2020), that is not true for people like Petitioner who have resided in the U.S. and "develop[ed] the ties that go with" longtime residence.

Civil immigration detention is not punishment for a crime. Thus, it can only be justified “where a special [non-punitive] justification . . . outweighs the individual’s constitutionally protected interest” in liberty—usually only by a finding that such detention is necessary to prevent their flight or protect against dangers to the community. Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690 (cleaned up); see also United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 750 (1987). A hearing on whether such a special justification necessitates civil detention is the most basic protection required by the Fifth Amendment. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690; Foucha, 504 U.S. at 79; Kansas v. Hendricks, 521 U.S. 346, 357 (1997); Addington v. Texas, 441 U.S. 418, 428 (1979). And the nature of that hearing is governed by the classic balancing test from Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 334–35 (1976). That test weighs (1) the nature of “the private interest” being deprived; (2) “the risk of erroneous deprivation” and (3) the “fiscal and administrative burdens” posed by providing additional process. Id. All three Mathews factors favor Petitioner.

As to the private interest, Petitioner invokes “the most elemental of liberty interests—the interest in being free from physical detention by one’s own government.” Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, 542 U.S. 507, 529 (2004). Meanwhile, the government’s interest in detaining Petitioner is limited to ensuring their appearance at their future

Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 32 (1982). Indeed, there has long been a legal “distinction between those [noncitizens] who have come to our shores seeking admission . . . and those who are within the United States after an entry, irrespective of its legality.” Leng May Ma v. Barber, 357 U.S. 185, 187 (1958) (emphasis added).

immigration proceedings (i.e., “flight risk”) and preventing danger to the community. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690. But because Respondents denied Petitioner a proper bond hearing, “there is nothing in the record demonstrating that [Petitioner] is a flight risk or a danger to the community.” Lopez Benitez, 2025 WL 2371588, at *12. Therefore, the risk of erroneously depriving Petitioner of physical freedom is unbearably high. See Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *9 (“the risk of erroneously depriving [petitioner] of his freedom is high if the IJ fails to assess his risk of flight and dangerousness.”). Without the bond hearing that he is entitled to under §1226(a), Petitioner will never be able to present the compelling reasons that he is neither a flight risk nor a danger. See Pet. at ¶¶ 31, 32. Nor can the government complain about the administrative burden of providing hearings that it has provided for decades. Lastly, the government has not and likely cannot show a significant interest in petitioner’s continued detention given his history and the mitigating factors of his case as his continued detention would lead to increased costs.

This Court Should Waive Any Prudential Exhaustion Requirement.

Respondents are likely to ask this Court to require Petitioner to first seek a bond hearing in immigration court, or to appeal their jurisdictional bond denials to the BIA, before seeking habeas relief. But for a habeas corpus petition under §2241, the exhaustion of administrative remedies is not a statutory or jurisdictional requirement, but rather a prudential matter of this Court’s discretion. See Shearson v.

Holder, 725 F.3d 588, 593 (6th Cir. 2013). In identical petitions, courts around the country—including two cases in the Eastern District of Michigan—have consistently waived prudential exhaustion requirements. In Morales-Martinez v. Raycraft, 2025 WL 3124695, the court finds “[N]o applicable status or rules requires administrative exhaustion in this case.” Morales-Martinez v. Raycraft, citing Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *5, Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *4.⁵ This Court should exercise its discretion to do the same here.

Petitioner briefly runs through the four primary circumstances when courts waive prudential exhaustion requirements—all of which strongly favor waiver here. First, courts consider whether “pursuit of administrative remedies would be a futile gesture.” Shearson, 725 F.3d at 594. Here, requiring Petitioner to wait for an immigration judge to deny a bond hearing or for the BIA to deny a bond appeal would be futile. Waiver based on futility is especially appropriate when the administrative agency “has predetermined the disputed issue” by having a “clearly stated position” that the petitioner is not eligible for the relief sought. Cooper v. Zych, No. 09-CV-11620, 2009 WL 2711957, at *2 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 25, 2009). See also McCarthy v. Madigan, 503 U.S. 140, 148 (1992) (same). Because the BIA recently issued a precedential, binding decision holding that all noncitizens who entered without admission or parole are ineligible for § 1226(a) bond hearings, see

⁵ See also Pet. at ¶ 108 (citing forty-two decisions in identical habeas corpus actions, all of which waived prudential exhaustion requirements if presented with the issue).

Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216, the BIA and IJ will undoubtedly deny Petitioner's bond request. Thus, seeking bond is futile because Respondents have "predetermined the disputed issue." Cooper, 2009 WL 2711957, at *2.

Second, courts waive prudential exhaustion requirements when the "legal question is fit for resolution and delay means hardship." Shalala v. Illinois Council on Long Term Care, 529 U.S. 1, 13 (2000) (cleaned up). On average, the BIA took over six months to decide bond appeals in 2024, with hundreds of cases taking a year or longer to resolve. See Rodriguez, 779 F. Supp. 3d at 1245 (2025). Here, the "delays inherent in the administrative process . . . would result in the very harm that the bond hearing was designed to prevent: prolonged detention without due process." Hechavarria v. Whitaker, 358 F. Supp. 3d 227, 237 (W.D.N.Y. 2019) (cleaned up). Meanwhile, "the legal question" of which detention statute properly applies "is 'fit' for resolution." Shalala, 529 U.S. at 13. The legality of Petitioner's detention is a pure question of statutory interpretation and constitutional due process analysis. Thus, because the Court can decide these purely legal questions now, Petitioner "could be released within a few weeks as compared to the anticipated half-year wait through the BIA appeal route." Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *4.

Third, waiver is appropriate when a petitioner raises "non-frivolous" constitutional questions that cannot be adequately addressed through the administrative process. Bangura v. Hansen, 434 F.3d 487, 494 (6th Cir. 2006). Petitioner's due process arguments, see Section III, are far from frivolous. In fact, this Court has already ruled that the mandatory detention of an identical petitioner “is a violation of his due process rights.” Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *10. Since the “BIA lacks authority to review constitutional challenges,” Sterkaj v. Gonzales, 439 F.3d 273, 279 (6th Cir. 2006), “[n]either an immigration judge nor the Board of Immigration Appeals is positioned to properly adjudicate” Petitioner’s due process claim. Lopez Benitez, 2025 WL 2371588, at *14.

Fourth, waiver of prudential exhaustion is appropriate because there is no need for IJs or the BIA to “make a factual record” or “apply [their] expertise.” McGee v. United States, 402 U.S. 479, 484 (1971). There are no factual disputes, obviating any need for factual development. And the immigration courts have no expertise in matters of statutory interpretation, which is “the proper and peculiar province of the courts,” Loper Bright Enters., 603 U.S. at 385 (cleaned up), or in analyzing constitutional claims, which IJs wholly “lack[] authority to review,” Sterkaj, 439 F.3d at 279. Thus, it would not impair agency functions for this Court to promptly address matters the agency is not equipped to handle in the first place.

Finally, the need for waiver is amplified in the context of a habeas corpus petition, which demands a “swift” remedy in the face of illegal detention. Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391, 400 (1963). See also 28 U.S.C. §2243. Requiring prior administrative exhaustion will serve only to prolong that illegal detention. Indeed, “[w]hen the liberty of a person is at stake, every day that passes is a critical one,” thus necessitating habeas petitions to “be met with a sense of urgency.” Lopez-

Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *5. Unsurprisingly, then, this Court regularly waives prudential exhaustion requirements in §2241 habeas actions, including in recent actions identical to this one.⁶ This Court should again exercise its discretion to do so here and proceed to the merits of this petition.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Petitioner respectfully urges this Court to grant Petitioner's habeas corpus petition and order Respondents to immediately release him from custody or, in the alternative, to provide him with a bond hearing within seven (7) days.

Respectfully submitted,
/s/ Sufen Hilf.
Counsel for Petitioner
Hilf & Hilf, PLC
3155 W Big Beaver Road, Suite 123, Troy, MI 48084
Ph: (248) 792-2590 / Fax: (248) 885-8996
sufen@hilfandhilf.com

Dated: November 18, 2025

LOCAL RULE CERTIFICATION: I, Sufen Hilf, certify that this document complies with Local Rule 5.1(a), including: double-spaced (except for quoted materials and footnotes); at least one-inch margins on the top, sides, and bottom; consecutive page numbering; and type size of all text and footnotes that is no smaller than 10-1/2 characters per inch (for non-proportional fonts) or 14 point (for proportional fonts). I also certify that it is the appropriate length. Local Rule 7.1(d)(3).

⁶ See, e.g., Lopez-Campos, 2025 WL 2496379, at *5; Pizarro Reyes, 2025 WL 2609425, at *4; Cooper, 2009 WL 2711957, at *2; Shweika v. DHS, No. 09-CV-11781, 2015 WL 6541689, at *12 (E.D. Mich. Oct. 29, 2015); Holloway v. Eichenlaub, No. 08-CV-11347, 2009 WL 416325, at *1 (E.D. Mich. Feb. 18, 2009); Williams v. Zych, No. 09-CV-12173, 2010 WL 200847, at *1 (E.D. Mich. Jan. 15, 2010); Cabrera v. Walton, No. 10-CV-13654, 2010 WL 4974040, at *1 (E.D. Mich. Dec. 1, 2010).

/s/ Sufen Hilf