

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF FLORIDA

CASE NO. 1:25-cv-26084-KMW

JAVIER ALFREDO BANEGAS-
BOQUEDANO,

Petitioner,

vs.

PAM BONDI, et al.,

Respondents.

RESPONDENTS' RETURN TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS AND RESPONSE TO ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Respondents<sup>1</sup> file this Return to Plaintiff's Verified Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus [D.E. 1] (hereinafter the "Petition") and Response to Court's Order to Show Cause [D.E. 5]. As set forth below, this action should be dismissed as Petitioner is properly detained pursuant to INA § 235(b)(2), 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A).

I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Petitioner Javier Alfredo Banegas-Boquedano is a native and citizen of Honduras. Exhibit A: Form I-213, Record of Deportable/Inadmissible Alien. On or about November 18, 2025, Homeland Security Investigations (HSI), after surveillance and a prior identification of Petitioner being an individual present in the United States illegally, conducted an immigration inspection

<sup>1</sup> A writ of habeas corpus must "be directed to the person having custody of the person detained." 28 USC § 2243. In cases involving present physical confinement, the Supreme Court reaffirmed in Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426 (2004), that "the immediate custodian, not a supervisory official who exercises legal control, is the proper respondent." Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426, 439 (2004). Petitioner is currently detained at the Broward Transitional Center. D.E. 1 at ¶ 19. Therefore, the Proper Respondent is Cynthia Swain at the Broward Transitional Center and immediate custodian. See Rumsfeld v. Padilla. Accordingly, this action must be dismissed without prejudice. Alternatively, Petitioner should amend its petition. Regardless, Respondents must all be dismissed as improper parties.

stop. Id. During the stop, HSI determined that Petitioner had entered the United States illegally at an unknown place and on an unknown date. Id. On that same day, HSI took Petitioner into custody and transported him to the HSI Key West office for further processing. Id. HSI also issued and served Petitioner a Notice to Appear (NTA), pursuant to section 240 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA). Exhibit B: NTA dated 11.18.25. The NTA charged Petitioner with inadmissibility under section 212(a)(6)(A)(i) of the INA, as an alien present in the United States without being admitted or paroled, or who arrived in the United States at any time or place other than as designated by the Attorney General. Id. Petitioner did not request a review of the custody determination at that time. See Exhibit F: Notice of Custody Determination. On November 19, 2025, Petitioner was taken to the Florida Soft-Sided Facility-South (FSSFS). See Exhibit D: Detention History. On December 1, 2025, Petitioner was transferred to the Broward Transitional Center (BTC) in Pompano Beach, Florida. Id.

On December 2, 2025, HSI initiated removal proceedings by filing the NTA with the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR). Exh. B. On December 17, 2025, Petitioner appeared with his attorney at a master calendar hearing. See Exhibit C: Declaration of Deportation Officer John Mansey (DO Mansey). The Immigration Judge scheduled the case for another master calendar hearing on February 4, 2026, at 9:00 AM. Id. There is currently no pending request for a custody redetermination hearing before EOIR. Id. To date, Petitioner remains in ICE custody at BTC, located in Pompano Beach, Florida, as an applicant for admission who is seeking admission, pursuant to section 235(b)(2)(A) of the INA. See Exh. D, Exh. C.

In the Petition, Petitioner argues that he has been harmed in two ways requiring his immediate release until a bond hearing is given. Petitioner cites no authority that requires his “immediate release,” instead, he focuses on two main arguments as to why he should be entitled to a bond hearing. First, he claims harm from Respondents' policy of treating individuals in his position as an "Applicant for Admission" subject to detention without bond pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) as opposed to an alien arrested and detained pending a decision on whether the alien is to be removed pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1226; the latter which would entitle to him to a bond hearing. D.E. 1 at ¶¶ 28-30. Notably, Petitioner does not allege that this policy has been directly applied against him personally, but only that such policy has been applied against "people like Petitioner". D.E. 1 at ¶ 30. Second, Petitioner claims that the issue of his bond hearing has been decided by a partial judgment entered in Maldonado Bautista et.al v. Santacruz, No. 5:25-CV-01873-SSS-BFM, Dkt. 92, at 8-9 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 18, 2025), which he claims is binding and preclusive on any further adjudication. Given that neither of these positions is meritorious, the Petition should be dismissed.

II. ARGUMENT<sup>2</sup>

A. Bautista is neither binding, preclusive nor applicable to Petitioner.

Petitioner's reliance on Bautista is misplaced. The December 18, 2025 partial final judgment in Bautista v. Noem is neither binding nor applicable, and presents no basis for granting the petition. First, the Bautista declaratory judgement lacks legal effect on petitioners and custodians, such as the parties to this case, outside the Central District of California. Second, the Court should not give preclusive effect to the declaratory judgment because it is on appeal, creating a serious risk of inconsistent judgments and unfair results if the Bautista judgment is reversed or vacated on appeal. Finally, issue preclusion is inapplicable here, particularly as preclusion principles apply with less force both against the government and in habeas corpus proceedings.

<sup>2</sup> Respondents recognize that this Court previously granted habeas petitions, see, e.g., Ismael Cerro Perez v. Charles Parra, et al., Case No. 25-24820-CV-WILLIAMS, rejecting similar arguments. However, Respondents maintain and preserve this argument for the record in light of evolving precedent on this issue.

1. The Bautista declaratory judgment lacks effect outside the Central District of California and over custodians located outside that District.

The Bautista class sought a declaratory judgment that class members were unlawfully detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2), rather than § 1226(a). This is core habeas relief that must be brought as a habeas claim alone. As the Supreme Court made clear just this year, “[r]egardless of whether [] detainees formally request release from confinement,” if “their claims for relief necessarily imply the invalidity of their confinement[], their claims fall within the core of the writ of habeas corpus and thus must be brought in habeas.” Trump v. J.G.G., 604 U.S. 670, 672 (2025) (internal quotations omitted).

The Supreme Court imposed two fundamental limits on federal court jurisdiction over core habeas claims. First, “jurisdiction lies in only one district: the district of confinement.” Rumsfeld v. Padilla, 542 U.S. 426, 443 (2004); see also J.G.G., 604 U.S. at 672. Second, a habeas petitioner must name the petitioner’s immediate custodian—i.e., the custodian who has actual custody over the petitioner and can produce the “corpus.” Padilla, 542 U.S. at 435. “Failure to name the petitioner’s custodian as a respondent deprives federal courts of personal jurisdiction” needed to issue relief. Stanley v. Cal. Supreme Court, 21 F.3d 359, 360 (9th Cir. 1994); Padilla, 542 U.S. at 444. Thus, a federal district court is wholly without authority to issue the writ in favor of a habeas petitioner who seeks habeas relief in a judicial district in which he is not confined and the immediate custodian is not located. Padilla, 542 U.S. at 442-43. And a “judgment entered without personal jurisdiction over a defendant is void as to that defendant.” Combs v. Nick Garin Trucking, 825 F.2d 437, 442 (D.C. Cir. 1987).

Given that a challenge to the legality of detention is a core habeas claim, class-wide declaratory relief is inappropriate in the habeas context. Calderon v. Ashmus, 523 U.S. 740, 747 (1998) (declaratory judgment action not appropriate to address “validity of a defense the State may, or may not, raise in a habeas proceeding” in part because “the underlying claim must be adjudicated in a federal habeas proceeding”); Fusco v. Grondolsky, No. 17-1062, 2019 WL 13112044, at *1 (1st Cir. June 18, 2019) (declaratory judgment action must be dismissed when habeas available). Indeed, a class-wide declaratory judgment imposed from outside the district of confinement cannot be squared with the district-of-confinement requirement of habeas, where the relief is an order of release, 28 U.S.C. § 2241(a), not a declaration of legal rights that can later be enforced. See Calderon, 523 U.S. at 747 (1998); Fusco, 2019 WL 13112044, at *1; LoBue v. Christopher, 82 F.3d 1081, 1082 (D.C. Cir. 1996) (holding that the “availability of a habeas remedy in another district ousted us of jurisdiction over an alien’s effort to pose a constitutional attack . . . by means of a suit for declaratory judgment”); Monk v. Sec. of Navy, 793 F.2d 364, 366 (D.C. Cir. 1986) (“In adopting the federal habeas corpus statute, Congress determined that habeas corpus is the appropriate federal remedy for a prisoner who claims that he is ‘in custody in violation of the Constitution . . . of the United States,’ . . . . This specific determination must override the general terms of the declaratory judgment . . . statute.”).

As with most Bautista class members, Petitioner is confined outside of the Central District of California by an immediate custodian also outside the Central District of California and neither he nor his custodian have been named in the Bautista lawsuit. Because the Bautista court lacks jurisdiction to issue habeas relief to any petitioner or class member confined outside the Central District of California or against immediate custodians outside that District, its judgment cannot be binding and preclusive against parties outside the Central District of California. Burnham v. Superior Court of Cali., 495 U.S. 604, 608 (1990). Indeed, another federal district court has already held that the Bautista declaratory judgment does not have preclusive effect in its District. Order, Calderon Lopez v. Lyons, No. 25-cv-00226 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 19, 2025), ECF No. 12.

It is undisputed that Petitioner was detained in Florida, has remained detained in Florida and his immediate custodian is located in Florida. D.E. 1; Exh. C. This ends the analysis on the matter. Padilla, 542 U.S. at 439-40; see also Doe v. Garland, 109 F.4th 1188, 1196 (9th Cir. 2024) (holding immediate custodian and not supervisory ICE Field Office Director should be named in habeas petition). Consequently, the Bautista decision has no preclusive effect in this district and its decision does not bind this Court.

2. The Court should not give preclusive effect to a declaratory judgment on appeal.

Even if the Bautista declaratory judgment could have preclusive effect outside the Central District of California, that judgment has been appealed to the Ninth Circuit, Bautista, et al. v. United States Department of Homeland Security, et al., No. 25-7958 (9th Cir.), and this Court should not afford preclusive effect to that judgment or to any underlying legal issues in deciding whether to grant habeas relief in this case.

Courts must exercise significant caution before giving preclusive effect to declaratory judgments on appeal. Reflexively granting preclusive effect to such judgments could lead to subsequent judgment “from which it may be impossible to obtain relief” even if the first judgment is reversed on appeal. 9 A.L.R.2d 984. Courts should strive to avoid this “evil result[.]” Id. (“both the rule under which the operation of a judgment as res judicata is, and the one under which it is not, affected by the pendency of an appeal, have very unfortunate consequences”); see also 18A Fed. Prac. & Prod. § 4404 (“Awkward problems can result from the rule that preclusive effects attach to the first judgment” while that judgment is subject to an appeal); 18A Fed. Prac. & Proc. § 4433 (the rule that a decision is final for the purposes of preclusion while that decision is pending appeal creates “[s]ubstantial difficulties”).

This problem can be “avoided . . . by delaying further proceedings in the second action pending conclusion of the appeal in the first action.” Collins v. D.R. Horton, Inc., 505 F.3d 874, 882–83 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing Wright & Miller § 4433). In the circumstances here—and particularly given the constraints of 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1)—it would not be proper to impose res judicata effect on a class-wide basis while the declaratory judgment is pending on appeal. See 9 A.L.R.2d 984 (the “only one safe way of avoiding conflicting judgments on the same cause . . . [is for] the final decision on the merits of the second suit should be delayed until the decision on appeal has been rendered”). Accordingly, even if the Bautista judgment could be applicable to Petitioner, no preclusive effect should be given until its appeal is settled.

3. Affording preclusive effect to the Bautista declaratory judgment contravenes other principles of preclusion

Beyond the two most serious problems with giving effect to the Bautista declaratory judgment in this case addressed above, three more reasons counsel strongly against so.

First, under 28 U.S.C. § 2202, “[f]urther necessary or proper relief based on a declaratory judgment or decree may be granted, after reasonable notice and hearing, against any adverse party whose rights have been determined by such judgment.” To the extent this Court considers whether to award “further” relief than what the Bautista court purported to grant to class members outside the Central District of California, such further relief is neither “necessary [n]or proper.” Indeed, the Ninth Circuit—which of course has appellate jurisdiction over the Central District of California—has rejected waiving the district of confinement rule on prudential considerations given the clear congressional mandate limiting habeas jurisdiction to the district of confinement as provided by statute. Doe, 109 F.4th at 1199.

Second, the circumstances of this case also counsel against applying issue preclusion against the government. The Supreme Court has “long recognized that ‘the Government is not in a position identical to that of a private litigant,' INS v. Hibi, 414 U.S. 5, 8 (1973) (per curiam), both because of the geographic breadth of government litigation and also, most importantly, because of the nature of the issues the government litigates." United States v. Mendoza, 464 U.S. 154, 159 (1984). "Government litigation frequently involves legal questions of substantial public importance." Id. Thus, although the Supreme Court has held the federal government "may be estopped . . . from relitigating a question" when "the parties to the lawsuits are the same," id. at 163, 164, it is not so precluded in cases where the party seeking to offensively use preclusion was not a party to the initial litigation, see id. at 162. This is because allowing "nonmutual collateral estoppel against the government . . . . would substantially thwart the development of important questions of law by freezing the first final decision rendered on a particular legal issue." United States v. Mendoza, 464 U.S. 154, 160 (1984).

For similar reasons, the government should not be precluded from litigating the issue of the proper detention authority here, where neither Petitioner nor his current custodian were named parties in the ongoing Bautista litigation. In such a circumstance, applying preclusion against the government raises the same concern raised in Mendoza—it allows the Bautista court's decision to freeze the law for all district courts nationwide, and stymies development of the law. This is particularly so because the Bautista court could never grant complete habeas relief to all class members as a result of § 1252(f)(1)—instead, the Bautista class action was merely a vehicle for seeking to use the judgment in individual habeas matters such as this one. At minimum, the court should exercise its discretion to decline to employ offensive issue preclusion, as it does in cases where a non-party seeks to invoke preclusion against a private party. See Syverson v. Int'l Bus. Machines Corp., 472 F.3d 1072, 1078 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S. 322, 331 (1979)).

The court should also decline to give the Bautista declaratory judgment preclusive effect given the existence of several inconsistent judgments from district courts around the country, suggesting that reliance on the adverse judgment in Bautista would be unfair. See Parklane Hosiery, 439 U.S. at 330–31 (citing the existence of prior inconsistent judgments as indicium of unfairness of applying issue preclusion); see, e.g., Altamirano Ramos v. Lyons, – F. Supp. 3d –, 2025 WL 3199872, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 12, 2025); Mejia Olalde v. Noem, No. 1:25-cv-168, 2025 WL 3131942, at *2–3 (E.D. Mo. Nov. 10, 2025); Rojas v. Olson, No. 25-cv-1437, 2025 WL 3033967, at *6 (E.D. Wis. Oct. 30, 2025); Cabanas v. Bondi, 4:25-cv-04830, 2025 WL 3171331 (S.D. Tex. Nov. 13, 2025); Sandoval v. Acuna, No. 6:25-cv-01467, 2025 WL 3048926 (W.D. La. Oct. 31, 2025); Topal v. Bondi, No. 1:25-cv-01612, 2025 WL 3486894 (W.D. La. Dec. 3, 2025); Xiaoquan Chen v. Almodovar, No. 1:25-cv-8350, 2025 WL 3484855 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 4, 2025); Candido v. Bondi, No. 25-cv-867, 2025 WL 3484932 (W.D.N.Y. Dec. 4, 2025).

Third, it is doubtful that issue preclusion is ever appropriate in the habeas context. For instance, in Griffin v. Gomez, the Ninth Circuit held that a prior “class action has no preclusive affect in habeas proceedings.” Griffin v. Gomez, 139 F.3d 905 (9th Cir. 1998). The court later explained that res judicata and collateral estoppel do not apply to habeas proceedings. See Clifton v. Attorney General, 997 F.2d 660, 662 n.3 (9th Cir. 1993) (recognizing that because “conventional notions of finality of litigation have no place” in habeas and the inapplicability of res judicate to habeas is “inherent in the very role and function of the writ.”) (quoting Sanders v. United States, 373 U.S. 1, 8 (1963)); see also Hardwick v. Doolittle, 558 F.2d 292, 295 (5th Cir. 1977) (“The doctrines of res judicate and collateral estoppel are not applicable in habeas proceedings.”); Hierens v. Mizell, 729 F.2d 449, 456 (7th Cir. 1984) (“a decision in another case is not res judicata as to a habeas proceeding.”).

In sum, the Bautista declaratory judgment has no preclusive effect on this case.

4. The Court need not await a ruling staying or vacating the Bautista declaratory judgment before declining to give it preclusive effect.

Assessing whether the Bautista declaratory judgment required granting an individual class member's habeas petition, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas persuasively explained why the Bautista declaratory judgment need not be followed by other U.S. district courts, even before a court of appeal stays or vacates that order:

A dispute in this posture is unusual, but not unheard of. As Justice Story remarked, the traditional comity between courts "does not prevent an inquiry into the jurisdiction of the court in which the original judgment was given." Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough, 204 U.S. 8, 16 (1907) (quoting Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States § 1313 (1833)). It is "a subject [that] may be inquired into every other court, when the proceedings in the former are relied upon, and brought before the latter, by a party claiming the benefit of such proceedings." Williamson v. Berry, 49 U.S. (8 How.) 495, 540 (1850); Old Wayne, 204 U.S. at 16–17 (same). Indeed, traditional habeas proceedings normally could only challenge "the power and authority of the court" or other detaining authority "to act." Brown v. Davenport, 596 U.S. 118, 129 (2022) (quotation omitted). While the conclusions of another court, when enforced onto a peer court, are generally "unassailable collaterally," an exception has always existed for "lack of jurisdiction." Treinius v. Sunshine Mining Co., 308 U.S. 66, 78 (1939); Ex parte Watkins, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 193, 202–03 (1830) (Marshall, C.J.) (same).

When the issuing court lacks jurisdiction, "its judgments and orders are nullities; they are not voidable, but simply void, and form no bar to a recovery sought . . . in opposition to them; they constitute no justification, and all persons concerned in executing such judgments . . . are considered in law as trespassers." Williamson, 49 U.S. at 541 (quoting Elliott v. Piersol, 26 U.S. (1 Pet.) 328, 329 (1828)); Watkins, 28 U.S. at 203 ("An imprisonment under a judgment cannot be unlawful, unless that judgment be an absolute nullity[.]").

The Court issues this Order with some reluctance. The business of another court is generally beyond this Court's concern. But the petitioner seeks relief based on the Central District's orders, leaving this Court no choice but to address their binding effect. Here, a fellow district judge purports to bind all pending and future cases involving the mandatory detention issue to her reasoning in an advisory opinion, disrupting this Court's extensive immigration docket and the dockets of fellow courts across the Nation. But the Central District's orders are not binding because the Central District lacked authorization to issue them. The orders are unauthorized because they are advisory and because they violate the INA's limits on judicial review. Additionally, they would require this Court to act in defiance of Supreme Court precedent. Thus, the Court rejects the petitioner's assertion that it is bound by the Central District's orders and must grant relief as a result.

Calderon Lopez v. Lyons, No. 25-cv-00226, 2025 WL 3683918 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 19, 2025), ECF No. 12, at 11 & 28 attached as Exhibit G. Thus, because the Bautista declaratory judgment would be void if pertaining to Petitioner due to the Bautista Court's lack of jurisdiction over the Petitioner and over his immediate custodian as discussed above, this Court is not required to wait for a court of appeals to stay or vacate that judgment before this Court declines to give it preclusive effect.

Regardless, even if the Court does not treat the Bautista judgment as void now, the blatant jurisdictional flaws and other points noted above counsel strongly in favor of the Court declining to give it preclusive effect.

B. Petitioner is an Applicant for Admission subject to Detention pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) and discretionary detention under § 1226(a) is Inapplicable which was Clarified in the BIA's Decision in Matter of Yajure Hurtado.

"As with any question of statutory interpretation, [the] analysis begins with the plain language of the statute." Jimenez v. Quarterman, 555 U.S. 113, 118 (2009) (citing Lamie v. U.S. Tr., 540 U.S. 526, 534 (2004)). Section 1225(a)(1) defines an "applicant for admission" as an "alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or who arrives in the United States (whether or not at a designated port of arrival . . .) . . ." 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(1); see Matter of Velasquez-Cruz, 26 I&N Dec. 458, 463 n.5 (BIA 2014) ("[R]egardless of whether an alien who illegally enters the United States is caught at the border or inside the country, he or she will still be required to prove eligibility for admission.").

By its very definition, the term “applicant for admission” includes two categories of aliens: (1) arriving aliens, and (2) aliens present without admission. See Dep’t of Homeland Sec. v. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. 103, 140 (2020) (explaining that “an alien who tries to enter the country illegally is treated as an ‘applicant for admission’”); Matter of Lemus, 25 I&N Dec. 734, 743 (BIA 2012) (“Congress has defined the concept of an ‘applicant for admission’ in an unconventional sense, to include not just those who are expressly seeking permission to enter, but also those who are present in this country without having formally requested or received such permission . . . .”); Matter of E-R-M- & L-R-M-, 25 I&N Dec. 520, 523 (BIA 2011) (stating that “the broad category of applicants for admission . . . includes, inter alia, any alien present in the United States who has not been admitted”). An arriving alien is defined, in pertinent part, as “an applicant for admission coming or attempting to come into the United States at a port-of-entry [(“POE”)] . . . .” 8 C.F.R. §§ 1.2, 1001.1(q).

All aliens who are applicants for admission “shall be inspected by immigration officers.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(a)(3); see also 8 C.F.R. § 235.1(a) (“Application to lawfully enter the United States shall be made in person to an immigration officer at a U.S. [POE] when the port is open for inspection . . . .”); see also 8 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(2)(A) (explaining that an applicant for admission has the burden to establish that he or she is clearly and beyond doubt entitled to be admitted and is not inadmissible under 8 U.S.C. § 1182 in removal proceedings pursuant to § 1229a). “An alien present in the United States who has not been admitted or paroled or an alien who seeks entry at other than an open, designated [POE] . . . is subject to the provisions of [8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)] and to removal under [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)] or [8 U.S.C. § 1229a].” 8 C.F.R. § 235.1(f)(2).

Petitioner did not present himself at a POE but instead entered the United States without having been admitted or paroled after inspection by an immigration officer. See Exh. C ¶ 11.

Petitioner is, therefore, an alien present in the United States without admission or parole and, consequently, an applicant for admission. The recently published decision issued by the BIA in Matter of Yajure Hurtado is instructive here. In Matter of Yajure Hurtado, the BIA rejected the alien's argument that "because he has been residing in the interior of the United States for almost 3 years . . . he cannot be considered as 'seeking admission.'" 29 I&N Dec. at 221. The BIA determined that this argument "is not supported by the plain language of the INA" and creates a "legal conundrum." Id. If the alien "is not admitted to the United States (as he admits) but he is not 'seeking admission' (as he contends), then what is his legal status?" Id. (parentheticals in original). The BIA's decision is consistent not only with the plain language of § 1225(b)(2), but also with the Supreme Court's decision in Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281 (2018), and subsequent caselaw post Jennings. Specifically, in Jennings, the Supreme Court explained that § 1225(b) applies to all applicants for admission, noting that the language of § 1225(b)(2) is "quite clear" and "unequivocally mandate[s]" detention. 583 U.S. at 300, 303.

Similarly, relying on Jennings and the plain language of §§ 1225 and 1226(a), the Attorney General, in Matter of M-S-, 27 I&N Dec. 509 (A.G. 2019), recognized that §§ 1225 and 1226(a) do not overlap but describe "different classes of aliens." 27 I&N Dec. at 516. The Attorney General also held—in an analogous context—that aliens present without admission or parole who are placed into expedited removal proceedings are detained under § 1225 even if later placed in § 1229a removal proceedings after establishing a credible fear of persecution or torture. Id. at 518-19; see also 8 § U.S.C. 1225(b)(1)(B)(ii)(providing that if an alien subject to expedited removal demonstrates a credible fear of persecution or torture, the alien "shall be detained" for further consideration of an asylum application in § 1229a removal proceedings).

Additionally, in Matter of Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. 66 (BIA 2025), the BIA held that an alien who unlawfully entered the United States between POEs, was arrested and detained without a warrant while arriving, and was previously released from DHS custody pursuant to an 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)(A) parole is detained under § 1225(b) upon re-detention. 29 I&N Dec. at 70-71. This ongoing evolution of the law makes clear that all applicants for admission in various procedural postures are subject to detention under § 1225(b). Cf. Niz-Chavez v. Garland, 593 U.S. 155, 171 (2021) (stating that “no amount of policy-talk can overcome a plain statutory command”); see generally Florida v. United States, 660 F. Supp. 3d 1239, 1275 (N.D. Fla. 2023) (explaining that “the 1996 expansion of § 1225(b) to include illegal border crossers would make little sense if DHS retained discretion to apply § 1226(a) and release illegal border crossers whenever the agency saw fit”). Florida’s conclusion “that § 1225(b)’s ‘shall be detained’ means what it says and . . . is a mandatory requirement . . . flows directly from Jennings.” Florida, 660 F. Supp. 3d at 1273.

C. Petitioner is an Applicant for Admission in 8 U.S.C. § 1229a Removal Proceedings and as such his Detention Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) is Proper.

Both arriving aliens and aliens present without admission or parole, as applicants for admission, may be removed from the United States by, inter alia, expedited removal procedures under § 1225(b)(1) or removal proceedings before an immigration judge under § 1229a. §§ 1225(b)(1), (b)(2)(A). See Jennings, 583 U.S. at 287 (describing how “applicants for admission fall into one of two categories, those covered by § 1225(b)(1) and those covered by § 1225(b)(2)”). For aliens amenable to expedited removal, immigration officers have discretion to apply expedited removal under § 1225(b)(1) or to initiate removal proceedings before an immigration judge under § 1229a. See also Matter of Q. Li, 29 I&N Dec. 66, 68 (BIA 2025) (“DHS may place aliens arriving in the United States in either expedited removal proceedings under [8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(1)], or full removal proceedings under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a]” (citations omitted)).

Petitioner is currently in § 1229a removal proceedings and is subject to detention under § 1225(b)(2)(A). See Ex. 2, NTA. Hence, under § 1225(b)(2)(A), “an alien who is an applicant for admission” “shall be detained for a proceeding under [8 U.S.C. § 1229a]” “if the examining immigration officer determines that [the] alien seeking admission is not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted.” 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2)(A) (emphasis added); 8 C.F.R. § 235.3(b)(3) (providing that an alien placed into § 1229a removal proceedings in lieu of expedited removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1225 “shall be detained” pursuant to § 1225(b)(2)). As the Supreme Court observed in Jennings, nothing in § 1225(b)(2)(A) “says anything whatsoever about bond hearings.” 583 U.S. at 297. Further, there is no textual basis for arguing that § 1225(b)(2)(A) applies only to arriving aliens as no provision therein refers to “arriving aliens,” or limits that paragraph to arriving aliens. Where Congress means for a rule to apply only to “arriving aliens,” it uses that specific term of art or similar phrasing. See, e.g., 8 U.S.C. §§ 1182(a)(9)(A)(i), 1225(c)(1).

D. Applicants for Admission may Only be Released from Detention on an 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5) Parole.

DHS has the exclusive authority to temporarily release on parole “any alien applying for admission to the United States” on a “case-by-case basis for urgent humanitarian reasons or significant public benefit.” 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5); see 8 C.F.R. § 212.5(b). In Jennings, the Supreme Court placed significance on the fact that § 1182(d)(5) is the specific provision that authorizes temporary release from detention under § 1225(b). 583 U.S. at 300.

Parole, like an admission, is a factual occurrence. See Hing Sum, 602 F.3d at 1098; Matter of Roque-Izada, 29 I&N Dec. 106 (BIA 2025) (treating whether an alien was paroled as a question of fact). The parole authority under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5) is “delegated solely to the Secretary of Homeland Security.” Matter of Castillo-Padilla, 25 I&N Dec. 257, 261 (BIA 2010); see 8 C.F.R.

§ 212.5(a). Thus, neither the BIA nor immigration judges have authority to parole an alien into the United States under § 1182(d)(5). Castillo-Padilla, 25 I&N Dec. at 261; see also Matter of Arrabally and Yerrabelly, 25 I&N Dec. 771, 777 n.5 (BIA 2002) (indicating that “parole authority [under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)] is now exercised exclusively by the DHS” and “reference to the Attorney General in [8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)] is thus deemed to refer to the Secretary of Homeland Security”). Lastly, because DHS has exclusive jurisdiction to parole an alien into the United States, the manner in which DHS exercises its parole authority may not be reviewed by an immigration judge or the BIA. Castillo-Padilla, 25 I&N Dec. at 261; see Matter of Castellon, 17 I&N Dec. 616, 620 (BIA 1981) (noting that the BIA does not have authority to review the way DHS exercises its parole authority).

E. Petitioner failed to Exhaust his Administrative Remedies

Lastly, the Court should dismiss the petition for writ of habeas corpus for failure to exhaust administrative remedies. A habeas petitioner must normally exhaust administrative remedies before seeking federal court intervention. The exhaustion requirement “aims to provide the agency with a chance to correct its own errors, ‘protect[] the authority of administrative agencies,’ and otherwise conserve judicial resources by ‘limiting interference in agency affairs, developing the factual record to make judicial review more efficient, and resolving issues to render judicial review unnecessary.’” Beharry v. Ashcroft, 329 F.3d 51, 62 (2d Cir. 2003) (Sotomayor, J.).

Petitioner has not availed himself of the administrative remedies available to him, yet seeks a bond determination in the first instance from this Court. Petitioner has not sought a bond determination hearing, nor has he asked for a review of his custody determination in immigration court. Moreover, if a bond or a review of his custody determination had been sought, Petitioner would have a right to appeal any negative decision to the BIA. By regulation, the BIA has authority to review IJ custody determinations. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.1(b)(7), 1003.19(f), 1003.38, 1236.1(d)(3). Petitioner claims that that exhaustion of remedies - i.e., requesting custody determination from an Immigration Judge and appealing such decision to the BIA - is not necessary here because the “administrative remedy will not provide relief commensurate with the claim” citing Boz v. U.S., 248 F. 3d 1299, 1300 (11th Cir. 2001). D.E. 1 at ¶¶ 12-14. However, this statement is inaccurate and verifiably false as the Immigration Judges generally set conditions for bond and hold hearings on the same, and regardless, their decision is appealable to the BIA who “plainly has jurisdiction to determine whether an IJ properly denied an alien detainee's motion for bond redetermination.” J.G. v. Warden, Irwin Cnty. Det. Ctr., 501 F. Supp. 3d 1331, 1349 (M.D. Ga. 2020) (holding that habeas petitioner failed exhaust his administrative remedies in appealing an IJ’s denial of bond redetermination to the BIA). Moreover, contrary to Petitioner’s claim, as set forth in the EOIR Policy Memo 25-45 the BIA and IJs can consider constitutional challenges to the INA – such could include a Fifth Amendment challenge to the BIA’s interpretation of 235(b)(2) in Yajure Hurtado. See <https://www.justice.gov/eoir/eoir-policy-manual/memoranda-pm-list>. Here, Petitioner has refused to avail himself of the administrative process and remedies available to him before proceeding to this Court in hopes of shopping for a more favorable forum. Accordingly, the Petition should be dismissed for failure to exhaust administrative remedies.

F. Petitioner lacks standing to bring an APA claim.

Petitioner lacks standing to bring an APA claim. By the APA’s terms, it is available only for final agency action “for which there is no other adequate remedy in court.” 5 U.S.C. § 704. Thus, Petitioner’s APA claim is independently barred by this limitation in 5 U.S.C. § 704 as there is no final agency action sought to be reviewed; in fact, there is no agency action.

In Trump v. J.G.G., the Supreme Court held that where the claims for relief, as here, “necessarily imply the invalidity of their confinement” those claims “must be brought in habeas.”

145 S. Ct. 1003, 1005 (2025) (cleaned up) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). As noted by Justice Kavanaugh in his concurrence in J.G.G., “given 5 U.S.C. § 704, which states that claims under the APA are not available when there is another adequate remedy in court, I agree with the Court that habeas corpus, not the APA, is the proper vehicle here.” Id. at 1007 (Kavanaugh, J. concurring). Here, as in J.G.G., habeas is an “adequate remedy” through which Petitioner can challenge his detention. Even if Petitioner’s APA claim had merit, which it does not, the result would be the same as that in habeas – release from detention. The Supreme Court’s holding is consistent with well-established law that habeas is generally the only possible district court vehicle for challenges brought pursuant to the immigration statutes. Id. (citing Heikkila v. Barber, 345 U.S. 229, 234-35 (1953)).

G. CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, the Petition should be dismissed because detention is lawful under § 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) and Petitioner has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies before seeking relief from the Court. Additionally, given that Respondents are not Petitioner’s immediate custodians, they must be dropped/dismissed as parties.
