

United States District Court
Western District of Texas
El Paso Division

Arkadi Rubikovich Karapetian, Petitioner,

v.

Warden ERO El Paso East Montana, et al., Respondents.

No. 3:25-CV-00711-KC

Federal¹ Respondents' Response in Opposition to Petitioner's Amended Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus

¹ The named warden in this action is not a federal employee. The Department of Justice does not represent him in this action. The Federal Respondents are lawfully detaining Petitioner pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6).

Statement of Issues

1. Whether Petitioner is lawfully detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6)?
2. Whether Petitioner's substantive due process violation allegations are premature?
3. Whether Petitioner's alleged procedural due process violation allegations merit release?

Respondents timely submit this response per this Court's Order dated December 22, 2025. In his amended petition for writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2241, Mr. Karapetian ("Petitioner"), seeks release from civil immigration detention, claiming that his approximately two-month post-removal-order detention has become unreasonably prolonged, contrary to statute and the Due Process Clause. See ECF No. 2. Petitioner's claims lack merit, and this petition should be denied.

Despite his allegation that there is "no basis" for his continued detention, Petitioner has a final order of removal from 2002, which not only mandated his detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a) during the 90-day removal period but allows for continued detention beyond the removal period in the exercise of ICE's discretion, so long as removal is reasonably foreseeable. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6); see Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 701 (2001). Petitioner claims he is unable to obtain a Georgian passport, and his order of supervision was wrongfully revoked. See ECF No. 2. He also argues he should not be removed from the United States due to long term presence and family members with United States citizenship and lawful permanent residence status. Id.

Petitioner is lawfully detained with a final order of removal, his constitutional challenge to continued detention is not ripe until he has been detained in post-order custody for at least six months, and there is insufficient reason to believe that removal is unlikely in the foreseeable future. The burden of proof has not shifted to Respondents, but even if it had, Respondents can show that removal to Georgia is, in fact, likely in the reasonably foreseeable future. For these reasons, the Court should deny this habeas petition.

I. Facts and Procedural History

Petitioner is a citizen of Georgia. Exh. A at ¶ 7. Petitioner was admitted as a nonimmigrant visitor in February 1998 for a temporary period not to exceed August 2, 1998. Id. at ¶ 5. He did not seek and receive an extension to remain in the United States and overstayed his visa. Id at ¶ 6. In March 1999, he was issued a Notice to Appear to appear before the immigration judge. Exh. A at ¶ 8. He did not appear for immigration court and was ordered removed in absentia. Id at ¶ 9.

In June 1999, he filed a motion to reopen his removal proceedings which was granted. Id at ¶ 10. In July 2002, his applications for relief from removal, namely asylum and withholding of removal were denied and the immigration judge granted him voluntary departure. Exh. A at ¶ 11. Rather than voluntary depart as ordered by the immigration judge, he continued to stay in the United States and the order of removal converted to an order of removal. Id at ¶¶ 11, 14; see ECF No. 2 at 6 (admitting Petitioner has an order of removal). Petitioner also filed an untimely appeal of the immigration judge's order denying him asylum and withholding of removal Exh. A at ¶¶ 12–13.

In 2005, Petitioner filed a motion to reopen with the immigration judge, which was denied, and affirmed on appeal. Id at ¶¶ 15–16. In April 2007, ICE sent Petitioner a notice to surrender which Petitioner failed to appear and later claimed he didn't receive notice. Id at ¶ 17. In November 2007, ICE detained Petitioner to execute the removal order and released Petitioner on an order of supervision (OSUP) in February 2008. Exh. A at ¶ 18. In November 2026, ICE issued Petitioner a Notice of Revocation of Release due to ICE's determination that Petitioner can be removed to Georgia in the reasonably foreseeable future. Id at ¶ 19. In December 2025, Petitioner filed yet another motion to reopen with the immigration judge which was denied. Id at ¶¶ 21–22. ICE intends to schedule Petitioner for an identity verification interview with the consulate to obtain Petitioner's travel document. See Exh. A at ¶ 24.

II. Detention Is Lawful Under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6).

The authority to detain aliens after the entry of a final order of removal is set forth in 8

U.S.C. § 1231(a). That statute affords ICE a 90-day mandatory detention period within which to remove the alien from the United States following the entry of the final order. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(2). The 90-day removal period begins on the latest of three dates: the date (1) the order becomes “administratively final,” (2) a court issues a final order in a stay of removal, or (3) the alien is released from non-immigration custody. 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(1)(B).

Not all removals can be accomplished in 90 days, and certain aliens may be detained beyond the 90-day removal period. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701. Under 8 U.S.C. § 1231, the removal period can be extended in at least three circumstances. See Glushchenko v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 566 F.Supp.3d 693, 703 (W.D. Tex. 2021). Extension is warranted, for example, if the alien presents a flight risk or other risk to the community. Id.; see also 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(1)(C); (a)(6). An alien may be held in confinement until there is “no significant likelihood of removal in a reasonably foreseeable future.” Zadvydas, at 533 U.S. at 680.

III. Petitioner’s Substantive Due Process Claim under Zadvydas is Premature.

Petitioner’s reliance on Zadvydas is premature because he has been detained less than six months. To state a claim for relief under Zadvydas, Petitioner must show that: (1) he is in DHS custody; (2) he has a final order of removal; (3) he has been detained in post-removal-order detention for six months or longer; and (4) there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future. Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 700. Petitioner does not and cannot make this showing, as he has been detained less than six months in post-order custody. Chance v. Napolitano, 453 F. App’x 535, 2011 WL 6260210 at *1 (5th Cir. Dec. 15, 2011); Agyei-Kodie v. Holder, 418 F. App’x 317, 2011 WL 891071 at *1 (5th Cir. Mar. 15, 2011); Gutierrez-Soto v. Sessions, 317 F.Supp.3d 917, 929 n.33 (W.D. Tex. 2018); Kasangaki v. Barr, 2019 WL 13221026 at *3 (W.D. Tex. July 31, 2019); Linares v. Collins, 1:25-CV-00584-RP-DH, ECF No. 14 at 7–16 (W.D. Tex.

Aug. 12, 2025).

IV. There Is No Good Reason to Believe That Removal Is Unlikely in the Reasonably Foreseeable Future.

Petitioner cannot show “good reason” to believe that removal to Georgia is unlikely in the reasonably foreseeable future. In Zadvydas, the U.S. Supreme Court held that § 1231(a)(6) “read in light of the Constitution’s demands, limits an alien’s post-removal-period detention to a period reasonably necessary to bring about that alien’s removal from the United States” but “does not permit indefinite detention.” 533 U.S. at 689. “[O]nce removal is no longer reasonably foreseeable, continued detention is no longer authorized by the statute.” Id. at 699. The Court designated six months as a presumptively reasonable period of post-order detention but made clear that the presumption “does not mean that every alien not removed must be released after six months.” Id. at 701; see also Linares, ECF No. 14 at 8, 10–11.

Once the alien establishes that he has been in post-order custody for more than six months at the time the habeas petition is filed, the alien must provide a “good reason” to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future. Id. at 14–16; see Andrade v. Gonzales, 459 F.3d 538, 543–44 (5th Cir. 2006); Gonzalez v. Gills, No. 20–60547, 2022 WL 1056099 at *1 (5th Cir. Apr. 8, 2022). Unless the alien establishes the requisite “good reason,” the burden will not shift to the government to prove otherwise. Id.

The “reasonably foreseeable future” is not a static concept; it is fluid and country-specific, depending in large part on country conditions and diplomatic relations. Ali v. Johnson, No. 3:21–CV–00050–M, 2021 WL 4897659 at *3 (N.D. Tex. Sept. 24, 2021). Additionally, a lack of visible progress in the removal process does not satisfy the petitioner’s burden of showing that there is no significant likelihood of removal. Id. at *2 (collecting cases); see also Idowu v. Ridge, No. 3:03–CV–1293–R, 2003 WL 21805198, at *4 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 4, 2003). Conclusory allegations are also insufficient to meet the alien's burden of proof. Nagib v. Gonzales, No. 3:06-CV-0294-G, 2006 WL 1499682, at *3 (N.D. Tex. May 31, 2006) (citing Gonzalez v. Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, No. 1:03-CV-178-C, 2004 WL 839654 (N.D. Tex. Apr. 20, 2004)). One court explained:

To carry his burden, [the] petitioner must present something beyond speculation and conjecture. To shift the burden to the government, [the] petitioner must demonstrate that "the circumstances of his status" or the existence of "particular individual barriers to his repatriation" to his country of origin are such that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future.

Idowu, 2003 WL 21805198, at *4 (citation omitted).

Petitioner urges this Court to order that his continued detention pending removal is contrary to statute and in violation of his procedural and substantive due process rights, because of his past alleged inability to obtain a Georgian passport. ECF No. 2 at 3.

Petitioner's claims are insufficient under Zadvydas because he has not shown that he has been in post-order custody for six months, and he has not shown any good reason to believe that removal is unlikely. See Linares, ECF No. 14 at 8, 10–11, 14–16; Nogales v. Dept. of Homeland Sec., No. 21-10236, 2022 WL 851738 at *1 (5th Cir. Mar. 22, 2022) (citing Rice v. Gonzalez, 985 F.3d 1069, 1070 (5th Cir. 2021)); Akbar v. Barr, SA-20-CV-01132-FB, 2021 WL 1345530 (W.D. Tex. Mar. 5, 2021); see also Andrade, 459 F.3d at 543–44; Boroky v. Holder, No. 3:14-CV-2040-L-BK, 2014 WL 6809180, at *3 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 3, 2014); Thanh v. Johnson, No. EP-15-CV-403-PRM, 2016 WL 5171779, at *4 (W.D. Tex. Mar. 11, 2016) (denying habeas relief where government was taking affirmative steps to obtain Vietnamese travel documents). Petitioner has not shown that his continued detention is unreasonable, nor has he shown he is owed any additional due process than what he is currently receiving. See Hernandezs-Esquivel v. Castro, No. 5-17-cv-0564-RBF, 2018 WL 3097029, at *8 (W.D. Tex. June 22, 2018). Therefore, the burden of proof does not shift to Respondents to prove significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future.

Even if the burden did shift to ICE, ICE could show that removal is likely in the foreseeable future. First, publicly available statistics show that 259 Georgian nationals were successfully removed to Georgia in the first quarter of FY2025. See ICE Enforcement and Removal Operations Statistics | ICE (filtered by nationality and last accessed Dec. 31, 2025). Prior to FY2025, 162 Georgian nationals were successfully removed in FY2024, showing an overall increase in successful removals to Georgia since FY 2019. See <https://www.ice.gov/doclib/eoy/iceAnnualReportFY2024.pdf> (last accessed Dec. 31, 2025). FY2024 also included large charter removal flights to Eastern Europe, Georgia specifically. Id. at 31. ICE intends to schedule Petitioner for an identity interview as part of the process to obtain a travel document. Petitioner's substantive due process claim fails here as a matter of law.

V. ICE Has Afforded Petitioner Procedural Due Process During His Post-Order Custody Pending Removal.

To establish a procedural due process violation, Petitioner must show that he was deprived of liberty without adequate safeguards. See Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 332 (1976); Daniels v. Williams, 474 U.S. 327, 331 (1986). The Fifth Circuit has not provided guidance to lower courts, post-Arteaga-Martinez, on the appropriate standard for reviewing a procedural due process claim alleged by an alien detained under § 1231, but the Fourth Circuit, post-Arteaga-Martinez, used the Zadvydas framework to analyze a post-order-custody alien's due process claims. See Linares, at 10–14 (discussing Castaneda v. Perry, 95 F.4th 750, 760 (4th Cir. 2024)). This Court should also follow Zadvydas to review the procedural claim at issue here. Id. Under the Zadvydas framework, six months post-order detention is reasonable, and unless that time frame has passed, any procedural due process claim is also premature.

In any event, the Fifth Circuit finds no procedural due process violation where the constitutional minima of due process is otherwise met. Murphy v. Collins, 26 F.3d 541, 543 (5th Cir. 1994). Even if the Court were to find a procedural due process violation here, the remedy is substitute process. Mohammad v. Lynch, No. EP-16-CV-28-PRM, 2016 WL 8674354, at *6 n.6 (W.D. Tex. May 24, 2016) (finding no merit to petitioner's procedural due process claim where the evidence demonstrated that the review had already occurred, thereby redressing any delay in the provision of the 90-day and 180-day custody reviews). Even in the criminal context, failure to comply with statutory or regulatory time limits does not mandate release of a person who should otherwise be detained. U.S. v. Montalvo-Murillo, 495 U.S. 711, 722 (1990).

Petitioner argues he has not violated his conditions of supervised release, wasn't given sufficient notice of why his supervision is revoked and is not a flight risk or threat to the community or society. See ECF No. 2. ICE has issued a Notice of Revocation of Release and even if this Court found a procedural due process violation, which it should not, the remedy is not release, it's substitute or repeat of the process.

VI. Conclusion

Petitioner's detention is lawful under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6) and any due process claim is premature under Zadvydas. Moreover, Petitioner fails to show good reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal to Georgia in the reasonably foreseeable future. As such, the burden has not shifted to ICE to show the opposite. Even if the burden had shifted, ICE could establish that removal is foreseeable. Additionally, ICE has afforded Petitioner procedural due process over the course of his two-month post-order detention. Petitioner's continued detention, therefore, is not unreasonably prolonged, nor is it in violation of the INA or the Constitution. Accordingly, the Court should deny this petition.
