PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

1 INTRODUCTION

2 1. Petitioner Felix Blanco Rodriguez, (Petitioner) is a noncitizen and longtime
3 resident of the United States who has been harmed by Defendants-Respondents' (Defendants) new,
4 draconian policy reinterpreting the immigration detention statutes to preclude Petitioner from 5 eligibility for bond under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), and for 6 bond hearings under 8 C.F.R. §§ 1003.19(a), 1236.1(d). Instead, pursuant to this new policy,
7 Defendants now consider Petitioner as subject to mandatory detention under INA section
8 235(b)(1)(B)(iii)(IV) without the opportunity for release on bond during the pendency of his 9 lengthy removal proceedings.

10 2. Petitioner seeks a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241 challenging
11 his ongoing immigration detention without the availability of a custody hearing. Respondents 12 unlawfully classify Petitioner as subject to mandatory detention under INA § 235(b), despite the 13 fact that Petitioner has lived continuously in the United States since 2012.

14 3. Petitioner has lived in the United States continuously since 2012. Petitioner was 15 detained on June 18, 2026. He accidentally took a wrong exit off the I-5 freeway and had no option
16 but to approach the gate at Camp Pendleton military base in the Oceanside, California. The officers
17 contacted Immigration and Customs Enforcement who detained him and transferred him to the 18 Otay Mesa Detention Facility in San Diego, California, where he remains detained. Current 19 Immigration Judges are forbidden to accept jurisdiction over Petitioner's custody hearing, as they 20 erroneously consider Petitioner and those similarly situated to him as being subject to mandatory
21 detention under INA § 235(b)(1)(B)(iii)(IV). Immigration Judges are instructed to rely on Matter
22 of Yajure Hurtado, 29 I&N Dec. 216 (BIA 2025), and reference the Ninth Circuit's stay in 23

1 Maldonado Bautista v. DHS, No. 26-1044 (9th Cir. Mar. 6, 2026). Therefore any Motion for
2 Custody Redetermination to the Immigration Court would be futile.

3 4. Petitioner was previously in removal proceedings in 2019 and detained but had 4 been released with a minimum bond as he was not found to be a danger to the community, nor a 5 national security risk, nor a flight risk.

6 5. Petitioner is not an arriving alien and is not presently subject to expedited removal
7 proceedings under INA § 235. Because Petitioner was released into the United States in 2019,
8 continuously resided in the country for years, and never received an expedited removal order, his
9 detention is governed by INA § 236(a), which entitles him to an individualized custody
10 determination.

11 6. Petitioner is charged with, inter alia, having entered the United States without 12 inspection. See 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i). Petitioner first entered the United States in 2003, and 13 has lived continuously in the United States since 2012. Thus, he is not subject to mandatory
14 detention as he has been physically present in the US well past the two year minimum. Thus, he is 15 detained pursuant to INA 236(a) - not mandatory under INA 236(c). This Court should order his 16 immediate release. Alternatively, Petitioner is entitled to an immediate bond hearing before an 17 Immigration Judge.

18 7. DHS is refusing to accept jurisdiction over custody hearings consistent with its new 19 DHS policy issued on July 8, 2025, instructing all ICE employees to consider anyone alleged to 20 be inadmissible under § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i) —i.e., those who entered the United States without 21 inspection—to be subject to mandatory detention under INA section 235(b)(1)(B)(iii)(IV) and 22 therefore eligible for release only on parole. Any request to the Immigration Court would be futile.

1 DHS and the Immigration Judges recite the precedent decision in Matter of Yajure Hurtado as 2 remaining good law, and that the Court is bound by the Central District Court declaratory order.

3 8. The Immigration Court considers Petitioner an “applicant for admission” who is 4 “seeking admission” and subject to mandatory detention under INA section 235(b)(1)(B)(iii)(IV).
5 The Immigration Court justifies their refusal to accept jurisdiction on the basis that the Maldonado
6 Bautista orders were stayed by the 9th Circuit on March 6, 2025.

7 9. Petitioner’s detention on this basis violates the plain language of the INA and its 8 implementing regulations.

9 10. Subparagraph 1225(b)(2)(A) applies to individuals who are apprehended on arrival
10 in the United States. It states that an “applicant for admission” who is “seeking admission” shall 11 be detained for a removal proceeding. Id. It does not apply to individuals like Petitioner, who was 12 arrested and detained by ICE after having entered and begun residing in the United States. Instead,
13 such individuals are subject to a different statute, 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a), that allows for release on 14 conditional parole or bond. That statute expressly applies to people like Petitioner, are charged as 15 inadmissible for having entered the United States without inspection.

16 11. Defendants’ new legal interpretation is plainly contrary to the statutory framework
17 and its implementing regulations. Indeed, for decades, Defendants have applied § 1226(a) to 18 people like Petitioner. Defendants’ new policies are thus not only contrary to law, but arbitrary
19 and capricious in violation of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). They were also adopted
20 without complying with the APA’s procedural requirements.

21 12. On January 13, 2026, Executive Office of Immigration Review Chief Immigration 22 Judge Teresa L. Riley wrote an email to all Immigration Judges. It stated “Maldonado Bautista is 23 not a nationwide injunction and does not purport to vacate, stay, or enjoin Yajure Hurtado.
24

1 Therefore, Yajure Hurtado remains binding precedent on agency adjudicators. For clarification,
2 declaratory judgments differ from injunctions in that the former clarifies parties' legal rights
3 without ordering specific action, while the latter is a court order compelling to do or stop doing a
4 specific act. A declaratory judgment is not an equitable remedy, and does not, by itself, have the 5 effect of compelling specific action by a party."

6 13. On February 18, 2026, the Central District of California issued an Order to 7 Enforce Judgement in the matter of Maldonado Bautista et al. v. Ernesto Santacruz Jr et al.,
8 5:25-cv-01873-SSS-BFM (Dkt No. 107) (Feb. 18, 2026). The Court chastised the Department of 9 Homeland Security and the Executive Office for Immigration Review for failing to adhere to its 10 prior orders certifying the class and instructing to provide bond hearings for persons like 11 Petitioner. As a result of the rejection and ignorance of the federal court orders, the Central 12 District Court issued further relief explicitly vacating Matter of Yajure Hurtado under the 13 Administrative Procedure Act. The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals stayed the order on March 6, 14 2026.

15 14. Petitioner is not an arriving alien and is not presently subject to expedited removal
16 proceedings under INA § 235. Because Petitioner was released into the United States in 2019,
17 continuously resided in the country for years, and never received an expedited removal order, his
18 detention is governed by INA § 236(a), which entitles him to an individualized custody
19 determination.

20 15. Petitioner was not a danger to the community nor a flight risk based on the core 21 factors to be used by Immigration Courts. See Matter of Guerra, 24 I&N Dec. 37 (BIA 2006). His 22 factual circumstances today remain the same as the day he was granted bond. He only exited the 23

1 highway at an exit that did not allow him to turn around or take any turns and he had no intent of 2 entering the base.

3 16. Petitioner now challenges his continued detention as illegal and unconstitutional
4 and requests his immediate release.

5
6 JURISDICTION

7 17. Petitioner is in the physical custody of Respondents. Petitioner is detained at the 8 Otay Mesa Detention Center in San Diego, California.

9 18. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 2241(c)(5) (habeas corpus), 28 U.S.C.
10 § 1331 (federal question), and Article I, section 9, clause 2 of the United States Constitution (the 11 Suspension Clause).

12 19. This Court may grant relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2241, the Declaratory Judgment
13 Act, 28 U.S.C. § 2201 et seq., and the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

14 VENUE

15 20. Pursuant to Braden v. 30th Judicial Circuit Court of Kentucky, 410 U.S. 484, 493-
16 500 (1973), venue lies in the United States District Court for the Southern District, the judicial 17 district in which Petitioner currently is detained.

18 21. Venue is also properly in this Court pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(e) because 19 Respondents are employees, officers, and agencies of the United States, and because a substantial 20 part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims occurred in the Southern District of 21 California.

REQUIREMENTS OF 28 U.S.C. § 2241, 2243

22. The Court must grant the petition for writ of habeas corpus or issue an order to show cause (“OSC”) to the Respondents “forthwith,” unless Petitioner is not entitled to relief. 28 U.S.C. § 2243. If an OSC is issued, the Court must require Respondents to file return “within three days unless good cause additional time, not exceeding twenty days, is allowed.” Id. Courts have long recognized the significance of the habeas statute in protecting individuals from unlawful detention.

23. Habeas corpus is “perhaps the most important writ known to the constitutional law . . . affording as it does a swift and imperative remedy in all cases of illegal restraint or confinement.” Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391, 400 (1963) (emphasis added). “The application for the writ usurps the attention and displaces the calendar of the judge or justice who entertains it and receives prompt action from him within the four corners of the application.” Yong v. I.N.S., 208 F.3d 1116, 1120 (9th Cir. 2000) (citation omitted).

24. Petitioner is “in custody” for the purpose of 28 U.S.C. § 2241 because he was arrested by Respondents and remains in their legal and physical custody at Otay Mesa Detention center in Otay Mesa, California. He is under Respondents’ and their agents’ direct control.

PARTIES

25. Petitioner Felix Blanco Rodriguez is a citizen of Mexico who has been in immigration detention since June 18, 2026. Petitioner was arrested at Camp Pendleton in Oceanside, CA. ICE did not set bond, and any Petitioner request for review of his custody by an IJ would be futile because he is deemed an “applicant for admission.” Petitioner has resided continuously in the United States since 2011.

1 26. Respondent, Patrick Divver, is the Director of the San Diego Field Office of ICE's
2 Enforcement and Removal Operations division. As such, Patrick Divver is Petitioner's immediate
3 custodian and is responsible for Petitioner's detention and removal. He is named in his official 4 capacity.

5 27. Respondent, Todd Lyons, is the Acting Director of US Immigration and customs
6 enforcement. As such, Todd Lyons is responsible for Petitioner's detention and is named in his 7 official capacity.

8 28. Respondent Markwayne Mullin is the Secretary of the Department of Homeland
9 Security. He is responsible for the implementation and enforcement of the Immigration and 10 Nationality Act (INA), and oversees ICE, which is responsible for Petitioner's detention. Mr.
11 Mullin has ultimate custodial authority over Petitioner and is sued in his official capacity.

12 29. Respondent Department of Homeland Security (DHS) is the federal agency
13 responsible for implementing and enforcing the INA, including the detention and removal of 14 noncitizens.

15 30. Respondent Todd Blanche is the Acting Attorney General of the United States. He 16 is responsible for the Department of Justice, of which the Executive Office for Immigration
17 Review and the immigration court system it operates is a component agency. He is sued in his 18 official capacity.

19 31. Respondent Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) is the federal agency
20 responsible for implementing and enforcing the INA in removal proceedings, including for custody
21 redeterminations in bond hearings.

1 32. Respondent Christopher LAROSE is employed by CoreCivic as Warden of the 2 Otay Mesa Detention Facility where Petitioner is detained. He has immediate physical custody of 3 Petitioner. He is sued in his official capacity.

4
5 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

6 33. Petitioner has been detained since June 18, 2026.

7 34. Petitioner is detained pursuant to 8 USC §1225(b)(2)(A).

8 35. Petitioner has been in the United States since 2012. He has never left the United 9 States since.

10 36. Petitioner first entered the United States in 2003 and has remained continuously
11 since 2012. He has resided in the United States continuously for well beyond 2 years and thus is 12 not subject to Mandatory Detention.

13 37. Petitioner is not subject to mandatory detention as he has been physically present
14 in the US since 2012 well past the two years.

15 38. Petitioner was previously in removal proceedings in 2019 but was released back
16 into the United States under a minimum bond as he was not deemed a flight risk nor a danger to 17 the community or national security risk. There have been no changed circumstances since that 18 time that justify his reaprehension and detention.

19 39. Petitioner has a US citizen sponsor willing to post his bond and ensure he appears 20 for all immigration hearings and check-ins.

21 40. Petitioner has a US Citizen son and two daughters with lawful DACA status.
22 Petitioner is a person of good moral character.

LEGAL FRAMEWORK

41. A petitioner must exhaust administrative remedies by appealing to the BIA before seeking judicial remedies and include bond determinations. Leonardo v. Crawford, 646 F.3d 1157, 1160 (9th Cir. 2011). “[A] court may waive the prudential exhaustion requirement if ‘administrative remedies are inadequate or not efficacious, pursuit of administrative remedies would be a futile gesture, irreparable injury will result, or the administrative proceedings would be void.’” Hernandez v. Sessions, 872 F.3d 976, 988 (9th Cir. 2017) (quoting Laing v. Ashcroft, 370 F.3d 994, 1000 (9th Cir. 2004)). “The party moving the court to waive prudential exhaustion requirements bears the burden of demonstrating that at least one of these Laing factors applies.” Aden v. Nielsen, No. C18-1441RSL, 2019 WL 5802013, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 7, 2019).

42. Here, Petitioner is challenging both the lawfulness of his initial detention, and the ongoing detention. Respondents’ position is that Petitioner is not eligible for a custody redetermination hearing pursuant to Section 236(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act and therefore will deny any request for a bond hearing for Petitioner. Therefore any request for such hearing at this stage would be futile and require the instant petition for relief.

43. Petitioner is challenging the unlawfulness of Respondents’ initial decision to detain him, independent of any decision made by any Immigration Judge in removal proceedings.

44. Therefore, a writ of habeas corpus is the sole avenue to vindicate Petitioner’s constitutional, statutory, and regulatory rights and restore his liberty.

45. Courts have recognized the significance of the habeas statute in protecting individuals from unlawful detention, which affords “a swift and imperative remedy in all cases of illegal restraint or confinement.” Fay v. Noia, 372 U.S. 391, 400 (1963); see also Yong v. INS, 208.

1 F.3d 1116, 1120 (9th Cir. 2000) (noting that habeas statute requires expeditious determination of 2 petitions).

3 46. The Court must grant the petition for writ of habeas corpus or issue an order to 4 show cause to Respondents “forthwith,” unless Petitioner is not entitled to relief. 28 U.S.C. § 2243.
5 ““It is well established that the Fifth Amendment entitles [noncitizens] to due process of law in 6 deportation proceedings.” Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510, 523 (2003) (quoting Reno v. Flores, 507
7 U.S. 292, 306 (1993)).

8 47. Due process requires “adequate procedural protections” to ensure that the 9 government’s asserted justification for physical confinement “outweighs the individual’s
10 constitutionally protected interest in avoiding physical restraint.” Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S.
11 678, 690 (2001) (internal quotation marks omitted).

12 48. In the immigration context, the Supreme Court has recognized two valid purposes
13 for civil detention—to mitigate the risks of danger to the community and to prevent flight. Id.;
14 Demore, 538 U.S. at 528.

15 49. The test for procedural due process claims, the Mathews test balances: (1) the 16 private interest threatened by governmental action; (2) the risk of erroneous deprivation of such 17 interest and the value of additional or substitute safeguards; and (3) the government interest.
18 Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 335 (1976); see also Sho v. Current or Acting Field Off. Dir., 19 No. 1:21CV-01812 TLN AC, 2023 WL 4014649, at *3 (E.D. Cal. June 15, 2023), report and 20 recommendation adopted, No. 1:21-CV-1812-TLN-AC, 2023 WL 4109421 (E.D. Cal. June 21, 21 2023) (using Mathews factors to assess a habeas petitioner’s due process claims and collecting 22 cases doing the same). Here, each factor weighs in Petitioner’s favor, and Petitioner’s release is 23
24

1 justified due to his interest in avoiding prolonged or unjustified detention. Petitioner poses no
2 danger to the community, nor is a flight risk.

3 50. All three Mathews factors support a finding that the government's revocation of 4 Petitioner's parole without notification, reasoning, or an opportunity to be heard denied Petitioner
5 of his due process rights. First, Petitioner has a significant liberty interest in remaining out of 6 custody. See Pinchi, 792 F. Supp. 3d at 1032 ("Thus, even when ICE has the initial discretion to 7 detain or release a noncitizen pending removal proceedings, after that individual is released from 8 custody she has a protected liberty interest in remaining out of custody." (citations omitted)).
9 Freedom from detention is a fundamental part of due process protection. See Hernandez v. Sessions,
10 872 F.3d 976, 993 (9th Cir. 2017) ("[F]reedom from imprisonment is at the 'core of the liberty
11 protected by the Due Process Clause.'" (quoting Foucha v. Louisiana, 504 U.S. 71, 80 (1992))).

12 51. Second, the risk of an erroneous deprivation of such interest is high as Petitioner's 13 parole was revoked without providing him a reason for revocation or giving him an opportunity to 14 be heard. Since the initial determination in 2019 that Petitioner should be released on parole
15 because he posed no danger to the community and was not a flight risk, there is no evidence that 16 these findings have changed. See Saravia v. Sessions, 280 F. Supp. 3d 1168, 1176 (N.D. Cal. 2017),
17 aff'd sub nom. Saravia for A.H. v. Sessions, 905 F.3d 1137 (9th Cir. 2018) ("Release reflects a
18 determination by the government that the noncitizen is not a danger to the community or a flight
19 risk."). There is no indication that Petitioner has failed to abide by the conditions of his release or 20 that circumstances have changed. "Once a noncitizen has been released, the law prohibits federal 21 agents from rearresting him merely because he is subject to removal proceedings." Saravia, 280
22 F. Supp. 3d at 1176. "Rather, the federal agents must be able to present evidence of materially 23 changed circumstances—namely, evidence that the noncitizen is in fact dangerous or has become 24

1 a flight risk” Id. The risk of erroneous deprivation of Petitioner’s liberty is high because 2 neither the government nor Petitioner has had an opportunity to determine whether there is any 3 valid basis for his detention. Pinchi, 792 F. Supp. 3d at 1035 (citation omitted). It follows that the 4 probable value of additional procedural safeguards, such as notice and a pre-deprivation hearing,
5 is also high.

6 52. Third, the government’s interest in detaining Petitioner without notice, reasoning,
7 and a hearing is low. See Pinchi, 792 F. Supp. 3d at 1036 (“[T]he government has articulated no
8 legitimate interest that would support arresting [petitioner] without a pre-detention hearing.”);
9 Alvarenga Matute v. Wofford, 807 F. Supp. 3d 1120, 1130 (E.D. Cal. 2025); Ortega v. Bonnar, 10 415 F. Supp. 3d 963, 970 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (“If the government wishes to re-arrest [petitioner] at 11 any point, it has the power to take steps toward doing so; but its interest in doing so without a 12 hearing is low.”). There is also no indication that providing a pre-deprivation hearing would be 13 fiscally or administratively burdensome on the government. See Pinchi, 792 F. Supp. 3d at 1036
14 (“In immigration court, custody hearings are routine and impose a minimal cost.” (quoting Singh
15 v. Andrews, 803 F. Supp. 3d 1035, 1048 (E.D. Cal. 2025)))

16 53. Respondents have failed to demonstrate that Petitioner is a flight risk or danger to 17 his community warranting his detention after being released on his own recognizance.
18 Immigration Courts are required to consider the following non-exhaustive Matter of Guerra list of 19 factors to decide if a respondent is a danger to the community or a flight risk:

- 20 • Fixed Address: Whether the individual has a stable fixed address in the United 21 States. Here, Petitioner has a US Citizen Sponsor who is committed to supporting 22 him and he will reside at same address prior to his detention. See Exhibit B.
- 23 • Length of Residence: How long the individual has resided in the United States.
24 Petitioner has been in the United States continuously for over 15 years.
- Family Ties: Presence of family in the United States. Petitioner has a US Citizen son and a daughter with lawful DACA status in the United States. See Exhibits B, C.

- 1 • Employment History: Petitioner has a record of stable employment.
- 2 • Court Appearance Record: A history of appearing for court hearings. Petitioner has never failed to appear for any hearing and intends to pursue his applications for relief.
- 3 • Criminal Record: The extensiveness, recency, and seriousness of criminal activity. Petitioner has zero criminal history in the United States in the last 10 years.
- 4 • Immigration Violations: A history of previous immigration violations. Here, Petitioner entered the United States from Mexico without proper documentation more than 15 years ago.
- 5 • Manner of Entry: How the individual entered the United States.
- 6 • Flight risk: Attempts to flee prosecution or escape authorities. Petitioner made no attempt to flee authorities.

7
8 See Matter of Guerra, 24 I&N Dec. 37 (BIA 2006)

9 54. The Executive Office for Immigration Review and its subagency the Immigration
10 Court and the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) are unlawfully ordering that individuals
11 such as Petitioner be denied the opportunity to be released on bond. Immigration Judges are 12 refusing to assert proper jurisdiction and stubbornly are following the outdated DHS position. The 13 Immigration Court continues its improper jurisdictional deflection via Matter of Yajure Hurtado,
14 29 I&N Dec. 216, 225 (BIA 2025).

15 55. Petitioner, Felix Blanco Rodriguez, while he does not have lawful status in the 16 United States, he was unlawfully detained and is being held at the Otay Mesa Detention Center.
17 He was apprehended by immigration authorities on June 18, 2026.

- 18 a. entered the United States without inspection in 2012 and was not apprehended upon 19 arrival, cf. id.; and
- 20 b. was previously in removal proceedings and released on bond back into the United 21 States in 2019.
- 22 c. is not detained under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c), § 1225(b)(1), or § 1231.

23 56. After apprehending Petitioner on June 18, 2026 the DHS placed him in removal
24 proceedings pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1229a. DHS has charged Petitioner as being inadmissible under

8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i), as someone who entered the United States without inspection. Petitioner is subject to Section 236(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, and is not subject to mandatory detention pursuant to Section 236(c) or Section 235 of the Act.

57. Therefore, because Respondents detained Petitioner by revoking his parole without notice or a pre-deprivation hearing in violation of the Due Process Clause, his detention is unlawful. See, e.g., Sanchez v. LaRose, No. 25-CV-2396-JES-MMP, 2025 WL 2770629, at *4 (S.D. Cal. Sep. 26, 2025) (finding the petitioner's parole was revoked without notice and a hearing and without a showing of a change of circumstances, thus violating her due process rights and rendering her detention unlawful). The proper remedy for the unlawful detention is Petitioner's immediate release subject only to the conditions of his preexisting parole. See Noori v. LaRose, 807 F. Supp. 3d 1146, 1156 (S.D. Cal. 2025) (finding DHS violated the petitioner's due process rights by revoking his parole without notice or a hearing and ordering his immediate release); Sanchez, 2025 WL 2770629, at *5 (same); Ortega, 415 F. Supp. 3d at 970 (ordering immediate release after the petitioner was detained while out on bond without notice or pre-deprivation hearing). The Court should expeditiously grant this petition and order Petitioner released.

58. Alternatively, the Court should order Respondents to provide a custody redetermination hearing under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) within seven days.

CAUSES OF ACTION

1. Violation of Fifth Amendment Right to Due Process – Substantive and Procedural

Due Process, U.S. Const. Amend. V.

59. Petitioner restates, realleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

1 60. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution prohibits the 2 federal government from depriving any person of “life, liberty, or property, without due
3 process of law.” U.S. Const. Amend. V. Due process protects “all ‘persons’ within the 4 United States, including [non-citizens], whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful,
5 temporary, or permanent.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 693.

6 61. Generally, due process protections depend on the situation and must account for (1) the 7 private interest at issue, (2) the risk of erroneous deprivation of that interest through the 8 procedures used, and (3) the Government's interest. Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 9 334–35 (1976). Here, Petitioner was detained and subject to mandatory detention without 10 any opportunity to be heard prior to his detention.

11 62. Due process requires that government action be rational and non-arbitrary. See U.S. v.
12 Trimble, 487 F.3d 752, 757 (9th Cir. 2007).

13 63. Petitioner has a vital liberty interest in remaining free from DHS custody.

14 64. See Pinchi v. Noem, No. 5:25-CV-05632-PCP, 2025 WL 2084921, at *4 (N.D. Cal. July 15 24, 2025) (citing Diaz v. Kaiser, No. 3:25-CV-05071, 2025 WL 1676854 (N.D. Cal. June 16 14, 2025) (explaining that a non-citizen that ICE released from custody after initial 17 apprehension “has a substantial private interest in remaining out of custody” which 18 includes an interest in “...obtaining necessary medical care, [and] maintaining her 19 relationships in the community...”).

20 65. Even if the initial decision to release a non-citizen from DHS custody is discretionary, 21 “...after that individual is released from custody, he has a protected liberty interest in 22 remaining out of custody.” Garcia v. Andrews, No. 1:25-CV-01006 JLT SAB, 2025 WL
23

2420068, at *7 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 21, 2025) (quoting Pinchi v. Noem, No. 5:25-CV-05632-PCP, 2025 WL 2084921, at *3 (N.D. Cal. July 24, 2025)).

66. Once a non-citizen is released, should the Department decide to re-detain him, he is entitled to notice as to what reasons he is being re-detained, such as which alleged violations of conditions of his release. 8 CFR 241.4(l)(1) (2024). That did not occur here.

67. Here, Petitioner was detained in a hasty manner after being free without incident for nearly 7 years. He had no violations or changed circumstances justifying his detention. He merely entered a restriction area by accident because he missed his exit and did not U-turn in time to avoid entering Camp Pendleton.

68. Petitioner has no criminal history in the last 10 years. See generally Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 333 (1976) (requiring notice and an opportunity to be heard before deprivation of a legally protected interest). The government has not identified any materially changed circumstances that would warrant detaining Petitioner.

2. Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act – 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A) Not in Accordance with Law and in Excess of Statutory Authority Violation of 8 C.F.R. § 239.2(c)

69. Petitioner restates, realleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in the paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

70. Under the APA, a court “shall . . . hold unlawful . . . agency action” that is “not in accordance with law;” “contrary to constitutional right;” “in excess of statutory jurisdiction authority, or limitations;” or “without observance of procedure required by law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)-(D).

1 71. Once a removal proceeding has been initiated, regulations enumerate the reasons for which
2 proceedings may be dismissed at 8 C.F.R. § 239.2(a). In considering a motion to dismiss,
3 the Immigration Judge must make “an informed adjudication . . . based on an evaluation
4 of the factors underlying the [DHS] motion.” Matter of G-N-C-, 22 I&N Dec. 281, 284
5 (BIA 1998).

6 72. The initiation of expedited removal proceedings is not an enumerated ground upon which 7 a removal proceeding may be dismissed.

8 73. It is a well-established administrative principle that “agency action taken without lawful 9 authority is at least voidable, if not void ab initio.” L.M.-M. v. Cuccinelli, 442 F. Supp. 3d
10 1, 35 (D.D.C. 2020), citing SW General, Inc. v. NLRB, 796 F.3d 67, 79 (D.C. Cir. 2015);
11 see also Hooks v. Kitsap Tenant Support Servs., Inc., 816 F.3d 550, 555 (9th Cir. 2016)
12 (invalidating agency action because it was taken by unauthorized official).

13 74. Under the APA, an agency must provide “reasoned explanation for its action” and “may 14 not depart from a prior policy sub silentio or simply disregard rules that are still on the 15 books.” FCC v. Fox Television Stations, Inc., 556 U.S. 502, 515 (2009). On mere 16 conjecture, Respondents’ intent was to eliminate the due process rights available to 17 Petitioner in removal proceedings under section 240 of the INA, deprive him of his liberty
18 interest despite no evidence of material changed circumstances, or for some other purposes
19 not supported by law. See Pinchi v. Noem, No. 5:25-CV-05632-PCP, 2025 WL 2084921, 20 at *5 (N.D. Cal. July 24, 2025) (“Detention for its own sake, to meet an administrative 21 quota, or because the government has not yet established constitutionally required pre-22 detention procedures is not a legitimate government interest.”).

1 75. In deciding to detain Petitioner, Respondents further violated the APA by “entirely fail[ing]
2 to consider an important aspect of the problem” – namely, the important procedural rights
3 that Petitioner relied on in § 1229a immigration court proceedings. See Motor Vehicle Mfrs.
4 Ass’n of U.S., Inc. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29, 43 (1983); see also Dep’t
5 of Homeland Sec. v. Regents of the Univ. of California, 591 U.S. 1, 24-33 (2020) (holding 6 that rescission of immigration policy without considering “particular reliance interests” is 7 arbitrary and capricious in violation of the APA).

8 76. The arbitrary and capricious detention of Petitioner was not made in furtherance of an 9 enumerated reason set forth in the regulations and causes Petitioner irreparable harm. For 10 these reasons, the Court should find that the decision to detain Petitioner is arbitrary,
11 capricious, and unsupported by substantial evidence. See 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (E).

12 3. Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act – 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A) Not in 13 Accordance with Law and in Excess of Statutory Authority, Unlawful Detention

14 77. Petitioner restates, realleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in the 15 paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

16 78. Under the APA, a court shall “hold unlawful and set aside agency action...” that is “...(A)
17 arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law; (B)
18 contrary to constitutional right, power, privilege, or immunity...” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)- 19 (B).

20 79. An action is an abuse of discretion if the agency “entirely failed to consider an important 21 aspect of the problem, offered an explanation for its decision that runs counter to the 22 evidence before the agency, or is so implausible that it could not be ascribed to a difference 23 in view or the product of agency expertise.” Nat’l Ass’n of Home Builders v. Defs. of 24

1 Wildlife, 551 U.S. 644, 658 (2007) (quoting Motor Vehicle Mfrs. Ass'n of U.S., Inc. v. State
2 Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 463 U.S. 29, 43 (1983)).

3 80. To survive an APA challenge, the agency must articulate “a satisfactory explanation” for 4 its action, “including a rational connection between the facts found and the choice made.”
5 Dep’t of Com. v. New York, 588 U.S. 752, 773 (2019) (citation omitted).

6 81. In Y-Z-H-L v Bostock, 2025 WL 1898025, at *10-12 (D. Or. July 9, 2025), the Court
7 explained the process of discretionary release from custody in immigration cases and noted 8 that before revoking the release, the non-citizen must be given written notice of the 9 impending revocation, which must include a cogent description of the reasons. Under the 10 APA, non-citizens are entitled to determinations related to their release revocations that are 11 not arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of discretion. See id. at *10.

12 82. By detaining Petitioner without notice or consideration of his individualized facts and 13 circumstances, Respondents have violated the INA, implementing regulations, and the 14 APA.

15 83. Respondents have made no finding that Petitioner is a danger to the community.

16 84. Respondents have made no finding that Petitioner is a flight risk.

17 85. By detaining Petitioner categorically and without notice, Respondents have further abused
18 their discretion because, since the agency made its initial custody determination, on mere 19 conjecture, there have been no changes to Petitioner’s specific facts or circumstances that 20 support his detention.

21 4. Violation of the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution

22
23 86. Petitioner restates, realleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in the 24 paragraphs above as if fully set forth herein.

1 87. The Fourth Amendment protects “[t]he right of the people to be secure in their persons
2 against unreasonable searches and seizures.” U.S. Const. amend. IV. The Supreme Court
3 has recognized that immigration arrests and detentions are “seizures” within the meaning
4 of the Fourth Amendment. INS v. Lopez-Mendoza, 468 U.S. 1032, 1044 (1984)
5 (acknowledging that deportation proceedings are civil, but the Fourth Amendment still 6 applies to the “seizure” of the person).

7 88. The Fourth Amendment requires that arrests entail a neutral, judicial determination of 8 probable cause. See Gerstein v. Pugh, 420 U.S. 103, 114 (1975). That neutral, judicial 9 determination can occur either before the arrest, in the form of a warrant, or promptly
10 afterward, in the form of a prompt judicial probable cause determination. See id. Arrest and 11 detention of a person, including of a noncitizen, absent a neutral judicial determination of 12 probable cause violates the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution. Id.; see also Cnty. of 13 Riverside v. McLaughlin, 500 U.S. 44, 57 (1991). This determination must occur within 48
14 hours of detention, which includes weekends, unless there is a bona fide emergency or 15 other extraordinary circumstances. See Cnty. of Riverside v. McLaughlin, 500 U.S. 44, 57 16 (1991).

17 89. Congress enacted a strong preference that immigration arrests be based on warrants. See
18 Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 407–08 (2012). The Immigration and Nationality
19 Act thus provides immigration officers with only limited authority to conduct warrantless
20 arrests. 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2). Federal regulations track the strict limitations on warrantless
21 arrests. See 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii).

22 90. Petitioner did not receive any judicial determination of probable cause for his arrest or 23 continued detention by the Respondents.
24

1 91. The Government cannot salvage this seizure by invoking generalized immigration
2 enforcement interests. The Fourth Amendment's reasonableness inquiry is fact-specific 3 and demands individualized justification for both the arrest and the extended detention. See
4 United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 U.S. 873, 882–84 (1975); Gerstein, 420 U.S. at 114.
5 Petitioner did not pose any danger to any person in the community at large.

6 92. Respondents' arrest of Petitioner constitutes an unreasonable and unlawful seizure in 7 violation of the Fourth Amendment.

8 CLAIM FOR RELIEF

9 1. Violation of Fifth Amendment Right to Due Process

10
11 93. Petitioner repeats, re-alleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in 12 the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

13 94. Here, Petitioner has “passed through our gates” and “may be expelled only after 14 proceedings conforming to traditional standards of fairness encompassed in due process of 15 law.” Shaughnessy v. United States ex rel. Mezei, 345 U.S. 206, 212 (1953). Because 16 Petitioner has developed an interest in remaining during his time here, “the procedures used 17 to remove [him] must adequately protect” that interest. Make the Rd. New York v. Noem, 805 F. Supp. 3d 139, 159 (D.D.C. 2025).

18 95. In this case, Petitioner has been present in our country for nearly 17 continuous years. This 19 substantial amount of time indicates he is afforded the Fifth Amendment's guaranteed due
20 process before removal. See Yamataya v. Fisher, 189 U.S. 86, 87 (1903) (finding a 21 noncitizen was entitled to due process before removal despite having spent only four days
22 in the US).

23 96. There is no basis to find Petitioner is a flight risk or presents a danger to the community,
24 which are core guideposts for parole, and Respondents have not supplied any additional

1 information to the contrary. Denying Petitioner notice and reasoning upon his detainment
2 took away a meaningful opportunity to contest and violated due process. See Pinchi, 792
3 F. Supp. 3d at 1032-35; Y-Z-L-H v. Bostock, 792 F. Supp. 3d 1123, 1146-47 (D. Or. 2025)
4 (D. Or. July 9, 2025).

5 97. Continued detention violates the Fifth Amendment, and Habeas relief is required to remedy
6 this constitutional violation.

7 Counts 2 and 3: Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act – 5 U.S.C. §
8 706(2)(A); Unlawful Detention;

9 98. Petitioner repeats, re-alleges, and incorporates by reference each and every allegation in 10 the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

11 99. Petitioner was not provided adequate notice. Respondents must provide at minimum some 12 reasoning explaining why the Petitioner would now be considered a flight risk or danger
13 to the community. See Castellon, 2025 WL 2373425, at *12; Pinchi v. Noem, 792 F. Supp.
14 3d 1025, 1032-35 (N.D. Cal. July 24, 2025). Given Respondent has not attempted to justify
15 the detention for Petitioner, this demonstrates they have acted arbitrarily and capriciously
16 in violation of the APA.

17 100. Habeas relief is required to remedy this Constitutional violation.

18 4. Fourth Amendment Violation and Irreparable Harm

19 101. Petitioner did not receive any judicial determination of probable cause for his arrest
20 or continued detention by the Respondents.

21 102. Continued detention based on this warrantless arrest causes severe and irreparable
22 harm, including loss of liberty, emotional and psychological harm, separation from family,
23 and interference with the ability to pursue legal claims.
24

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that this Court grant the following relief:

- a. Assume jurisdiction over this matter;
- b. Issue a writ of habeas corpus;
- c. Declare the Petitioner's detention is unlawful;
- d. Declare that Petitioner's detention is governed by INA § 236(a), not INA § 235(b);
- e. Order Respondents to immediately release Petitioner;
- f. Alternatively order prompt constitutionally compliant bond hearing before a neutral adjudicator within five (5) days;
- g. Award Petitioner attorney's fees and costs as permitted by law; and
- h. Grant any other and further relief that this Court deems just and proper.

DATED this 26th Day of June, 2026.

/S/ ANNA M HYSELL
Attorney for Petitioner
