I. Introduction

Petitioner Osmel Benito Reyes-Albenas has filed a habeas petition and a motion for temporary restraining order. ECF Nos. 1, 3. On November 21, 2025, the Court issued an order to show cause as to why the petition should not be granted. ECF No. 5. For purposes of judicial efficiency, given the petition and motion for temporary restraining order assert the same claims and seek the same relief, Respondents respectfully respond to both the petition and motion herein. For the reasons set forth below, the Court should deny Petitioner’s request for interim relief and dismiss the petition.

II. Factual and Procedural Background

Petitioner is a citizen and national of Cuba. See Declaration of Osmel Benito Reyes-Albenas ¶ 1, ECF No. 1-2 at 2; Ex. 1 at 4.¹ In February 2020, Petitioner entered the United States by boat near Key Largo, Florida, while not in possession of a valid entry document. Ex. 1 at 2. Petitioner was determined to be inadmissible under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(7)(i)(I) and placed in expedited removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1). Id. Petitioner was subsequently issued a Notice to Appear, which commenced removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a, section 240 of the INA. See Declaration of David Townsend (“Townsend Decl.”) ¶ 5.

On May 28, 2020, Petitioner appeared for an individual hearing before an immigration judge. See Ex. 2. The immigration judge found Petitioner removable under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(7)(i)(I), ordered Petitioner removed from the United States, denied his asylum application, and granted his application for withholding of removal under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b)(3).² Id.

² 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b)(3) provides, with certain exceptions, that “the Attorney General may not remove an alien to a country if the Attorney General decides that the alien’s life or freedom would be threatened in that country because of the alien’s race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion.” 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b)(3)(A).

1 or execute removal orders against any alien under this chapter.”) (emphasis added); 2 Reno v. Am.-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 483 (1999) (“There was 3 good reason for Congress to focus special attention upon, and make special provision 4 for, judicial review of the Attorney General’s discrete acts of “commenc[ing] 5 proceedings, adjudicat[ing] cases, [and] execut[ing] removal orders”—which represent 6 the initiation or prosecution of various stages in the deportation process.”). In other 7 words, § 1252(g) removes district court jurisdiction over “three discrete actions that the 8 Attorney may take: her ‘decision or action’ to ‘commence proceedings, adjudicate 9 cases, or execute removal orders.’” Reno, 525 U.S. at 482 (emphasis removed).
10 Petitioner’s claims necessarily arise “from the decision or action by the Attorney 11 General to . . . execute removal orders,” over which Congress has explicitly foreclosed 12 district court jurisdiction. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(g); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(2) 13 (“Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no court shall enjoin the removal of any 14 alien pursuant to a final order under this section unless the alien shows by clear and 15 convincing evidence that the entry or execution of such order is prohibited as a matter 16 of law.”). Accordingly, to the extent Petitioner’s claims arise from—or seek to enjoin—17 the decision to execute his removal order, the Court should deny and dismiss those 18 claims for lack of jurisdiction under 8 U.S.C. § 1252.

19 B. Petitioner fails to establish entitlement to interim injunctive relief.

20 Alternatively, Petitioner’s motion should be denied because he has not 21 established that he is entitled to interim injunctive relief. Petitioner cannot establish that 22 he is likely to succeed on the underlying merits, there is no showing of irreparable harm, 23 and the equities do not weigh in his favor.

24 In general, the showing required for a temporary restraining order is the same as 25 that required for a preliminary injunction. See Stuhlberg Int’l Sales Co., Inc. v. John D.
26 Brush & Co., Inc., 240 F.3d 832, 839 (9th Cir. 2001). To prevail on a motion for a 27 temporary restraining order, a plaintiff must “establish that he is likely to succeed on 28 the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary

1 relief, that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public 2 interest.” Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008); accord Nken v.
3 Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 426 (2009). Plaintiffs must demonstrate a “substantial case for 4 relief on the merits.” Leiva-Perez v. Holder, 640 F.3d 962, 967–68 (9th Cir. 2011).
5 When “a plaintiff has failed to show the likelihood of success on the merits, we need 6 not consider the remaining three [Winter factors].” Garcia v. Google, Inc., 786 F.3d 7 733, 740 (9th Cir. 2015).

8 The final two factors required for preliminary injunctive relief—balancing of the 9 harm to the opposing party and the public interest—merge when the Government is the 10 opposing party. See Nken, 556 U.S. at 435. “Few interests can be more compelling than 11 a nation’s need to ensure its own security.” Wayte v. United States, 470 U.S. 598, 611 12 (1985).

13 I. Petitioner is unlikely to succeed on the merits.

14 Likelihood of success on the merits is a threshold issue. See Garcia, 786 F.3d 15 at 740. Petitioner cannot establish that he is likely to succeed on the underlying merits 16 of his claims because he is properly detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a), and his 17 continued detention is not unconstitutionally indefinite.

18 a. Petitioner’s detention is lawful, and he has not established that there 19 is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable 20 future.

21 Petitioner is lawfully detained, as there is a likelihood of removal to a third 22 country. See Townsend Decl. ¶¶ 7–10. Since his re-detention, ICE ERO has worked to 23 effectuate Petitioner’s removal as expeditiously as possible. See id.

24 When an alien has been found to be unlawfully present in the United States and 25 a final order of removal has been entered, the government ordinarily secures the alien’s 26 removal during a subsequent 90-day statutory “removal period.” 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(1).
27 The statute provides that the Attorney General “shall detain” the alien during this 28 removal period. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(2).

1 The Supreme Court held in Zadvydas that when removal is not accomplished 2 during the 90-day removal period, the statute “limits an alien’s post-removal-period 3 detention to a period reasonably necessary to bring about the alien’s removal from the 4 United States” and does not permit “indefinite detention.” Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S.
5 678, 689 (2001). The Supreme Court has held that six months constitutes a 6 “presumptively reasonable period of detention.” Id. at 701. Courts have repeatedly 7 declined to grant habeas relief where the presumptively reasonable six-month period 8 has not yet elapsed. See Ghamelian v. Baker, No. SAG-25-02106, 2025 WL 2049981, 9 at *4 (D. Md. July 22, 2025) (“The government is entitled to its six-month presumptive 10 period before Petitioner’s continued § 1231(a)(6) detention poses a constitutional 11 issue.”); Guerra-Castro v. Parra, No. 1:25-cv-22487-GAYLES, 2025 WL 1984300, at 12 *4 (S.D. Fla. July 17, 2025) (“The Court finds that the Petition is premature because 13 Petitioner has not been detained for more than six months. Petitioner has been in 14 detention since May 29, 2025; therefore, his two-month detention is lawful under 15 Zadvydas.”) (citations omitted).

16 Even after the period of presumptive reasonableness has run, release is not 17 required under Zadvydas unless “there is no significant likelihood of removal in the 18 reasonably foreseeable future.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701 (emphasis added). As the 19 Supreme Court instructed, “the habeas court must ask whether the detention in question 20 exceeds a period reasonably necessary to secure removal. It should measure 21 reasonableness primarily in terms of the statute’s basic purpose, namely, assuring the 22 alien’s presence at the moment of removal.” Id. at 699 (emphasis added). In so holding, 23 the Supreme Court recognized that detention is presumptively reasonable pending 24 efforts to obtain travel documents, because the noncitizen’s assistance is often needed 25 to obtain the travel documents, and because a noncitizen who is subject to an imminent, 26 executable warrant of removal becomes a significant flight risk, especially if he or she 27 is aware that it is imminent.

1 The Supreme Court also instructed that detention could exceed six months: “This 2 6-month presumption, of course, does not mean that every alien not removed must be 3 released after six months.” Id. at 701. “After this 6-month period, once the alien 4 provides good reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the 5 reasonably foreseeable future, the Government must respond with evidence sufficient 6 to rebut that showing.” Id. The Ninth Circuit has emphasized, “Zadvydas places the 7 burden on the alien to show, after a detention period of six months, that there is ‘good 8 reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably 9 foreseeable future.’” Pelich v. INS, 329 F. 3d 1057, 1059 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting 10 Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701); see also Xi v. INS, 298 F.3d 832, 840 (9th Cir. 2003).

11 Petitioner is subject to a final, executable order of removal, which means that he 12 has no right to remain in the United States. ICE has long-standing authority to remove 13 noncitizens and resettle them in third countries where removal to the country designated 14 in the final order is “impracticable, inadvisable, or impossible.” 8 U.S.C.
15 § 1231(b)(2)(E)(vii); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1231(b) (outlining framework for 16 designation). Accordingly, noncitizens like Petitioner, who have been granted 17 withholding of removal for their country of designation, may be removed and resettled 18 in third countries.

19 Section 1231(b)(2)(E) provides that the Secretary of Homeland Security shall 20 remove the noncitizen to any of the following countries:

- 21 (i) The country from which the alien was admitted to the United States.
22 (ii) The country in which is located the foreign port from which the 23 alien left for the United States or for a foreign territory contiguous 24 to the United States.
25 (iii) A country in which the alien resided before the alien entered the 26 country from which the alien entered the United States.
27 (iv) The country in which the alien was born.
28 (v) The country that had sovereignty over the alien’s birthplace when the alien was born.
(vi) The country in which the alien’s birthplace is located when the alien is ordered removed.

1 (vii) If impracticable, inadvisable, or impossible to remove the alien to 2 each country described in a previous clause of this subparagraph, 3 another country whose government will accept the alien into that country.

4 Id. Accordingly, if the Secretary of Homeland Security is unable to remove a noncitizen
5 to a country of designation or an alternative country in subparagraph (D), the Secretary 6 may, in her discretion, remove the noncitizen to any country listed in subparagraphs 7 (E)(i) through (E)(vi).

8 Here, Petitioner was ordered removed on May 28, 2020, and he was released 9 from custody several days later. He has been in custody for less than four months since 10 his re-detention on August 13, 2025. Thus, Petitioner’s six-month presumptively 11 reasonable removal period will not end until approximately February 7, 2026. Courts 12 have repeatedly declined to grant habeas relief where the presumptively reasonable six-13 month period has not yet elapsed. See Khalilova v. Smith, No. 25-CV-2140 JLS (DDL), 14 2025 WL 3089522 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 5, 2025) (denying similar habeas petition brought 15 on same grounds); Ghamelian v. Baker, No. SAG-25-02106, 2025 WL 2049981, at *4 16 (D. Md. July 22, 2025) (“The government is entitled to its six-month presumptive period 17 before Petitioner’s continued § 1231(a)(6) detention poses a constitutional issue.”); 18 Guerra-Castro v. Parra, No. 25-cv-22487-GAYLES, 2025 WL 1984300, at *4 (S.D.
19 Fla. July 17, 2025) (“The Court finds that the Petition is premature because Petitioner 20 has not been detained for more than six months.”); Ali v. Barlow, 446 F. Supp. 2d 604, 21 609-10 (E.D. Va. 2006) (finding habeas petition was unripe for review where Zadvydas 22 six-month period had not expired; dismissing petition without prejudice); Gonzales v.
23 Naranjo, No. EDCV 12-1392 DSF (FFM), 2012 WL 6111358 (C.D. Cal. 2012) (same); 24 Waraich v. Ashcroft, No. CVF051036, 2005 WL 2671406, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 19, 25 2005) (same).

26 ICE has worked diligently to secure Petitioner’s removal to a third country.
27 Shortly after Petitioner was re-detained, ERO contacted its Removal and International 28 Operations division for assistance in identifying a third country suitable for Petitioner’s

1 resettlement. See Townsend Decl. ¶ 7. Petitioner requested that ERO remove him to 2 Mexico, but when he was taken to the Mexico border Petitioner refused to comply with 3 the removal process. Id. ¶¶ 8–9. Petitioner’s attempt at showing that there is no 4 likelihood of removal while he refused to cooperate should thus be given no weight.
5 See, e.g., Diouf v. Mukasey, 542 F.3d 1222, 1233 (9th Cir. 2008) (holding that the 6 government could continue to detain the petitioner because it successfully completed 7 his travel arrangements and “was not removed at those times solely because of his own 8 refusal to cooperate”). ERO’s request to the Removal and International Operations 9 division to identify a third country suitable for Petitioner’s resettlement remains 10 pending. Townsend Decl. ¶ 10.

11 On this record, Petitioner cannot sustain his burden, and it would be premature 12 to conclude otherwise before permitting ICE an opportunity to complete its diligent 13 efforts to effect his removal. Evidence of progress, even slow progress, in negotiating a 14 petitioner’s repatriation will satisfy Zadvydas until the petitioner’s detention grows 15 unreasonably lengthy. See, e.g., Sereke v. DHS, Case No. 19-cv-1250-WQH-AGS, ECF 16 No. 5 at *5 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 15, 2019) (slip op.) (“The record at this stage in the litigation 17 does not support a finding that there is no significant likelihood of Petitioner’s removal 18 in the reasonably foreseeable future.”); Marquez v. Wolf, Case No. 20-cv-1769-WQH-19 BLM, 2020 WL 6044080, at *3 (S.D. Cal. Oct. 13, 2020) (denying petition because 20 “Respondents have set forth evidence that demonstrates progress and the reasons for 21 the delay in Petitioner’s removal”).

22 Lastly, Petitioner’s claim that he may not be removed to a third country without 23 adequate notice and an opportunity to be heard is subject to ongoing litigation, with the 24 Supreme Court staying an injunction imposed by a district court ordering the 25 government to provide notice and an opportunity to be heard like that requested here.
26 See Dep’t of Homeland Sec. v. D.V.D., 145 S. Ct. 2153 (2025). Given the Supreme 27 Court’s reversal of that injunction, Respondents’ position is that imposition of a similar 28 injunction would be reversed here.

1 Based on the foregoing, Petitioner cannot prevail on his Zadvydas and third 2 country removal claims.

3 b. Petitioner's complaints about procedural deficiencies in his 4 re-detention do not establish a basis for habeas relief.

5 Additionally, Petitioner claims that the agency failed to comply with its 6 regulations revoking Petitioner's Order of Supervision. ECF No. 1 at 7–10.
7 Respondents have no information that Petitioner was provided notice of the reasons for 8 the revocation of his release or interviewed after his return to custody.

9 But even assuming the agency's compliance with the relevant regulations fell 10 short, Petitioner has not established prejudice nor a constitutional violation. See Brown 11 v. Holder, 763 F.3d 1141, 1148–50 (9th Cir. 2014) (“The mere failure of an agency to 12 follow its regulations is not a violation of due process.”); United States v. Tatoyan, 13 474 F.3d 1174, 1178 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding that “[c]ompliance with ... internal 14 [customs] agency regulations is not mandated by the Constitution” (internal quotation 15 marks omitted)); Bd. of Curators of Univ. of Mo. v. Horowitz, 435 U.S. 78, 92 n.8 (1978) 16 (holding that Accardi “enunciate[s] principles of federal administrative law rather than 17 of constitutional law”). At the time of his re-detention, Petitioner knew he was subject 18 to a final order of removal. See Declaration of Osmel Benito Reyes-Albenas ¶ 1, ECF 19 No. 1-2 at 2. He also knew, based on his Order of Supervision, that although he was 20 released in 2020, ICE would be continuing to make efforts to execute his removal order.
21 See Ex. 3. And as illustrated above, because Respondents had, and continue to have, an 22 evidentiary basis to determine there is a likelihood that Petitioner will be removed to a 23 third country, any challenge that Petitioner would have raised under the regulations 24 would have failed. See, e.g., United States v. Barraza-Leon, 575 F.2d 218, 221–22 (9th 25 Cir. 1978) (holding that even assuming that the judge had violated the rule by failing to 26 inquire into the alien's background, any error was harmless because there was no 27 showing that the petitioner was qualified for relief from deportation).

1 Moreover, Petitioner does not have a protected liberty interest in remaining free 2 from detention where ICE has exercised its discretion under a valid removal order and 3 its regulatory authority. See Moran v. U.S. Dep't of Homeland Sec., 2020 WL 6083445, 4 at *9 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 21, 2020) (dismissing petitioners' claim that § 241.4(l) was a 5 violation of their procedural due process rights and noting, “[the petitioners] fail to point 6 to any constitutional, statutory, or regulatory authority to support their contention that 7 they have a protected interest in remaining at liberty in the United States while they 8 have valid removal orders”). “While the regulation provides the detainee some 9 opportunity to respond to the reasons for revocation, it provides no other procedural and 10 no meaningful substantive limit on this exercise of discretion as it allows revocation 11 “when, in the opinion of the revoking official ... [t]he purposes of release have been 12 served ... [or] [t]he conduct of the alien, or any other circumstance, indicates that release 13 would no longer be appropriate.” Rodriguez v. Hayes, 578 F.3d 1032, 1044 (9th Cir.
14 2009), opinion amended and superseded, 591 F.3d 1105 (9th Cir. 2010), citing 15 §§ 241.4(l)(2)(i), (iv) (emphasis in original).

16 Even assuming the lack of notice and interview were not in compliance with 17 federal regulations, that allegation does not entitle Petitioner to release. In Ahmad v.
18 Whitaker, for example, the government revoked the petitioner's release but did not 19 provide him an informal interview. Ahmad v. Whitaker, 2018 WL 6928540, at *6 (W.D.
20 Wash. Dec. 4, 2018), rep. & rec. adopted, 2019 WL 95571 (W.D. Wash. Jan. 3, 2019).
21 The petitioner argued the revocation of his release was unlawful because, he contended, 22 the federal regulations prohibited re-detention without, among other things, an 23 opportunity to be heard. Id. In rejecting his claim, the court held that although the 24 regulations called for an informal interview, petitioner could not establish “any 25 actionable injury from this violation of the regulations” because the government had 26 procured a travel document for the petitioner, and his removable was reasonably 27 foreseeable. Id. Similarly, in Doe v. Smith, the U.S. District Court for the District of 28 Massachusetts held that even if the ICE detainee petitioner had not received a timely

1 interview following her return to custody, there was “no apparent reason why a violation 2 of the regulation ... should result in release.” Doe v. Smith, 2018 WL 4696748, at *9 3 (D. Mass. Oct. 1, 2018). The court elaborated, “[I]t is difficult to see an actionable injury 4 stemming from such a violation. Doe is not challenging the underlying justification for 5 the removal order.... Nor is this a situation where a prompt interview might have led to 6 her immediate release—for example, a case of mistaken identity.” Id.

7 The same is true here. Whatever procedural deficiencies or delays may have 8 occurred, they do not warrant Petitioner’s release, and indeed could be cured by means 9 well short of release. See Morales Sanchez v. Bondi, No. 5:25cv02530 AB DTB, at 10 *4 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 3, 2025) (“While the regulations cited by Petitioner, 8 C.F.R.
11 §§ 241.13(i)(1)–(2) and 241.4, establish procedural safeguards—including the 12 requirements that revocation be based on a condition of release violation or on a 13 significant likelihood of removal, and that the noncitizen receive notice and an informal 14 interview—they do not create independent substantive rights that override the statutory 15 grant of detention authority.”) (citing Jane Doe 1 v. Nielsen, 357 F. Supp. 3d 972, 1000 16 (N.D. Cal. 2018) (concluding that agency rules must prescribe substantive law, not 17 merely procedural or policy guidance, to be enforceable)).

18 Based on the foregoing, Petitioner cannot show entitlement to habeas relief and 19 has thus failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the underlying merits.

20 2. Irreparable harm has not been shown.

21 To prevail on his request for interim injunctive relief, Petitioner must demonstrate 22 “immediate threatened injury.” Caribbean Marine Services Co., Inc. v. Baldrige, 844 23 F.2d 668, 674 (9th Cir. 1988) (citing Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission v.
24 Nat’l Football League, 634 F.2d 1197, 1201 (9th Cir. 1980)). Merely showing a 25 “possibility” of irreparable harm is insufficient. See Winter, 555 U.S. at 22. And 26 detention alone is not an irreparable injury. See Reyes v. Wolf, No. C20-0377JLR, 2021 27 WL 662659, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 19, 2021), aff’d sub nom. Diaz Reyes v. Mayorkas, 28 No. 21-35142, 2021 WL 3082403 (9th Cir. July 21, 2021). Further, “[i]ssuing a

1 preliminary injunction based only on a possibility of irreparable harm is inconsistent 2 with [the Supreme Court’s] characterization of injunctive relief as an extraordinary 3 remedy that may only be awarded upon a clear showing that the plaintiff is entitled to 4 such relief.” Winter, 555 U.S. at 22.

5 Petitioner suggests that being subjected to unjustified detention itself constitutes 6 irreparable injury.³ But this argument “begs the constitutional questions presented in 7 [his] petition by assuming that [P]etitioner has suffered a constitutional injury.” Cortez
8 v. Nielsen, 2019 WL 1508458, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 5, 2019). Moreover, Petitioner’s 9 “loss of liberty” is “common to all [noncitizens] seeking review of their custody or bond 10 determinations.” See Resendiz v. Holder, 2012 WL 5451162, at *5 (N.D. Cal.
11 Nov. 7, 2012). He faces the same alleged irreparable harm as any habeas corpus 12 petitioner in immigration custody, and he has not shown extraordinary circumstances 13 warranting a mandatory preliminary injunction.

14 Importantly, the purpose of civil detention is facilitating removal, and the 15 government is working to timely remove Petitioner. Here, because Petitioner’s alleged 16 harm “is essentially inherent in detention, the Court cannot weigh this strongly in favor 17 of Petitioner.” Lopez Reyes v. Bonnar, No. 18-CV-07429-SK, 2018 WL 7474861, 18 at *10 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 24, 2018).

19 3. Balance of equities does not tip in Petitioner’s favor.

20 It is well settled that “the public interest in enforcement of the immigration laws 21 is significant.” Blackie’s House of Beef, Inc. v. Castillo, 659 F.2d 1211, 1221 (D.C.
22 Cir. 1981) (collecting cases); see Nken, 556 U.S. at 436 (“There is always a public 23 interest in prompt execution of removal orders: The continued presence of an alien 24 lawfully deemed removable undermines the streamlined removal proceedings [the 25 Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act] established, and permits 26

27 ³ Detention is different than removal. But a removal is also not an inherently irreparable 28 injury. See Nken v. Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 435 (2009).

1 and prolongs a continuing violation of United States law.”) (simplified). And ultimately, 2 “the balance of the relative equities ‘may depend to a large extent upon the 3 determination of the [movant’s] prospects of success.’” Tiznado-Reyna v. Kane, Case 4 No. C 12-1159-PHX-SRB (SPL), 2012 WL 12882387, at * 4 (D. Ariz. Dec. 13, 2012)
5 (quoting Hilton v. Braunskill, 481 U.S. 770, 778 (1987)).

6 Here, as explained above, Petitioner cannot succeed on the merits of his claims 7 and the public interest in the prompt execution of removal orders is significant. The 8 balancing of equities and the public interest thus weigh heavily against granting 9 equitable relief in this case.

10 IV. Conclusion

11 For the foregoing reasons, Respondents respectfully request that the Court deny 12 the application for a temporary restraining order and dismiss the habeas petition.⁴

26 ⁴ Because the record shows that Petitioner is not entitled to habeas relief, there is no 27 need for an evidentiary hearing in this matter. See Schriro v. Landrigan, 550 U.S. 465, 28 474 (2007) (“[I]f the record refutes the applicant’s factual allegations or otherwise precludes habeas relief, a district court is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing.”).
