

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF GEORGIA
COLUMBUS DIVISION

Milton Simen KOWAC,

Petitioner

Jason STREEVAL, Warden, Stewart Detention Center

Respondent

Civil Action No. _____

Agency number:

HEARING REQUESTED

VERIFIED PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS
PURSUANT TO 28 U.S.C. § 2241

1. Petitioner Milton Simen Kowac (“Petitioner” or “Mr. Kowac”) is a citizen of Cameroon who is currently detained at Stewart Detention Center (“Stewart”). He has been in the custody of U.S. Immigration & Customs Enforcement (“ICE”) for more than six (6) months, since on or about August 17, 2025.

2. Mr. Kowac entered the United States on or about April 25, 2002. He applied for asylum affirmatively, but it was denied. Mr. Kowac received a removal order in absentia from the Baltimore Immigration Court in Baltimore, MD, on February 20, 2003. He appealed the decision, and the Board of Immigration Appeals (“BIA”) dismissed his appeal on June 17, 2004. ICE did not take Mr. Kowac into custody at that time. He was in ICE’s custody, however, in Atlanta for two to three months in 2009. He was then released under an Order of Supervision. ICE then went to his workplace on August 17, 2025 and detained him. Since then, ICE has continued to prove unable to effectuate Mr. Kowac’s removal.

3. Mr. Kowac has now been detained for more than six months post-order, awaiting deportation to Cameroon, and there is no significant likelihood that he will be removed in the reasonably foreseeable future. Mr. Kowac's detention, post-removal-order, has become unconstitutionally prolonged under the framework set out in Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678 (2001). He therefore challenges his prolonged and indefinite detention as a violation of the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA") and the Due Process Clause.

4. Mr. Kowac respectfully requests that this Court grant him a Writ of Habeas Corpus, ordering Respondent to release him from custody.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 (habeas corpus), 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question), 28 U.S.C. § 1651 (All Writs Act), 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201-02 (declaratory relief), and art. I. sec. 9, cl. 2 of the U.S. Constitution (Suspension Clause), as Mr. Kowac is presently in custody under or by color of the authority of the United States, and he challenges his custody as in violation of the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.

6. The federal district courts have jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 to hear habeas claims by individuals challenging the lawfulness of their detention by ICE. See, e.g., Zadvydas, 533 U.S. 678; Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510 (2003). In Jennings v. Rodriguez, 138 S. Ct. 830, 839-41 (2018), the United States Supreme Court reiterated the federal courts' jurisdiction to review such claims.

7. Venue is proper in the Middle District of Georgia, Columbus Division, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391 and 2241(d) because Mr. Kowac is detained at the Stewart Detention Center in Lumpkin, Georgia.

PARTIES

8. Petitioner Mr. Kowac is a Cameroonian citizen currently detained by Respondent Jason Streeval at the Stewart Detention Center. An immigration judge (“IJ”) at the Baltimore Immigration Court ordered him removed to Cameroon on or about February 20, 2003. The BIA dismissed his appeal on or about June 17, 2004. Mr. Kowac has now been continuously detained by Respondent since approximately August 17, 2025.

9. Respondent is sued in his official capacity as the Warden of Stewart Detention Center. Pursuant to a contract with ICE, Warden Streeval is responsible for the operation of the Stewart Detention Center, where Mr. Kowac is detained. Thus, Warden Streeval has control over Mr. Kowac as his immediate, physical custodian.

EXHAUSTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES

10. “[W]here Congress does not say there is a jurisdictional bar, there is none.” Santiago-Lugo v. Warden, 785 F.3d 467, 473 (11th Cir. 2015). “Congress knows how to limit courts’ subject matter jurisdiction to decide § 2241 petitions when it wishes to do so. The fact that it did not limit courts’ subject matter jurisdiction to decide unexhausted § 2241 claims compels the conclusion that any failure of [the respondent] to exhaust administrative remedies is not a jurisdictional defect.” Id. at 474.

11. In the absence of a statutorily mandated exhaustion requirement, whether to apply a common law exhaustion requirement is a decision subject to sound judicial discretion, considering congressional intent and any applicable statutory scheme. See McCarthy v. Madigan, 503 U.S. 140, 144 (1992); see also Richardson v. Reno, 162 F.3d 1338, 1374 (11th Cir. 1998); Yahweh v. U.S. Parole Comm’n, 158 F. Supp. 2d 1332, 1341 (S.D. Fla. 2001).

12. Here, there is no reason to require exhaustion as Mr. Kowac has no meaningful administrative remedy to request. Mr. Kowac’s prolonged detention raises constitutional issues. “[A] petitioner need not exhaust [their] administrative remedies ‘where the administrative remedy will not provide relief commensurate with the claim.’” Boz v. United States, 248 F.3d 1299, 1300 (11th Cir. 2001) (quoting Haitian Refugee Ctr., Inc. v. Nelson, 872 F.2d 1555, 1561 (11th Cir. 1989)). Thus, “[b]ecause the BIA does not have the power to decide constitutional claims—like the validity of a federal statute— . . . certain due process claims need not be administratively exhausted.” Warsame v. U.S. Att’y Gen., 796 F. App’x. 993, 1006 (11th Cir. 2020). See also Haitian Refugee Ctr., Inc., 872 F.2d at 1561, aff’d sub nom. McNary v. Haitian Refugee Ctr., Inc., 498 U.S. 479 (1991) (exhaustion had “no bearing” where petitioner made a constitutional challenge to procedures adopted by the INS); Matter of G-K-, 26 I&N Dec. 88, 96-97 (BIA 2013) (“Neither the [BIA] nor the Immigration Judges have the authority to rule on the constitutionality of the statutes we administer, so we lack jurisdiction to address [challenges to their constitutionality].”).

13. Thus, this Court has jurisdiction over Mr. Kowac’s § 2241 action because exhaustion of administrative remedies is not required, and his petition raises constitutional issues that cannot be addressed administratively.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

14. Mr. Kowac has been detained continuously since about August 17, 2025, for more than six months. He has had a final removal order for over twenty one years—since the BIA dismissed the appeal on June 17, 2004—yet ICE has been unable to remove him and likely will remain unable to do so. Mr. Kowac himself has tried several times to contact the Cameroonian embassy since he has been detained, but the fax number either does not work or is always busy.

15. Mr. Kowac is a citizen of Cameroon and is fifty-three (53) years old. He entered the U.S. in 2002 and has not left since his sole entrance into the U.S. Mr. Kowac was detained by ICE in 2009 but was released because ICE could not obtain his travel documents. Mr. Kowac was on supervised release until he was detained.

16. Since coming to the U.S., Mr. Kowac has developed substantial ties to the country. He has a USC daughter that recently began her freshman year at high school in Gwinnett County. Mr. Kowac married his wife, a United States citizen, in 2016. He is the beneficiary of an approved I-130. He is the primary provider and caregiver for his family, and his wife is currently undergoing intensive treatment for a medical condition. He is also an active community member within Gwinnett County where he resides. Mr. Kowac is an active member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, attending weekly services. He also received letters of support from his employer: Cumming Health & Rehab, and the Gwinnett Veterans Soccer Club attesting to his positive character and reputation within the community.

17. Mr. Kowac was arrested by ICE outside of his workplace on August 17, 2025. He was transferred three days later to Stewart Detention Center in Lumpkin Georgia where he remains today.

18. Mr. Kowac has a national identity card, but he does not have a passport. In 2008 he applied for a travel document from the Cameroon Embassy but never received them. He also has a copy of his birth certificate.

19. Since his arrival at Stewart, Mr. Kowac has been treated for medical issues.

20. Mr. Kowac lacks documentation of the results of any subsequent administrative custody reviews and does not know if any such reviews were ever carried out.

21. If released from detention, Mr. Kowac will return to Gwinnett County to reside with his family. He plans to comply with all conditions of release.

LEGAL FRAMEWORK

22. “Freedom from imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty that [the Due Process] Clause [of the Fifth Amendment] protects.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690.

23. The Due Process Clause requires that the deprivation of Mr. Kowac’s liberty be narrowly tailored to serve a compelling government interest. See Reno v. Flores, 507 U.S. 292, 301-02 (1993) (holding that due process “forbids the government to infringe certain ‘fundamental’ liberty interests . . . unless the infringement is narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest”). As the Supreme Court held in Zadvydas, indefinite detention raises a “serious constitutional problem” and runs afoul of the Due Process Clause. 533 U.S. at 690.

24. 8 U.S.C. § 1231 governs the detention and removal of noncitizens, like Mr. Kowac, who have been ordered removed. Section 1231(a)(2) authorizes a 90-day period of mandatory post-final-removal-order detention, during which ICE is supposed to effectuate removal. This 90-day period is known as the “removal period” and generally starts once a final order of removal has been entered or at a minimum, on the date he has been detained. See § 1231(a)(1)(B).

25. Those who are not removed within the 90-day removal period should be released under conditions of supervision, such as periodic reporting and other reasonable restrictions. See § 1231(a)(3). The Government may continue to detain certain noncitizens beyond the 90-day removal period if they have been ordered removed on inadmissibility grounds after violating nonimmigrant status or conditions of entry, or on grounds stemming from criminal convictions, or security concerns, or if they have been determined to be a danger or flight risk. See § 1231(a)(6). If these groups of noncitizens are released, they are also subject to the supervision terms set forth in § 1231(a)(3). Id.

26. In Zadvydas, the Supreme Court held that § 1231(a)(6), when “read in light of the Constitution’s demands, limits [a noncitizen]’s post-removal-period detention to a period reasonably necessary to bring about that alien’s removal from the United States.” 533 U.S. at 689. A “habeas court must [first] ask whether the detention in question exceeds a period reasonably necessary to secure removal.” Id. at 699. “[O]nce removal is no longer reasonably foreseeable, continued detention is no longer authorized.” Id. At that point, the individual must be released because his continued detention would violate both the statute and the Due Process Clause of the Constitution. Id.

27. In determining a period reasonably necessary to effectuate removal, the Zadvydas Court adopted a “presumptively reasonable period of detention” of six months, inclusive of the 90-day removal period. Id. at 701. “After this six-month period, once the [noncitizen] provides good reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future, the Government must respond with evidence sufficient to rebut that showing.” Id. Thus, after six months, the Government bears the burden of disproving a detained person’s “good reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future.” Clark v. Martinez, 543 U.S. 371, 386 (2005) (granting habeas relief to Cuban petitioners whose detention lasted beyond six months post-removal-order and whose removal to Cuba was not reasonably foreseeable); see also Adu v. Bickham, No. 7:18-cv-103-WLS-MSH, 2018 WL 6495068 (M.D. Ga. Dec. 10, 2018) (R&R recommending release under Zadvydas).

28. A noncitizen who has been detained beyond the presumptive six-month period should be released if the Government is unable to present documented confirmation that removal is likely to occur in the reasonably foreseeable future. Clark, 543 U.S. at 386; see also McKenzie v. Gillis, No. 5:19-cv-139, 2020 WL 5536510, at *3 (S.D. Miss. July 30, 2020) (“Six months have passed since [the ICE Deportation Officer] stated that Petitioner's removal was imminent. Yet, Petitioner remains in ICE custody, and nothing in [the Supervisory Detention and Deportation Officer's] declaration demonstrates that Petitioner will be removed anytime soon. Neither ICE's belief that Petitioner will be removed, nor the information provided by Respondent satisfy the Government's burden to rebut Petitioner's showing that he will not be removed in the foreseeable future."), report and recommendation adopted, 2020 WL 5535367 (S.D. Miss. Sept. 15, 2020).

29. Release is the proper remedy for unconstitutionally prolonged post-removal-order detention. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 699–700 (explaining that supervised release is the appropriate relief when “the detention in question exceeds a period reasonably necessary to secure removal” because at that point, detention is “no longer authorized by statute”).

30. Mr. Kowac's detention fits squarely within the Zadvydas framework. His removal order became final in June 2004. To Petitioner's knowledge, nothing suspended or tolled the removal period. Nothing has suspended or tolled the removal period since he has been detained.

31. Therefore, Mr. Kowac is subject to permissive post-removal-order detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6) and his claim is ripe for court review.

32. “[F]or detention to remain reasonable, as the period of post-removal confinement grows, what counts as the ‘reasonably foreseeable future’ conversely would have to shrink.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701. ICE has had over twenty one (21) years to try to remove Mr. Kowac since his removal order became final, and it has failed to do so.

33. Removal “seems a remote possibility at best.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690. Thus, Mr. Kowac's continued detention violates the implicit requirement in 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6) that detention may not become unreasonably prolonged. In addition, his continued detention does not serve a legitimate government purpose and lacks sufficient procedural protections in violation of the Due Process Clause.

CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

VIOLATION OF THE IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT,

8 U.S.C. § 1231(a)(6)

34. Mr. Kowac realleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation contained above.

35. Mr. Kowac is detained pursuant to the discretionary, post-removal-order detention provision, § 1231(a)(6), because more than 90-days have elapsed since his removal order became administratively final and he has not done anything to impede his removal or toll the removal period. See 8 U.S.C. § 1231(a); 8 C.F.R. § 1241.1.

36. Section 1231(a)(6) contains an implicit temporal limitation of six months, after which detention is no longer presumptively reasonable. Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701. After that point, if the habeas petitioner “provides good reason to believe that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future, the Government must respond with evidence sufficient to rebut that showing,” and due process “requires ordering [the p]etitioner released.” Adu, 2018 WL 6495068, at *2-3 (quoting Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 701).

37. Mr. Kowac’s detention under §1231 is no longer presumptively reasonable because he has been continuously detained pursuant to a final removal order for over six months.

38. Mr. Kowac’s cooperation with ICE’s removal efforts and ICE’s inability to obtain travel documents after requesting them are evidence that there is no significant likelihood of removal in the reasonably foreseeable future.

39. ICE has made no indication that it is making or will make progress in securing Mr.

Kowac's removal. Mr. Kowac could remain detained for several months or even years beyond the six months recognized as reasonably necessary to effectuate removal in Zadvydas.

40. Nor is there any "sufficiently strong special justification" for Mr. Kowac's prolonged detention beyond the six-month limit. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690-91 (requiring a showing of dangerousness accompanied by some other "special circumstance" to justify continued detention when removal is not significantly likely in the reasonably foreseeable future).

41. Thus, Mr. Kowac's detention violates § 1231, and he is entitled to immediate release from custody.

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

VIOLATION OF THE DUE PROCESS CLAUSE

OF THE FIFTH AMENDMENT TO THE U.S. CONSTITUTION

42. Mr. Kowac realleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation contained above.

43. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment forbids the Government from depriving any person of liberty without due process of law. U.S. Const. amend. V. "Freedom from imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty" that the Due Process Clause protects. Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690.

44. Civil immigration detention following issuance of a final removal order violates due process if it is not reasonably related to its statutory purpose of effectuating removal. See id. at 690 (citing Jackson v. Indiana, 406 U.S. 715, 738 (1972)); id. at 697. When removal is not reasonably foreseeable, detention is no longer reasonably related to that purpose. Id. at 699.

45. Prolonged civil detention also violates procedural due process unless it is accompanied by strong procedural protections to guard against the erroneous deprivation of liberty. Id. at 690-91; Foucha v. Louisiana, 504 U.S. 71, 81-83 (1992); Kansas v. Hendricks, 521 U.S. 346, 364-69 (1997); United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 750-752 (1987).

46. Mr. Kowac has been detained continuously for more than six months since he has been transferred to ICE custody in August 2025. He is likely to be detained indefinitely absent intervention from this Court. His detention is no longer reasonably related to the primary statutory purpose of ensuring his imminent removal.

47. Moreover, any pro forma internal post-order custody reviews ICE conducted in Mr. Kowac's case do not meet the minimum procedural safeguards required by due process. See Diouf v. Napolitano, 634 F.3d 1081, 1092 (9th Cir. 2011).

48. Thus, Mr. Kowac's detention violates both substantive and procedural due process.

49. As a result, Mr. Kowac is entitled to immediate release from custody.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE Petitioner requests that the Court grant the following relief:

- a. Assume jurisdiction over this matter;
- b. Order Respondent to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be granted "within three (3) days unless for good cause additional time, not exceeding twenty (20) days, is allowed," that Petitioner be afforded one (1) week to file a response to Respondents' return, and set a hearing on this Petition within one (1) week after Petitioner's response is due, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2243;
- c. Order that as part of their filing showing cause why the Petition should not be granted, Respondents provide all documents relevant to efforts made to obtain travel documents for Mr. Kowac, which Mr. Kowac does not have access to;
- d. Expedite consideration of this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1657 because it is an action brought under Chapter 153 (habeas corpus) of Title 28;
- e. In the event that this Court determines that a genuine dispute of material fact exists regarding the likelihood of removal to Cameroon in the reasonably foreseeable future, schedule an evidentiary hearing pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2243. Singh v. U.S. Attorney Gen., 945 F.3d 1310, 1315-16 (11th Cir. 2019);

- f. Grant a writ of habeas corpus ordering Respondent to immediately release Mr. Kowac from their custody;
- g. Enter preliminary and permanent injunctive relief enjoining Respondent from further unlawful detention of Mr. Kowac;
- h. Declare that Mr. Kowac's detention without a bond hearing violates the Immigration and Nationality Act;
- i. Declare that Mr. Kowac's detention violates the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment;
- j. Enjoin Respondent from transferring Mr. Kowac outside of this judicial district pending litigation of this matter;
- k. Award reasonable attorney's fees and costs pursuant to the Equal Access to Justice Act, 5 U.S.C. § 504 and 28 U.S.C. § 2412; and
- l. Grant such further relief as this Court deems just and proper.
